FREE FILMS AVAILABLE THROUGH
UM INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS SERVICES

MISSOULA--

Services

The Instructional Materials / at the University of Montana has a number of free films available for use by UM summer students and faculty.

Dr. Devon Chandler, director of IMS, said the films may be checked out by instructors, or students with the consent of an instructor, for use in the classroom. The only restriction, Chandler said, is that the films must be shown on the UM campus.

The IMS films, available until July 29, include: "Boozers and Users," a 26-minute study of alcohol and drug use; "What Did You Learn in School Today?", a 48-minute examination of the "open classroom"; "Sioux Legend," a 20-minute study of the Plains Indians; "Learning and Behavior," a 25-minute demonstration of behavioral principles; and "Upturned Face," an adaptation of a Stephen Crane short story about dying.

Also,
/"Rewards and Reinforcement," a 25-minute study of educational methods used with disadvantaged children; "Spaces between People," taken from the feature film, "To Sir, with Love"; "Pride and Principle," taken from the feature film, "Bridge on the River Kwai"; and "Love to Kill," taken from the feature film, "Bless the Beasts and Children."
