INDIAN RESERVATION TOURS THIS WEEK
FOR SUMMER INSTITUTE PARTICIPANTS

MISSOULA--

Tours of four Indian reservations are among the highlights of the third and final week of the summer institute for school personnel which continues through Friday, Aug. 9, under the sponsorship of the University of Montana Native American Cultural Institute.

Rosella Redwolf Covington, a Crow from Wyola, who is the project director and instructor for the summer institute, said school personnel from various service areas participating in the institute visited the Flathead Reservation Monday.

Summer institute participants will visit the Blackfeet Reservation, Browning, on Tuesday, and the Rocky Boy Reservation, Rocky Boy, Wednesday. On Thursday, members of the group will go to Havre and the Fort Belknap Reservation, Hays. They will leave Hays for Chinook Friday morning and then return to Missoula.

Final evaluation of the summer institute is scheduled for 5 p.m. Friday in room 215 of the UM Women's Center.
