Sorority Life Aids Students, Says Winsor

National Officer Is a Visitor On Tour of Inspection Through Northwest

"Sorority and fraternity life gives qualities of leadership and a certain sense of what it means to work together in an organization," says Mrs. Carl I. Winsor, national councillor of Alpha Chi Omega, a visitor on the campus during the past week-end. She is also president of the American Association of University Women in Kansas.

"Fraternity training is apparent in an organization such as A. A. U. W.," she continues. "Greek letter people when out of college and working for some common interest forget any rivalry they may have felt in college and work together for the betterment of education and to raise its standards." She adds that in an organization such as A. A. U. W. the cross-section view of fraternity affiliations which is perceived tends toward a broader outlook on fraternity life.

Impressed by the beauty of the Montana campus, Mrs. Winsor feels that a far-sighted building program has been planned for the school. "You are building toward a greater university instead of being content with what you have," she said.

Mrs. Winsor is visiting this campus on a tour of inspection. She came here from Logan and Salt Lake City, Utah. This afternoon she will leave for Moscow, Idaho, and will travel from there to Pullman and Seattle, Washington.

Author of "More Died Than Men" Is Montana Grad

Treichler Was Active on Campus; Is Now Dramatics Head At Antioch

Paul Treichler, whose stirring drama of Montana history, "More Died Than Men," will have its premier performance at the Student Union theater on Saturday evening, November 23, may be classed as one of the state university's own sons.

His father, Major A. J. Treichler, who was stationed with the United States Army medical corps at Fort Missoula from the time Paul entered the university as a freshman to 1932 when he received his master's degree from the English department, was a man of many accomplishments. As well as being a fine surgeon, he was a painter, played the piano and composed music. In his work room, which Captain A. E. Roethlischer describes as one of the best he has ever seen, he had all the necessary tools for gem cutting, an art in itself.

Paul Treichler's mother was an ordained minister and was married to his father while they were both doing missionary work in the Orient.

While in school, Treichler was active in university dramatics circles, writing several plays which were produced here. Upon his graduation, he was married to Jessie Camborn, who was then serving as Dr. C. H. Clapp's secretary. He then attended Yale for a year and is now director of dramatics at Antioch college.

"More Died Than Men," which will be produced in connection with the formal opening of the Student Union building, will be the first dramatic production to be played on the stage in the new theater.

Store Furnishings Headed for Sale

Student Board Announces Disposal Of Old Soda Fountain

Sale and disposal of the present equipment in the Associated Students' store was discussed and plans were formulated by the three students and two faculty members and Manager Morris McCollum for their sale. The store board met Friday afternoon.

The fountain has been purchased by Edward Pinckney, state university graduate who owns and operates Eddie's Drug store in Polson. Other furnishings will be sold as soon as buyers are found.

The Student Union cafeteria and book store will be opened simultaneously with the Student Union building.

University Facing "Critical" Budget Problem---Scheuch

"Our university now faces one of the most critical periods in its history," F. C. Scheuch, acting president of the university, said yesterday concerning the tentative budget for the 1935-1936 school year, details of which were announced at a faculty meeting last Tuesday night.

The 1935-36 budget as prepared by J. B. Speer, business manager of the university, and presented by President Scheuch, shows a total available capital of $387,000 to care for the largest number of students ever to register at the state university of Montana.

"Our budget is threadbare," President Scheuch added, "and we will have to cut corners in every way possible, if we are to avoid exhausting our funds before the end of the year. After computing all expected expenditures, we have a budget balance of $4,666.92, the smallest budget balance ever carried. This budget balance will be used to defray unexpected and necessary expenditures which will arise during the year. It will be very, very difficult to make ends meet."

As an example of the unexpected expenses which will make staying within the budget difficult, President Scheuch pointed out that an additional $1,555 had been set aside for the maintenance of the university heating plant since during a normal year, this would be enough. If the year is an especially cold one, however, the figures will go above this total and the extra expense must come out of the budget balance of $4,666.92. It is estimated that the early cold spell last week cost the university several hundred dollars.

Balancing the budget with the reduced funds available was done by reducing the staff, reducing the amount of money set aside for necessary repairs and replacements, and reducing the capital expenditures for such equipment as chairs, scientific apparatus and other class room equipment necessities. Additional revenue resulting from a large summer school enrollment has increased the fund to be used in balancing the budget.

The total yearly expenditure of $387,000 is gained from four sources—state appropriations, interest and income from school lands, and fees.

Appropriations are $252,000 for 1935-36 for use by the university amount to $252,000, an increase of $16,800 over the 1934-35 appropriations; income from rental of federal school land and interest on investments from money gained from the sale of school land amounts to $20,000 or $1,000 less than the amount for 1934-35. This amount, with the exception of the revenue from students' fees amounting to $108,000 and $11,000 gained from sundry sources, will make up the operating capital of the university for the year. It is estimated that students' fees will bring a net increase of more than $6,750.

The original budget for 1935-36 contained estimates for fees based upon approximately the same attendance as for the 1934-35 school year. The present unexpected increase in the student registration is approximately 200 more than last year. If this increase should hold throughout the year, the budget resources will be increased by $9,000. It is unwise, however, Business Manager Speer says, to rely upon this increase because changes may take place.

Date Bureau to Aid Dateless Proposed by North Hall Co-ed

Men and women students not gifted with a politician's ability to make a pleasing first impression on meeting may have the opportunity to express their desire for companionship through a proposed "date" bureau. The originator, a North Hall freshman, has noticed the plight of many and is determined to start a movement to correct a situation that she considers serious.

The plan is as follows: A card index of all names voluntarily submitted will be made. Each card will summarize the characteristics of the particular individual as to temperament and other qualities for reference at a time when partners for an evening are desired.

Betty Hohn, who has proposed the plan, is willing to put forth every effort

Phillips Named Chief Speaker On Armistice

Rev. Jackson Will Recite Invocation; Battalions Will Parade

Dr. Paul C. Phillips, professor of history and political science, will be the principal speaker in the annual Armistice day exercises on the campus oval Monday, November 11, in which the Grizzly battalion and band will participate in the first review of the year.

Taps and the usual one minute of reverent silence included in the program, will be followed by group singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." Immediately following the singing of the national anthem, the Grizzly battalion will pass in review before the memorial tablet erected in honor of the state university men who served and lost their lives in the World War.

Invitations have been received by the university to join with the Missoula civic clubs in a general observance ceremony, but it is not probable that the joint ceremony will be held as Armistice day is not a school holiday.

The annual commemoration will open with an invocation by Rev. David E. Jackson, pastor of the Methodist church. Dr. Phillips will be introduced in a brief talk by Professor F. C. Scheuch, acting president.

Montana Spirit Ranks Huskies' Yell King Says

Whitcomb Announces New Cheering System Following Trip To Seattle

University of Washington's system of committees to promote rallies will be adopted by the university as a result of the observations made by Yell King Ray Whitcomb, who accompanied the football team to Seattle over the week-end.

Whitcomb said that a new arrangement of the student section at football games will be tried for the Montana-Oregon State game.

University men will be asked to sit in the middle of the student bleachers to lead the cheering. Plans are being made to have a parade before the game. Sororities and fraternities will be asked to enter floats in this parade.

Whitcomb said that in proportion to the size of the schools, Montana has a much better organized cheering section at games, and the student pep is better. The University of Washington does not have organizations such as Tanager-of-Spur and Bear Paw to assist in the formation of rallies.

Parents' Okehs Are Necessary For Falls Trip

Dean Ferguson Lists Rules For University Co-eds Going to Game

Dean Mary Elrod Ferguson announced yesterday a list of rules for university women who are planning to attend the Montana-Gonzaga football game at Great Falls on Saturday evening, November 9.

Co-eds may make the trip on the special train providing they have obtained a letter of permission from their parents. This letter must be written by the parents to Dean Ferguson.

If women are planning to stay over night with friends in Great Falls, they must have a letter from their hostesses in Great Falls signifying that they are expected. This letter must also be written to Mrs. Ferguson.

University women will not be allowed to stay all night in Great Falls at a hotel. In case any woman is planning to drive a car to Great Falls, she must have driving permission from her parents. This permission must be turned in to Mrs. Ferguson before the trip is made.

Montana Students Return from Tilt Praising Huskies

Many Alumni Attend Seattle Game; Grizzlies' California Fans See Washington Win

Football fans who saw the Seattle game Saturday are praising Milton Popovich and the Washington Huskies. Many students and alumni attended the game.

Among those who made the trip to Seattle over the week-end were Marjorie Mumm, Alex Blewitt, Harrison Kellum, Thomas Davis, Chester Williams, Tom Hartwig and Ray Whitcomb.

"The football game was much better than the score indicates," said Blewitt. "Montana had a large following from California, and there were several Montana alumni at the game besides the group from the university."

Marjorie Mumm said, "The game was thrilling even though the score wasn't, and it was worth the trip to see it." Miss Mumm spent the week-end with Katherine Peat, Seattle, who attended Montana university in 1931.

Tom Hartwig said he could not understand how Washington could have lost to Stanford with the team it has. "Popovich certainly starred in the game," was the comment made by both Davis and Williams. Harrison Kellum said that it was obvious that lack of reserves on the Montana team spelled its defeat. Davis, Williams, Hartwig, Kellum and Blewitt were guests of the Washington chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon over the week-end.

Former Montana students and alumni who saw the game were P. J. Malone, who was graduated from the university in 1935; Billy Burke, '33; Mrs. Billy Burke, who was formerly Jeanette McGrade; Betty Roe, who attended the university in 1933-34; Bill Whitehead, a former university student who is now attending the University of Washington, and Katherine Peat, who attended the university in 1931.

Newman Group Is to Sponsor Donation Dance

Additional Student Union Equipment Is to Be Purchased; Club Will Give Proceeds

In order that more equipment may be added to the Student Union building in time for the opening, Friday, November 22, the Newman club, headed by Joe McDowell, Deer Lodge, is holding a Student Union benefit dance in the men's gym, Friday evening, November 8.

The dance is to be a date affair and will feature Les Smith's Aristocrats and Billie Smith, whose singing has added much to the prestige the Aristocrats have acquired on the state university campus.

Bob Van Haur, Hilger, heads the dance committee. Tom Roe, Anaconda, is in charge of the ticket sale, assisted by Elizabeth Cooney, Great Falls; Katherine McCarthy, Butte; Maryalys Marrs, Missoula; Tom McCabe, Great Falls; John Fabatz, Helena; Cecil Good, Bonner; George Martin, Butte, and Charles Whittinghill, Helena. Jean Kountz, Whitehall, heads the social committee which includes Mary Clapp, and Rosemary Reidy, Missoula. Antoinette LaCasse, Missoula, and Frank Halloran, Anaconda, are in charge of decorations. Joe McDowell, president of Newman club, is in charge of music.

Van Haur stated that students could purchase tickets at 75c a couple from any members of the ticket committee and at the gate, the night of the dance.

Article by Former Student in Esquire

Bob Stansberry Mentioned in Same Issue of Magazine

"Sunset in Montana" is the title of an article which was written by John K. Hutchens for the November issue of Esquire. Hutchens attended the university in 1926-1927 and was at one time a reporter on the staff of the Daily Missoulian.

"Keen memories, with no regrets, of the greatest fiasco in the annals of the prize-fight promotion," is the way Hutchens describes his thoughts of the prize fight between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, July 4, 1923. The author witnessed the fight as a cub reporter of 17, and was thus initiated into the color of a Montana prize fight.

In the same magazine, reference is made to Montana's Bob Stansberry, who played football here and was graduated from the university in 1933. "One For the Money," written by Ike Peterson, who played football at Gonzaga university in Spokane, Washington, is the article in which Stansberry is referred to as an outstanding football player.

Facilities of Campus Offered Stricken Helena Institutions

President Scheuch Wires Intermountain Union, Carroll Colleges to Use State University Equipment In Carrying On Classwork

In an effort to relieve conditions at Helena, where the buildings of Intermountain Union college have been abandoned and Carroll college forced to suspend classes, F. C. Scheuch, acting president of Montana state university, telegraphed officials of both institutions late last Friday, offering the facilities of the university to the two colleges until other arrangements could be made.

"The state university of Montana invites Intermountain Union college and Carroll college of Helena, Montana, to make use of its facilities during their present period of trial and distress," was the text of the telegram sent to the Rev. Jesse Bunch, president of Intermountain Union college, and the Rev. Emmett J. Riley, president of Carroll college.

If the invitations are accepted, arrangements will be made similar to those made at the time the Missoula county high school burned in 1931. The colleges would bring their faculties and classes would be held in the late afternoon and evening. Temporary

Student Union Building Damaged Very Slightly By Latest Earthquake

Swearingen Notes a Few Additional Cracks in Structure Which May Be Result of Settling Processes But Will Not Effect Stability

Thorough investigation of the new Student Union building after the earthquake which was felt in western Montana last Thursday revealed cracks in the building which have not been noticed before. T. G. Swearingen, maintenance engineer, said yesterday, "As far as we know, there are a few cracks in the Student Union building which have not been noticed before, but these might be caused by the normal process of settling which is common in new buildings. None of these cracks will weaken the structure."

Swearingen pointed out that it is possible that cracks, which ordinarily would not have appeared until the building had settled, could have been caused by the quake which rocked campus structures. He also said that although the cracks have not been noticed before, it is entirely possible that they were in the building and had not attracted attention until after the earthquake.

Rumors have been circulating on the campus and in Missoula concerning the damages which were done to the Student Union building during the quake. Swearingen definitely contradicts these rumors.

Plaster fell in one of the rooms in the science hall. Otherwise there was no physical damage in any of the university buildings.

Barb Council's New President Urges Harmony

Browning Asks Friendliness Between Independents And Fraternities

Several proposed changes aiming toward an adequate resident life for non-fraternity men and women and more amiable relations between the Independents and fraternity members were outlined by Bill Browning, Beit, following his election as president of the Barb council last night.

Other officers chosen to lead the Independent students for the ensuing year are Joima Pollock, Farmington, vice-president, and Betty Eiselein, Roundup, secretary.

As the first step in the new policy the Independents will offer an all-school dance in the Student Union building shortly after its opening. Fraternity and sorority members are especially urged to attend.

"We wish to cooperate with the fraternities," Browning said, "and to eliminate the friction which has been present in the past between the two groups. We are not out to set up a strong political machine. For the present we want to give Independents a chance to enjoy social life on as high a level as is available to fraternity members. We want to help students who do not have the money to belong to fraternities to overcome the feeling that they are out of things because of it. In time we want to aid our members in getting into activities and to secure our just representation in student government."

The group decided to hold a sleigh-riding party as soon as there is sufficient snow. Ten horses and sleighs will be hired to accommodate the expected crowd of approximately two hundred members. Tentative plans call for the serving of a hot lunch following the party. Walt Shaw, Missoula, is in charge of the arrangements.

George Van Noy, Lewistown, retiring president of the organization, presided at last night's meeting.

Dr. Stevens Will Speak On Livestock Diseases

Dr. C. H. Stevens of Missoula, veterinarian, will speak to members of Phi Sigma, national biological fraternity tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the natural science building, room 207, Royal Turley, president, has announced. The range management class of the forestry school is invited to attend since Dr. Stevens' talk will be "Livestock Diseases." Refreshments will be served.

Appropriations Versus University's Progress

In today's issue of the Kaimin appears a story regarding the university budget for the school year 1935-36. We take pride in presenting this story for it is the first of its kind, to the best of our knowledge, ever to appear in the columns of the Kaimin and we feel that it is a matter with which every student, professor and parent should be acquainted.

The opening quotation of that story pointing out that the university now faces one of the most critical periods in its history is not the statement of an alarmist journalist. It is the honest, straight-forward opinion of Acting President F. C. Scheuch. Examine the figures. Appropriations for the fiscal year total $252,000. There are approximately 2,000 students in school now and the enrollment figures are expected to reach 2,100 before the end of the year. In 1925 appropriations were $356,100. There was also nearly nine thousand dollars more available from other sources. There were 1,425 students then. Twelve years ago $275 was spent on each resident student. This year the amount will be approximately $126. Back in 1918 the appropriations were approximately the same as they are for the current year. Expenses are higher than usual as the instructors have been restored 4 per cent of a 20 per cent salary reduction effective since 1932. This comes months after men in other fields have received the complete restoration of their depression pay cuts and because it is no longer possible to reduce along those lines without more seriously handicapping the university. There are added costs in administering the new Student Union building, added costs in administering the NYA, added costs for absolutely necessary equipment, added costs for needed clerical workers and added costs of operation brought on by the increased enrollment. Balancing the budget under these conditions was a problem entailing the reduction of the staff, the over-look of necessary repairs and replacements and the sacrificing of necessary classroom equipment, scientific apparatus and even badly needed chairs. By considerable scraping and figuring a balance of $4,666.92 was made possible. Out of this, however, must come all unforeseen expenditures and it is the smallest budget balance ever carried by the university. Necessary expenditures cannot be avoided. The heating plant alone, if the winter is an especially cold and severe one, will take a considerable sum from this meager fund.

It is difficult to understand why an institution definitely on the up-swing, definitely scheduled to become one of the ranking colleges of the Northwest, and at present enjoying the greatest enrollment in its history should be handicapped in this manner, forced to forego the installation of necessary equipment and to face the constant threat of failing to make both ends meet; in short, to be reduced to the level of 1918 with the expenses higher and the need for equipment and additional help greater than ever before.

You Can't Build Men With a Paddle

The Montana Exponent, student publication at the state college, recently reprinted an editorial which appeared in the Montana Kaimin under the title, "Let's Abolish It." The editorial expressed the desire to do away with "Hell Week," branding it as a medieval institution and suggesting a period of fraternity education as a substitute.

The editorial apparently received widespread attention on the Bozeman campus, resulting in considerable discussion and in the abandonment of the practice by one house there. To that house, Pi Kappa Alpha, we join with the Exponent in extending praise and congratulations. Members of that group are unlike so many other fraternities men who close their eyes to facts and even deny that the days of "Hell Week" the country over are numbered. They have shown a wise foresight and are to be recognized as the fraternity leaders of the state in being the first Montana Greek letter organization to do away with the system.

They have added another link to the ever-growing chain of fraternities which have abolished "Hell Week" and their action has brought the handwriting on the wall so close to home that it should be perfectly legible to all thinking fraternity men. There have been colleges as a whole and individual chapters which have done away with the system during the past few years. Down at U. S. C. this fall the Inter-fraternity governing board knocked "Hell Week" out of existence in Trojan fraternity houses with a commendable majority vote. What was a trickle of opposition a few years ago has turned into a flood which will soon sweep even the most egotistical die-hards over board. The only regrettable thing about it is that some groups apparently refuse to see the light. There are groups which will not do it on their own initiative and they are the groups which will be forced into it for their own good.

We reiterate our stand that "Hell Week" is injurious, both mentally and physically, that it is not conducive to good grades, that its attendant lack of sleep may result in illness, that its so-called "education" is not constructive but destructive and that the very life of fraternities, already breaking down under criticism in some localities, depends on its abolishment. Understand us—we do not mean that fraternities should not have a substitute for this period but we do believe that it should be greatly modified and shortened. And we violently disagree with the methods used to "bring out the best in a man." You can't build men with a paddle and a knowledge of their own shortcomings, driven home by harsh words in a series of disgusting sessions. Fraternities are based on ideals, good fellowship and understanding. Why not substitute a period of genuine fraternity education which will work to this end? Do away with "Hell Week" and give the pledges something actually constructive which will benefit them, their fraternities and their university. Only by so doing will the number of men ejected from various chapters for actions "unbecoming a gentleman" be reduced, the number of unpaid bills cut down, the constant devotion to a fraternity by a member, even after graduation, be gained and the tolling of the fraternity system's death knell, public opinion, silenced.

Fine manners are a stronger bond than a beautiful face. The former binds; the latter only attracts.—Lamartine.

This feature has been entitled "Dictionary to end dictionaries," but we don't want to stop yet; so keep your mind open and you'll learn lots more new words:

Dapper: for babies.

A farmer says, "The larger crops we raise, the less profit we make." The moral seems clear: throw some seeds in a flower pot and retire.

Are you aware that it's always the woman who pastes and pastes?—especially the woman who keeps a scrapbook.

Whatever trouble Adam had, No man, in days of yore, Could say, when Adam told a joke, "I've heard that one before."

The theme song of the Irish in love is "Tell it to the Maureens."

A University of Maryland frosh objected to doing outside reading because during the winter it was so cold on the porch. What would the fellow do if he were required to get a report of "On the Roof of the Andes"? We guess he never lived in a fraternity house or he'd gladly read "My Flight from Siberia"—outside or otherwise.

Here's another slogan for Mussolini: "Adawa I please."

This is no slogan, but we read it somewhere and it stuck:

"My mind is so full of
A number of thoughts,
I cannot distinguish
The 'oughts' from 'oughts'."

Once upon a time the New Haven Sunday Register ran a story which stated that "heavy penalties were imposed after Judge Pickett discovered that the two women had deliberately died on the witness stand."

A centipede was happy quite until a frog in fun Said: "Frog, which leg comes after which?"

This raised her mind to such a pitch She lay distracted in a ditch Considering how to run!

Maybe somewhat behind the Wilma schedule, but nevertheless quite clever is this blurb borrowed from somewhere: "We don't like to climb to the balcony to dance, even though we're not Fred Astaire."

At Hobart college a student enrolled this fall in a new criminology course offered there. Perhaps it was just his way of doing a bit of laboratory work before attending class, but one day he was arrested for giving the registrar a bad check, for cashing two other checks that were "hot," and for looting a fraternity house.

Down at the University of Colorado the theme song of the popular girl at fall formal is "Dancing Greek to Greek."

From a columnist's geology notes: (Professors will please not draw hasty conclusions.) A voice from the rear of the room continues—"And everybody, of course, knows what lava is." ("I'll tell the world—remember the old song, 'Lava, come back to me?' Or, 'No, it isn't volcano, it's lava in bloom.'") This thing could go on and on, but nobody would lava at it anyway, so we'd better lava it alone.—"B. Y." in Daily Trojan.

What Price Atmosphere?

Grizzlies May Pass, and So Game Is in the Bag or Air Or Plane or Something

When does an aerial game get cloudy or when do the Grizzlies start throwing passes, or what's going to be the final score of the Grizzly-Bulldog game this week in Great Falls, or—

Anyway, Doug Fessenden's chastised Grizzlies will be taking to the air, or their supporters will, or something, because the law school insists that people shouldn't cut classes.

It's all mixed up, but here are the answers:

Twelve members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon have chartered a plane for the trip to Great Falls. Why? Because some of them don't want to cut law classes. And so the Grizzly aerial attack probably will surprise the Bulldogs. If it doesn't, Montana supporters will probably go up in the air.

Those making the trip are Art Deschamps and Orin Cune, Missoula; Gordon Hoven, Antelope; James Meagher, Bob McKenna, Tom McCabe, Les Peters, Marshall Tucker, Great Falls; Al Flint, Phillipsburg; Gene Lambert, Roundup; John Shotwell, Dixon, and Bob Flint, Glasgow.

Grizzly Team First to Score Against Husky

Montana Surprises Rivals; Pass Nets Touchdown On Opening Play

University of Washington Huskies, after being held to a seven point tie in the first half, came back in the last period to score five touchdowns against a battered Grizzly team. Not until the final seconds of the first half were the Huskies able to score when, after a drive of 56 yards, Ed Nowogroski, Washington fullback, plunged over from the Montana one-yard line, and Legg kicked goal to deadlock the game.

Paul Szakach, on the first Montana play, tossed a 30-yard pass to Milton Popovich, who scampered 35 yards untouched to score the first tally. Szakach kicked the extra point and Montana led 7-0.

Field Goal Missed

Montana recovered a fumble and placed the ball on the Husky 25-yard line after a series of short passes and runs. Szakach, after three plays had been tried, missed a chance to increase the Grizzly lead when his field goal try was wide by inches.

The Grizzlies forced Phelan to take out his shock team and early in the second period the Huskies, who expected a rest, came in.

Byron Haines, early in the third period, showed his field carrying ability and sent Washington into the lead following a long run and Legg converted the point after touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, the Grizzly defense weakened and Cain, Husky left half, plunged over for the third touchdown after a sustained 36-yard march. Legg again converted the extra point.

Montana received the kickoff, and on the first play Nowogroski intercepted Szakach's pass on the 50-yard line and ran to the Montana 10. Tipton, on an end around play, scored the fourth touchdown.

Tipton intercepted another Montana pass and, after a series of plays, Ed Rullis, Husky half, raced the remaining 22 yards around left end, scoring standing up. Bond failed on the last two placement attempts.

Montana is the first Pacific Coast conference team to cross the University of Washington goal line this year. Stanford won from the Huskies, but only after Monk Moscrip had booted two field goals.

The famed Husky attack was not apparent until after three quarters of brilliant ball the Montana squad, small and badly crippled, wilted and the tremendous power of the Seattle team wore down the Montana defense.

Freshman Coach Called to Chicago

Lewandowski Will Finish Season; Ring May Return Later

George Ring, freshman football mentor, was called home Thursday because of a sister's illness. A. J. Lewandowski will coach the freshmen for the remainder of the season.

Ring, on a sabbatical leave of absence from Austin high school in Chicago where he is head football coach, has been helping his former teammate, Douglas Fessenden, Grizzly leader. It is possible that he will be back, but with the freshman schedule finished in two weeks, circumstances might make his return impractical.

He has been coaching in Chicago for seven years and has turned out many district champions. This year's freshman team, although untied, appears to be the best to represent the state university in many years.

His Long Pass to Popovich Resulted in First Touchdown Against Washington This Season

Paul Szakach, who passed 30 yards to his teammate, Milt Popovich, on the opening play of the Husky-Grizzly game in Seattle Saturday for Montana's only score of the contest. It was the first time Washington's goal line has been crossed this year. Szakach missed a field goal attempt later in the game.

--: Sporty Vents --:

Montana Grizzlies dropped their fourth conference game in Seattle Saturday to a powerful Washington Husky team 33-7. Intercepted passes played a large part in the scoring for the Huskies. When a team gets behind it must gamble to pull out of the hole. That is just what Montana did. They were shooting to win and their efforts rebounded into scores for the powerful Huskies.

Everything has been done to remove the Montana jinx. It has been burned, bruised, battered and browbeaten, but it still persists. Last Saturday it hovered over the field like a heavy fog. To look at the two benches on the opposite sides of the field last Saturday was more than an indication of the mishaps that have followed the team. On one side was the huge Husky squad, beefy and bundled, filling every seat on the long row of benches. And then across on the other side were the Montanans with twelve reserves, shivering from the damp cold.

In the starting lineup for the Grizzlies were six reserves. The regulars were sitting on the bench nursing injuries that cut their effectiveness to such a point that when they went in the game, they were practically useless after the first few plays. The alternates proved that they have the stuff from which players are made, when they scored the first touchdown and then battered the starting Huskies all over the field.

The Grizzlies have lost four men for the remainder of the season. They are Chuck Whittinghill, regular quarterback, who is out with a cracked shoulder that was re-injured in the Idaho game; Rod Welsh, with a broken arm in the Idaho game; Charles Wilcox and Don Holmquist, who have been put on the shelf by leg injuries.

Two players were lost to the squad for Saturday's game due to deaths in their families. Louis Hartsell was called home upon the illness and death of his father. Bill Flynn was called home from Seattle when his brother died.

Add to the above misfortunes the injuries that are handicapping Bob Cosgrove, Roy Babich, Johnny Sullivan and Carl Swanson and you don't have much of a squad to face Gonzaga or any of the other teams on the remainder of the schedule. Ten men virtually out of any squad would handicap it. To a squad the size of Montana's it is disastrous. If the injuries to the team keep mounting the Grizzly band will have to cancel their orders for new uniforms and don the deserted football suits.

Probably the above sounds like Montana is about to throw in the sponge and take it on the chin without resisting in its future games. Such is not the case. The remaining games on the schedule are looked forward to with eagerness by the players. THEY WILL BEAT GONZAGA NEXT WEEK AND THEN POINT FOR THE OREGON STATE GAME IN MISSOULA ON NOVEMBER 23.

Last week they were beaten by a superior squad and superior numbers, but the fact remains that they deserved to win three conference games already this year. They are out to hang up a win and Gonzaga is going to be their first victim.

Gonzaga will be at the peak of their season after their upset win over Washington State. They would rather beat Montana than any team on their schedule and they are out to do it. The Bulldogs have won two conference games this year. Their other victory was at the expense of Idaho. Three conference pelts would be quite a feather in the cap for Coach Mike Pecorovich and his team and they are determined that Montana should be added to the list of their victims.

Montana is also out to win that game. But the game that the Grizzlies will really be pointing for on their schedule is the coming tussle with Oregon State. The Grizzlies are determined to win a conference game this year and the Beavers afford the best opportunity.

Jim Braddock and Joe Louis Go Through Missoula Sunday

Heavyweight Champion Says He Plans Benefit Bout For Quake Victims

By HAROLD STEARNS

James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, and one Joe Louis, colored, pulled into town Sunday afternoon aboard the same Northern Pacific train, posed for pictures, distributed autographs and waved cheerily to a crowd of admirers. Long before the train was due to arrive, boxing fans awaited the current ruler of the mitt-slinging universe and discoursed at length concerning the relative merits of the champ and his number one challenger. The east-bound train arrived half an hour behind schedule, rumor having it that the engineer and fireman were anxious to hold conversation with Jarring Jimmy and had therefore delayed the North Coast.

Boarding the westbound train's car number 20, our first error was in mistaking a giant occupant of one of the front compartments for the champion. That case of mistaken identity being called to our attention by the flattered individual thus accosted, we departed for the rear of the coach. Another gentleman of heroic proportions arose and answered our inquiry, "Yes, I'm Braddock."

Champ Is Big

A single handshake with the mauling mountain convinced us that this particular reporter would refrain from taking notes during the interview due to a maimed mitt. In spite of the pain occasioned by Braddock's enthusiastic grip, we were able to center our attention upon the present occupant of the fistic throne. Big? And how! At least six foot two, a good 210 on any scale, shoulders that would do justice to any two huskies we ever saw. All this bulk was attired in a dark blue suit, blue tie, gray slouch hat and a light brown overcoat. Jim kept right on answering our questions as he headed for the coach steps to accommodate the photographer.

"Yes, I've seen Louis fight. He's good and no doubt about it. Plenty of punch, power and mighty shifty. But I can take him. I don't like to brag, but I think my record of knockouts can compare pretty favorably with anyone who claims to be a puncher. Besides, I think I can outbox Louis. I'll cross him up with lefts and land more than my percentage of wallops."

Emerging from the car, Braddock blinked at the brilliant wintry glare of the snow and grinned at the crowd's welcome. He posed willingly for his picture with the little dinky porter who bears the name of Jimmy's chief rival, Joe Louis, and then undertook the task of inscribing countless bits of paper and calling cards with a bold "James J. Braddock." A wag, evidently an admirer of the Chocolate Soldier, shouted from a vantage point safely in the rear of the crowd, "Look out, Braddock, here comes Louis." The champion looked up from his autographing, laughed, and kept on writing. The joker retired again into oblivion, the victim of his own wit.

Plans Benefit Bout

"I'm heading for the Pacific coast now for a series of exhibition bouts," said Jim. "I fight in Portland, then Seattle and Spokane, and then I go to various California cities. I am planning a bout with Jack McCarthy of Boston for the benefit of the Helena quake sufferers the first open date I have. The fight will be staged at Madison Square Garden or at any other convenient place. I'll stand good for the expenses of arranging the match. I've got a wife and kids myself and have had enough ups and downs to be able to realize what they're suffering in Helena."

It was evident that the man who staged a Horatio Alger rise from rags to riches by upsetting Maxie Baer to gain the heavyweight title, was sincerely sympathetic with the quake victims.

Describes Baer Fight

"Was I surprised when I licked Baer? I really wasn't. I went into that fight expecting to win and never gave a thought to possible defeat. That was half the battle. There's one thing Louis can look forward to when he meets me next June, and that is that Jimmy Braddock won't go into the ring scared of him."

The engineer pulled the whistle cord, the North Coast Limited slowly began to edge its way westward and Jimmy Braddock grinned and raised his mighty paw that has spelled defeat to the ring's best, in farewell to his Missoula friends.

Win, lose or draw, it's our bet that James J. Braddock can depend on anyone who has ever met him, being a Braddock enthusiast.

Schedule to Be Terminated This Week After Delay Caused by Cold

Interfraternity touch football teams, after a week of idleness because of weather conditions, will swing into action today at 4:15 o'clock. The schedule will be finished this week, since only six games remain to be played.

This afternoon the Sigma Nus will meet the Delta Sigma Lambda team and the Phi Deltas will play the Alpha Tau Omega club in the other game.

Thursday's encounters will complete the schedule. Phi Sigma Kappa, now in second place will meet a strong, revived Sigma Phi Epsilon team. In the last game of the season, Sigma Chi will meet the Phi Delta Theta team, which can, by defeating Sigma Chi, make a three way tie for first place, between the Sigma Chis, the Phi Sigs and the Phi Deltas.

Phi Delta Theta, defeated only by the Phi Sigma Kappa team, will be tied for first place if it beats the Sigma Chi team. However, the latter team is the only undefeated, untied and unscored on team in the race, and having won a 6 to 0 game from the Phi Sigs, who in turn defeated the Phi Deltas, will have the edge.

A first and second touch football team will be announced in Tuesday's Kaimin. Each team manager is asked to select a first and second all-opponent team and bring the results to the Kaimin office.

Sigma Phi Epsilon announces the pledging of Mark Wylse, Missoula, and Hal Eckern, Thompson Falls.

Cubs, Bullpups Practice Plays For Encounter

Lewandowski Requests All Freshmen Candidates To Drill Daily

Freshman football players will have their first chance to play a regular game Friday, November 15, when they play the Bullpups of Gonzaga. Freshman Coach A. J. Lewandowski asks that all Cubs report for practice this week.

The Cubs will play only one game this year as the game with the Bobkittens was cancelled because of a Rocky Mountain conference ruling.

This will be the only contest on which numeral awards will be based, but the showing made in play against the varsity will count almost as much.

The Bullpups are bringing a strong team to Missoula this year and hope to return to Spokane with a victory over the Cubs, one of the best aggregations in years. The Pups were defeated by the Washington State college freshmen.

No odds are given either club. It is reported that the Bullpups are giving the Bulldogs a heavy workout every night. The Cubs are learning a definite offense for this game and it is necessary that every Cub report daily to learn Montana plays, Lewandowski said yesterday.

Oh These Ties!

South Hall Lads Do Away With Flowing Cravat Worn By Daring Table Comrade

A well-planned and splendidly executed necktie party took place at South Hall Sunday afternoon. Loud, snappy, colorful ties may be in vogue in some places but they do not appear to receive the approbation of students at South. It seems that one such adornment had been injuring the aesthetic senses of the group which composed a table in the dining room. After repeated warnings and admonitions lasting over a period of days, the cravat was still very much in evidence. Something drastic was deemed necessary, so Sunday at dinner the culprit was asked a question by a member of the neighboring table. While his head was turned a formidable pair of scissors was produced and with one well-aimed snip, the snappy neckwear was parted from its owner, leaving only a short stub, somewhat resembling an abused Scotch terrier's tail.

As a great aid to digestion, psychologists have extolled the value of being happy while partaking of food; even fried potatoes would not have presented any difficulty to the tie-snippers as the chagrined tie-owner viewed the remains of a once beautiful and whole cravat.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS DISPLAYED AT MEETING

Displays of Christmas suggestions made up by six Missoula business houses for the purpose of suggesting appropriate Christmas gifts were featured at the meeting of the Faculty Women's club held at the library of the forestry building Monday. A doll display from the Episcopal church doll bazaar, prepared by the Saint Hilda's guild was also featured. At the next meeting of the club a style show and a lecture on fabrics will make up the program.

Five Reasons Why The New I.E.S. Study Lamp Is BETTER—

1. Wide opening at the top of the shade throws light to ceiling and eliminates shadows.
2. Glass reflector softens light, prevents glare.
3. Wideshade gives ample light over your work.
4. Shade lining is white to reflect more light.
5. Lamp is high enough to light a large working area.

IMPORTANT—Be sure to look for the authorized certification tag on the lamp you buy. It isn't an I.E.S. Better Light Lamp if it doesn't have this tag.

Students' Store Will Be Modern In Every Detail

Many Elaborate Features for Patrons Are Manager McCollum's Expectations

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series of eight articles to be presented in the Kaimin on the outstanding features of the Student Union building.)

When the Associated Students' store opens in the Student Union building on November 22, Morris McCollum, manager, will present to the student body the finest and most modern bookstore and fountain room in Missoula.

The store takes the entire width of the ground floor and runs back to the theater. A hallway leads from the front doors to a flight of steps to the second floor, the bookstore opening off the east side and the fountain room off the west side. Slide-fold doors, extending from the ceiling to the floor, make it possible to lock either room from the hall.

In the bookstore, book shelves finished in dark oak cover the entire north side of the room. Chairs are aluminum finish, upholstered in maroon leather. The store office is in the southwest corner and is partitioned from the remainder of the room with panels and glass.

The fountain room is arranged with the fountain, finished in maroon and blue-metallic black, on the north side. Candy showcases take up the center and booths are arranged around the sides. A panel of mirrors stands behind the bar. Chromium fixtures on the fountain are arranged in two groups to allow for quicker service. Lighting is overhead and indirect.

Fountain room attendants will wear uniforms. Men will wear white coats and aprons and white caps, all trimmed in maroon. Girls will wear a special smock that Manager McCollum is having designed in Chicago. State university insignia will be featured on both uniforms.

Between the north wall of the bookstore and the theater is a large room, fitted with shelves for the storing of books. In a corresponding position off the fountain room is a kitchen and store room.

A door leads from the foyer of the theater into the fountain room, in order that theater-goers may avail themselves of the fountain room between acts and after performances. It is planned to keep the store open during the hours the lounge will be open, approximately from 9 o'clock in the morning to 10:30 o'clock in the evening during the week.

Helena Institutions Receive Invitation

housing arrangements would be made for the visiting students, despite the fact that the university is facing a problem in trying to provide adequate housing for its own students.

The Rev. Riley sent a telegram to Professor Scheuch, thanking him for the offer, and stating that the college officials were delaying action for the present. It is the opinion of Professor Scheuch that the officials of Carroll college will attempt to re-open the college at Helena as soon as possible.

No word has been received by the university regarding the future plans of Intermountain Union college. According to press reports, Intermountain college is being transferred to Great Falls where classes will be held in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches. The women students will be housed on the fourth floor of the Deaconess hospital, and men will be temporarily housed in the basement of the Methodist church. There are 157 students enrolled at Intermountain college. Trucks were used to transport all movable teaching equipment from Helena to Great Falls.

Budget Problems Worry Officials

Expenses at the state university are especially high due to the restoration to professors of 4 per cent of the 20 per cent salary cut made in 1932, added costs of administering the new Student Union building, and the added costs in the physical plant for the heating of the new building. The increase in enrollment from approximately 1,900 in 1934, to an estimated 2,100 in 1935, will also greatly increase the cost of operation and raise the number of clerical workers and assistants needed.

Added Expenses Heavy

Other added expenses are the administration of NYA, which will take $1,000, and new equipment, additional supplies, and miscellaneous expenses which will take another $2,193.76. The employment of additional student assistants will require an outlay of $1,828.58.

As an illustration of the unusual situation that the university now faces, President Scheuch quoted a list of figures that show that in 1925, ten years ago, with 1,425 students enrolled, the appropriations from the state legislature amounted to $356,100 and the income and interest amounted to $28,939.58. Now with an estimated enrollment of twenty-one hundred students, there is available a total appro-pration of $252,000 and the amount from interest and income will be $20,000.

Twelve years ago the expenditure of state money for each resident student was $275. This year it will be approximately $126.

Balance Is $3.91

In accordance with provisions of various statutes all operation income funds were exhausted June 30, 1935, with the exception of $3.18 in legislative appropriations which reverted to the state treasury. There was a balance of $2.65 in the special revolving fund and $1.26 in the fund which results from the rental of school lands and the interest from school loans. All current bills were paid, and only a normal amount of supplies was on hand. This left a total balance of $3.91.

from rental of state lands and interest rates for the university have been so low that it has cut materially the sums of money returning each year to the university. At one time this sum amounted to $35,000 each year, but now the fund, established by these two amounts to only $20,000.

*Mild and yet they Satisfy
—how do you do that?*

Well, to start with, we take tobacco from our own Southland—mild ripe tobacco with lots of natural flavor but no harshness or bitterness.

THEN AS A SECOND STEP—

We blend this home-grown tobacco with spicy, aromatic Turkish tobaccos from across the seas. These Turkish tobaccos, you may know, have a flavor and fragrance entirely different from our own.

AS A THIRD STEP—

These tobaccos are cross-blended—welded together—the best way we've found to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette.

THAT'S WHY CHESTERFIELDS ARE MILD AND YET THEY SATISFY

In a single day people from ten different states visited our Chesterfield factories. 8,200 visitors during the past year saw Chesterfields made.
