MISSOULA--

Beginning with the 1975 fall quarter, the University of Montana in Missoula will open classes to adults through an enrollment procedure designed to serve students not presently working toward a degree but who desire to participate in University classes. Adults may register for any regularly scheduled day class through the Center for Continuing Education by completing a one-page basic data enrollment form.

The development of the program came in response to increased interest expressed by adults desiring to continue their education during the daytime hours. Many persons find one or two daytime courses per quarter that are of interest, but they have not participated due to complicated enrollment procedures. The new program provides a simple enrollment procedure specifically designed for this type of student.

Under the program, participants will pay $21 per credit hour, payable at the time they register. The only prerequisites for the students are specific course prerequisites stated in the University of Montana Catalog.

For additional information, interested persons may contact the Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs, room 107, Main Hall, or phone 243-2900. Copies of the Fall Schedule and the UM Catalog are available at the office.
