WE TAKE UP A TORCH
A JIBE AT MR. HEARST
ON HARVARD DIGNITY
SORORITY HOUSE RULES

In these days when scientists are opening a window in the galaxy to take a curious peep into another universe, when earthly prophets are proclaiming the arrival of the day when the structure of society will be changed over man's head, when all humanity is blindly groping for the answers and everyone from the astute Walter Lippman in his scholarly discourses on politics and government to the First Lady of our land in her prattlings about bargain counters and White House menus is writing a column of some kind or other, the urge has finally come to stick our own commemorative oar into the sea of events.

And so today we embark, without any set intentions, without any desire to reach a goal, but merely content to drift wherever the whims of fancy may take us. Only to two principles will we be true—to take up the tools of word etchings only when the urge is upon us, to be masters of this column and banish the haunting thoughts of so many blank pages which must roll endlessly through our typewriters, and to attempt to be interesting at all times, to present odd bits clipped from the strange granite of mankind and break clear of the shackles of the editorial column for brief moments.

Concern over cold weather has taken the place once occupied in the American mind by apprehension lest Babe Ruth should contract acute indigestion from an over-consumption of hot dogs. The American people take their weather very seriously and the American press spares no effort in order that they shall be placed in the right mental attitude toward the elements. Clamoring headlines make known the public shivers and racy accounts relate how King Winter has again pulled the zipper on his bag of Arctic weather. All of which, if the Fourth Estate is to run true to form, leaves us in delightful anticipation of Hearst's denial of the weather reports as Fascist propaganda.

From way back east comes the report of a Harvard professor who upset our long-held belief in the tradition of New England reticence and scholarly dignity by being so common-mannish as to promise to eat his shirt if he was proved wrong in an argument. Of course he was busted in the verbal tilt and our faith in the tradition was partially restored when we learned that he did not wolf the garment down as a more boorish individual in similar straits might have attempted. Rather he dissolved it in acid, then neutralized it with a base, filtered the precipitated matter, spread it in a slice of bread and devoured it—without noticeable relish, however. Naturally we are curious to learn whether or not the shirt was the shrinkable kind but we have no doubts that there is at least one professor known on which side his bread is buttered.

And from down Texas way an enterprising student reporter with a knack for second-story work has made the startling discovery that the most important of all house rules in a sorority residence is as follows: "A girl should not run her hand through her boy-friend's hair and then wipe it on the wall-paper." Need we comment?

Bates Announces Sentinel Contract

Robert Bates, Great Falls, editor of the 1936 Sentinel, announced yesterday that the cover contract for this year's annual has been awarded to the S. K. Smith company of Chicago. "We are very pleased with the design of the chosen cover," said Bates. "It is modern, smart looking and of very fine quality."

No attempt is being made to carry out the school colors on the new style cover. It is of green, black and white, and designed to carry out the artistic symmetry of the inside pages of the book. It measures 9 by 12 inches and covers 30 more pages than last year's annual. The Missoulian Publishing company has the printing contract.

Dr. Carl R. Moore Will Be Chief Speaker at Rites On Monday Eve

Dr. George Finlay Simmons Monday will be inaugurated seventh president of Montana State University—a new president inducted into office on the forty-third anniversary of the founding of the institution. Dr. Simmons is the first president to be installed on Charter day. Dr. Carl R. Moore, chairman of the zoology department at the University of Chicago, will be the principal speaker at the exercises which start at 8:30 o'clock in the Student Union auditorium.

Elaborate plans have been worked out for the ceremonies by the faculty committee on public exercises in charge of the program. Prominent citizens from all over the state, and presidents of seven northwest colleges will be in Missoula for the occasion as guests of honor.

Dr. Moore is considered one of the outstanding authorities in the world on zoology. Dr. Simmons did most of his work toward his doctorate under Dr. Moore at the University of Chicago. Dr. Moore will arrive in Missoula tomorrow afternoon and remain until Tuesday afternoon, making several addresses while here.

The Charter Day program will begin at 9:30 o'clock with an alumni council meeting, which was called by the president of the association, James C. Garlington, Missoula. At 12:30 o'clock, an alumni council luncheon will be given. All state university alumni are invited to attend these functions. ASSOCIATED STUDENTS Montana State University

To the Students of the State University:

Next week the people of Missoula and of the state will gather to do honor to Dr. George Finlay Simmons on the occasion of his inauguration as the seventh president of the university. At the same time the university will observe its forty-third birthday anniversary. In the past Charter days have meant nothing to us; we have never before had the experience of installing a president. But this year we will have that opportunity, and I wish to extend to you an invitation to take part in as many of the inaugural activities as possible to make the occasion a memorable one for ourselves as well as our president.

And so I want to urge students to attend the banquet, to join with the many prominent people who will be here to honor Dr. Simmons, and to begin with the inauguration a renewal of the drive towards "a greater Montana State university."

Yours sincerely,
JAMES MEYERS, President.

"Regulations of the Life Processes by the Endocrine Glands" is the subject of Dr. Moore's talk, in which he will discuss the part that the pituitary, thyroid, adrenals and reproductive glands play in the developing and maturing of an individual and in reproduction.

Social Control Committee Lists Suggestions And Rules for Conduct in Student Lounge

Eighteen rules and recommendations for student conduct in the Student Union lounge room were approved by the social control committee yesterday afternoon. In passing the rules, which for the most part are devoted to stressing the necessity of preserving the furniture and taking care of the room, the committee hoped to impress upon students the desirability of taking an active interest in seeing that the room was kept in good shape.

The rules ask that students pull down the Venetian blinds rather than draw the red drapes together when the sun is shining brightly; that the drape bar should be left out when a window is opened instead of pulling on the drape itself to get the iron bar back into position.

It is also requested that all large chairs not be pulled in front of the radiators as this prevents others from using them and that radios be run with moderate loudness and be operated by someone who knows how.

Chairs are not to be turned to the wall and only one person is to be allowed to each chair. No one is to sit on the arms of the chairs, although it may be done on the arms of the davenport because they are of special construction. Students are also requested to keep their feet and legs off the tables and rungs or seats of the chairs and to refrain from sitting on the tables.

If chairs must be moved, students are asked to move light ones which are not as hard on the floors and rugs as the heavy, overstuffed ones. Chairs should be returned to their proper places.

Many Notables Will Assemble For Conference

Atkinson, Holland, Simmons To Address Educators On Problems

Dean R. H. Jesse will head the educational conference which will meet at 2:30 o'clock Monday in the silver room of the Student Union building. Speakers for the conference will be President Alfred Atkinson of Montana State college, Bozeman; President E. O. Holland, State College of Washington, Pullman, and President George Finlay Simmons.

President Atkinson will speak on the financial support of higher education in Montana during the last fifteen years. "The Return to a State on Its Investment in Higher Education," is the topic which President Holland will discuss, and President Simmons will talk on "Prospects of Future Financial Support of Higher Education in Montana."

Discussion will be carried on by President Francis A. Thomson, School of Mines, Butte; President Sheldon E. Davis, State Normal college, Dillon; President Lynn B. McMullen, Eastern Montana Normal school, Billings; President G. H. Vande Bogart, Northern Montana college, Havre; President M. G. Neale, University of Idaho, Moscow; The Rev. J. A. Rooney, president of the College of Great Falls, and Elizabeth Ireland, superintendent of public instruction.

Fraternity Men Force Entry For Varsity Volley Tickets

"What Did Roberts Discover?" might well be the title of a good detective story, but it might also be called "How to Open Windows" or "Who Got There First?" Anyway, Phil Roberts, manager of the Student Union building, was awakened at an early hour Tuesday morning by his landlady who told him that John McFarland, night watchman, was on the other end of the phone. McFarland told the sleepy manager that three howling men were waiting outside of the Union building, bawled in a vain attempt to find a means of entry.

It wasn't until he reached his office in the morning, however, that Roberts discovered two members of Sigma Chi fraternity carefully parked near the doorway, determined to be the first to choose their block of Varsity Volley tickets. They had climbed in an open window and carefully locked it afterwards in order to keep competitors outside.

The three on the wrong side of the building were three members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, who finally were admitted and got second choice.

Social Control Committee Lists Suggestions And Rules for Conduct in Student Lounge

There is to be no eating, even of candy, in the lounge and at night all lights must be kept on.

Students are asked to utilize the ash trays for cigarettes, the waste baskets in the hall for paper. Ash trays may be emptied in the sand jars in the corridor.

The lamps are on short, thin cords and should be moved carefully. Students should play a part in keeping the building clean and should feel free to call the attention of others to careless habits.

The committee wishes to impress upon the students that the lounge is open, with the rest of the building, to public inspection and observation at all times and for this reason every possible effort should be made to keep the room presentable in all respects.

The Day Will Be His

Elaborate inaugural ceremonies will formally place Dr. G. F. Simmons in the presidency Monday.

Charges of Denial By Opposition Are Found False

Charges that speakers for the opposition to the student-faculty council were denied a place on the program at yesterday morning's convocation have been denied. On Wednesday night Dean C. W. Leaphart appeared before a special meeting of the Interfraternity council which had been called for the purpose of discussing the proposed new organization. It was brought up that another opposition speaker was desired. To this Dean Leaphart says he agreed, but recommended that the fraternity board secure a non-fraternity student, inasmuch as two fraternity men were already listed on the program.

The recommendation was acted upon and the Greek-letter council passed a resolution to secure an Independent student to speak. Wyman Zachary, president of the council, contacted several Barbs who expressed opposition but was unable to get one who was willing to speak. Zachary is said to have reported this to Dean Leaphart before the convocation, with a statement to the effect that he was willing to "let it pass."

Governor Holt Will Head List Of Inauguration Day Visitors

Robert Stevens To Give Recital On Union Organ

Former University of Chicago Man Will Demonstrate Qualities Of New Instrument

As a part of the Charter Day program, the possibilities offered by the electric organ will be demonstrated by Dr. Robert W. Stevens, who will give a recital on the new instrument at 1:30 o'clock. Classes will be dismissed Monday afternoon in order that students may attend the concert. Dr. Stevens, who was organist and music director at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago for 14 years, is now engaged by the Hammond Electric company of Chicago to demonstrate the new type of organ in the northwest. The student body bought the organ for the Union auditorium with funds remaining after construction was completed.

Dr. Stevens will give recitals in Great Falls Sunday afternoon and evening. In order to insure his appearance in Missoula, the highway patrol has offered its services in making certain that he will arrive in time for the concert, even if it is necessary for the patrol to clear the road from possible snow drifts over the entire distance.

Dr. Stevens is the brother of Charles L. Stevens, director of publicity in the state department of agriculture, labor and industry, and was a member of the state legislature last year.

There will be a joint rehearsal of the combined glee clubs and the A Capella choir on the Student Union stage Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Student Union Ballot Results In Plan's Okeh

Four Hundred Men, Women Give Assent to Test Of New Senate

The proposed student-faculty council will be set into operation for a two-year trial as the result of a vote taken at the convocation yesterday morning in the Student Union auditorium. Approximately five hundred students took part in the voting, and although no count was taken, it was obvious that a large majority of those present were in favor of giving the proposal a trial.

President G. F. Simmons presided over the meeting and made the opening speech. He explained the need for more interest by the students in school affairs and better relations between the students and the faculty.

Leaphart Talks
Dean C. W. Leaphart gave the principal talk of the convocation, explaining the plan, its workings and purposes. Tom Wigal, editor of the Kalmin, spoke in favor of giving the proposal a trial. James Meyers, A. S. U. M. president, opposed the council and asked that the students consider it intelligently. Dr. Lucia Mirrieles, who spoke in place of Professor E. L. Freeman, presented arguments in favor of the council and asked for an expression of student opinion upon the scheme.

A standing vote was taken, following which Dean Leaphart stated that the groups to be represented on the council will be asked to choose their delegates before February 24. It is planned to hold the first meeting of the test council March 2. It will function experimentally until January 1, 1938, at which time the students will decide whether or not it shall continue as a permanent organization.

Following the convocation, Meyers asked for careful student consideration of the council before permanent adoption. "In view of the fact that the student-faculty council seems to

A Chance—What the Council Deserves

Last spring a committee of the American Association of University Professors called together groups of eight students each to discuss with them a method of eliminating the hard feelings and misunderstandings which were apparent on this campus even to newcomers. The results of those conferences were even more amazing than had been expected, almost incredulous because of the lack of faculty knowledge of student problems and a similar shortcoming on the part of the students. But more important those conferences brought out the facts that there was little feeling of cohesion among the students, that there was little of a sense of real loyalty toward a university which had no means of cementing that loyalty and that there were many things with which the students justifiably found fault. And so the faculty committee and the many students who met with them came to the realization that here was a field wherein real work could be done. What form the proposed organization should take and from whence it should draw its membership were carefully considered so that the group would be of real benefit to the university, its students and its faculty members.

Then during the past fall those who had worked for the council started looking for a means of bringing it into being. They took it to what they considered the logical place, Central board, and after a very deliberate effort was made to railroad it forever out of existence by some members, that body finally passed a fence-straddling resolution. They went on record as "neither heartily favoring nor heartily disfavoring" the plan and recommended that those interested proceed to set it up "as they see fit."

So, with a plan designed from high motives purely to aid the students and the university, those backing the council were given no encouragement from the elected representatives of the students. Doubtless Central board was acting in the manner it supposed to be right; we do not wish to question the motives involved.

The end, or near end, of the problem of bringing it into being came yesterday. And hard on the heels of the overwhelming vote in favor of giving it a trial have come the accusations.

"Five hundred students is but a mere handful of the student body," we hear. "You can't put the plan into operation upon the vote of such a small number." The coldness of the weather no doubt kept some away, but not many—witness the crowds an A.S.U.M. election draws to the polls. But slightly more than 700 voted last spring; the previous year a grand total of approximately 600 happened to be passing the ballot boxes or thought it worth their while to bother with the business of filling 22 campus offices and incidentally of voting a 75-cent increase onto their fees. If we are to be guided by the precedent, the four hundred who said "give the council a trial" yesterday would comprise a fair majority in any general campus election.

As to the charges of railroad, were not those who worked for the acceptance of the plan for so long justified in asking for an expression of opinion after the explanatory talks? They may have been wrong in assuming that the vote made the plan operative or, on the other hand, they may have been justified in the feeling that the majority, multiplied proportionately in accordance to the total number of students, would indicate a preponderance of opinion in favor of the scheme.

Through all this haze, the only logical course still seems to us to give the plan the trial it asks. We can not, in all justice, condemn it until this is done. In its proposed form it may not seem practical to some of us, but surely, it is not proved impractical until given a trial. If the council cuts its own throat or dies a natural death before the trial period has expired, there certainly will have been no harm done. The sensible action now is to carry the experiment through to a conclusion or until it is proved impractical; send delegates with open minds, keep the council free of petty grievances and give it the chance it deserves.

The University's Seventh President

Indeed fitting it is that the forty-third anniversary of the founding of Montana State University should be chosen as the date for the inauguration of Dr. George Finlay Simmons as the seventh president of the institution. The 1936 Charter day seems destined to begin a new era in the progress of the state university, for with the installation of a new and acknowledged progressive president he will formally commence his duties. Alumni of the institution, legislators, presidents of the various other branches of the Greater University, state officials, members of the judiciary, high school educators and many other friends of Montana will be present to witness Dr. Simmons' inauguration and do him honor. Dr. Carl H. Moore, one of the nation's outstanding zoologists will deliver the chief address at the installation of his former student.

Dr. Simmons takes up the reins of the presidency of the university at the most crucial period in its history. The institution has been forced to operate upon a budget intended to care for the educational needs of a student body one third the size of the present undergraduate population now attending Montana State University. Faculty members have been forced to carry on their work with the seriously limited teaching facilities at their disposal. Insufficient classroom space, inadequate equipment and no funds forthcoming with which to remedy the situation—these difficulties are but a few of those which Dr. Simmons will have to meet and surmount as president of a school which just this year entered the ranks of collegiate institutions boasting more than 2,000 students.

It is no easy task which confronts the seventh individual to occupy the presidential chair but rather a grueling upward climb which few are ever called upon to undertake. That task, however, will be made a far easier one by unflinching loyalty and co-operation from every student, faculty member and friend of the institution which Monday celebrates its forty-third birthday.

The poison of politics is mixed in the bread of relief.—Herbert Hoover.

PARABLES OF HUDAMORE THE SEER

And lo it came to pass that while Hudamore the Seer sat in his garden and munched upon Roots and Herbs, he was visited by a multitude of young men who had Long Pans and Sour Dispositions, moreover.

And there was a great chorus of Moaning and Sobbing before the elected speaker of the group did make known the cause of the discomfiture and the Sorry State of all.

So he spake: Oh ye of Great Knowledge, we are Sore Grieved at the system of Poor Communication which exists in your residence halls. For no matter the time of day, never is it possible to call one of these shoddy wretches on an long wait, caused by some male telling his Best Loved words of no import.

And when at last one is fortunate enough to get the right floor, the female answering dost misunderstand the name, and in the Final Analysis you have talked to half the Skirts in the hall, before discovering your fem has long since departed for places unknown. What solution offerest thou?

And the Seer answereth them saying: There exists no remedy for your troubles, oh Ye of No Aforethought. Either should you go for those who abide in the city or sorority houses, or dispense with the company of Fair Ones entirely, for it is written that those who are prone to Keep Company with dorm inhabitants must accustom themselves to such inconveniences, and to the Spectre of Jangling Keys.

Sylvia Backholm, Irene Foote, Lois Rice, Helen Heidel, Betty Schultz, Elaine Baskett, Harriet Calhoun and Dorcas Kelleher are those who will perform. "It is especially fitting," said Professor John Crowder, professor of piano, "that a two-plane program should be presented by the music school immediately following the Barrett-Robertson recital. Comparisons of the techniques of the artists and the student musicians can more accurately be given." Sunday's program:

"Two truly played with the skill of one and the imagination of two" last night when Rae Robertson and Ethel Bartlett won a capacity crowd in the Student Union auditorium.

That two individuals could display such perfect synchronization seems impossible but in this ability lies the greatness of this delightful English pair. Rhythms were as flexible and fluid as if they came from a single hand and more, the dynamic and tonal qualities of the two players were so perfectly matched that it was impossible for the sharpest ear to detect where the work of one began and the other left off. Nor could one tell which was taking the leading melodic line of the moment. The eye alone had to judge—as it can—of such things as the entries of the two individual players. And lastly, what was even more amazing, they never watched each other. A slight signal at the beginning to insure a simultaneous start, then each bent over his or her piano and proceeded as a solo pianist. With such equipment, these two convincingly displayed that they are sensitive, discriminating, persuasive interpreters of the music of their composers. For once a two-piano pair demonstrated that mechanical precision and trick team-work are not all the medium has to offer.

Outstanding numbers on a program of delightfully appealing music were Schuman's Andante and Variations in which the sparkling clarity, perfect ensemble and crystalline coloring given to the first movement were a joy to hear. The Andante displayed other virtues; a softer tone color and an enviable capacity to handle a long lyric line and more difficult slow rhythms with the same flawless ensemble.

Next in its appeal was the much hackneyed yet still compelling Blue Danube Waltz by Strauss. Its beautiful lilting melody never sounded so truly musical as it did last night.

Bartlett and Robertson, however, would have won any audience, even had they been unable to play a note. It is all too seldom that two performers can boast such delightful personalities as did these really great musicians who thrilled Missoula music lovers last night.—H. G. S.

D'Arcy Dahlberg Publishes Novel Of Reservation Life

D'Arcy Dahlberg, former university student, is the author of a novel "The Surrounded," published recently by Dodd Mead & Company of New York. "The Surrounded" is the story of a young half-breed living on an Indian reservation. Its author spent much of his youth on the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana. He has brought to the story much of the Indian feeling for nature and natural things, and has incorporated in it many of the old Indian legends and histories.

Dahlberg, who since has changed his name to D'Arcy McNickle, was an English major at the university from 1921 to 1925. Later he studied in England and France and at Columbia university. At present he is in Washington, D. C., engaged in one of the government's writing projects. Although "The Surrounded" is his first novel, he is the author of several short stories.

Grizzlies Will Meet Bobcats Tomorrow Night

Invaders Have Average of 37 Points a Game

Tilt Will Be First of Two To Determine State Basketball Title

Montana's sophomore Grizzlies, undefeated in state intercollegiate realms, will meet the invader Bobcats of Montana State college tomorrow night in the first of a two-game series to determine the state basketball title.

The Bobcats, in 33 games played in Missoula, have won 18 and in the last three years, only two of six. So far this season they have averaged more than 37 points per game in winning four out of 10 games played against Rocky Mountain conference foes, and have defeated Fresno State twice and Dillon Normal once, by a score of 65-32.

"Brick" Breeden, coach of the Bobcats, will have 12 players available, nine of whom met the Grizzlies this year in football. Bill Ogle, sophomore letterman from Livingston who has been switched to forward after being one of the highest scoring guards in the Rocky Mountain conference last year, will start in one berth, with Ed Exum, letterman from Dillon, in the other forward position.

Center Is Range

Ell Doyra, six foot four-inch veteran center, is a two-letterman from Sand Coulee. Bill Stebbins, whom Breeden says is the best guard seen in action during the current conference season, is another two-letterman. He will start with Pete Vavich, erstwhile Bearcreek Bearcat, who earned a starting position by his excellent playing in the last Utah game. Al Zupan and James Taylor, letterman, and Al Feldman, a newcomer from Terry, will be available as forwards. John Barovich, a transfer from Denver university, is a veteran who alternates with Doyra at center. Russ Wills, who was a reserve last year, and Howard Dissley and Rod McKay, newcomers, are the guard reserves.

Last year the Cats won the first of the two-game series played in Missoula, 56-39, to win the state title, and in the second the Grizzlies upset them, 43-31.

Coach A. J. Lewandowski will probably start Captain Hank Blastic, who has scored 139 points this season, with his running mate, Bob "Cat" Thomson, who leads all Grizzly shooters with a total of 155 points. Glover, who has made 95 points, is the likely center candidate to start. Charles Miller, high-scoring guard with 75 counters, and another Anaconda Copperhead, Paul Chumrau, will be starting guards.

Doug Brown and Keithley, a veteran, are first forward alternates; Don Holmquist and Ray Stevens, centers, and Tom Mitchell, guard. Norris Quam, John Marsh and John Castles are the reserves.

Phi Sigma Kappa Hoopsters Defeat Sigma Chi, 23-21

D. S. L. Team Takes Close Game From S. A. E. and Humbles A. T. O. Cagers

The D. S. L. squad came through to win a close tussle, 21-18, from the S. A. E. last night. The game was evenly fought all the way, with the score at the half being 10-9 in favor of the S. A. E. The S. A. E. led the way during most of the second half, until the closing minutes when the D. S. L. team came up with a strong rally to win by three points. Pettola led the winners with 12 points followed by Wheat of the losers with eight.

In the second game the Sigma Chi led all the way to win a 15-11 victory over the A. T. O. basketballers. The Sigma Chi were at no time threatened seriously by the A. T. O.s, although the score was close. At the half the Sigma Chi led by the close margin of 8-6. High point man in the game was Stone with six, Hartsell and Lein following with four each.

Phi Sigma Kappa, held scoreless in the first 13 minutes, came back in the last half to defeat Sigma Chi, 23-21, Tuesday. Long shots by Joe and Nick Mariana in the closing minutes of the game kept the Phi Sig team undefeated in the Interfraternity round-robin basketball tournament.

Bob Stone and Lou Hartsell kept scoring for Sigma Chi to take a 15-4 advantage at the end of the first half. Joe Mariana with nine points was the high-point man and was closely followed by Hartsell with seven points.

Delta Sigma Lambda trounced Alpha Tau Omega, 19-7, in the second game Tuesday night. Both teams made frequent substitutions. Seldenticker, with nine points, took individual scoring honors for Delta Sigma Lambda, while Lien scored most for the losers.

Sporty Vents

The Bobcats are coming, and in their wake is the best record made by a state college team since the halcyon days of the now dormant Golden Bobcats. The Farmers from over the hill have beaten every team in their division of the conference, although their play has been as inconsistent as the weather . . . that is, before the blizzard set in.

o-o-o

The Cats have won one game of four from the Utah Aggies, Rocky Mountain conference champions last year, and a good bet to retain their title; two of four from Brigham Young, and split a series of two games with Utah university. Their standing in the conference now is third place, with four games won and six lost. The Bobcats have averaged 37.8 points per game, while their opponents have hit the hoop for an average of 47. The difference lies in two games where the Cats took merciless beatings from opponents.

o-o-o

Pacing the Bozemanns are Eli Doyra at center and Ogle at forward. Both of these players have an unfailing eye for the basket and when they are on can loop them from any angle. In one game last week against Utah university, Ogle hit the hoop for 16 points before he was taken from the game on personal fouls.

o-o-o

The Grizzlies will have to play far better than they have if they are to beat the Cats. They will be at a distinct disadvantage in height, where the Bobcats average well over six feet. The Bobcats have been playing in one of the best basketball conferences in the country, and will have an edge in experience.

Plans for M club tournament are entering the final stage. The tournament yearly is the outstanding event of the winter quarter, and each year has almost as big a crowd as the basketball games. Seven boxing matches

Grizzlies Defeat Polytechnic Quint After Slow Start

Captain Blastic and "Cat" Thomson Are High Point Men; Game Score Is 49-31

The university Grizzlies added Billings Poly to their list of victims in home games by defeating the Crusaders by a score of 49-31 Wednesday night.

After a slow start the Poly led 5-4, but baskets by Blastic and other Grizzlies gave the Grizzlies the lead which they never lost throughout the rest of the game.

The half-time score was 25-19 and after that the Grizzlies retained their safe lead. Blastic was high point man with 16 tallies and Thomson followed closely with 15. For Billings Poly, Kansas led with 10 points. Lewandowski substituted freely.

D. Brown Leads In Annual Contest

Douglas Brown, Grizzly forward, is leading the field with 22 out of a possible 25, in the annual free throw contest. Carter Williams, Joe Mariana and Ken McGovern are tied for second with 19 each.

Because of the cold weather, Harry Adams, director of minor sports, has extended the time for the opening round through Tuesday. The 16 men to make the highest number out of 25 gift tosses in the first round will take 25 more shots in the second elimination. One hundred shots will be required before the contest ends.

Mrs. LeClaire Makes Health Service Report

Statement Shows That 2,810
Students Were Treated
Autumn Quarter

Two thousand eight hundred ten visits were made to the health service office by students during the autumn quarter, according to a report made this week by Mrs. A. F. LeClaire, director of the university health service. Of this number, 1,659 visits were made by men and 1,151 by women.

The report shows that 2,352 students were treated for colds and minor ills, 335 dressings were made, 143 students were referred to doctors, and 140 were sent to the infirmary.

Sixty men and women were sent to the hospital during the quarter. Twenty-four contagious diseases were reported to the office—21 cases of scarlet fever and three cases of smallpox. Ninety-six students took the cold serum before the first of the year.

One death, that of Norman Hanson, Whitefish, who died during the Christmas vacation after a short illness, was reported to the office.

The business office is preparing a financial statement of the health service, which will be published in the near future.

Coal Piles Fade in Cold Snap Saturday's Consumption Is Thirty Tons

If three people had to shovel coal into the furnaces at the university heating plant last Saturday, each one would have had to put one scoop shovel of coal on the fire every minute during the 24-hour period.

There are not three unlucky people who have to shovel the coal in put in a large overhead bin which oozes it upon a massive cast iron belt which moves slowly through the furnace, igniting the coal as it moves. When it reaches the end of the furnace the coal is burned out and the ashes fall off and the belt moves its round. There are two of these gigantic furnaces, which provide heat for all university buildings including the residence halls.

According to the heating plant records, last Saturday was one of the coldest days recorded. The minimum temperature was 26 degrees below zero and during the 24-hour period approximately thirty tons of coal were used. There are two other dates at which the temperature reached 26 have been hurried through by the vote of a small body of students who were given a lot of ideals as to its scope and power and no definite plan of mechanical workings," he said. "It seems to me that the students should give much thought and consideration to its trial before adopting it permanently."

Meyers Asks Clarity

He said that the questions as to how it is to function are not clearly answered by its backers since under the proposal, it is not to be given any legislative or executive powers. Whether or not it would encroach on the rights and duties of the organizations already set up, he believes is still problematical.

"I know that answers have been given to all of these questions, but I am sure that the students don't understand."

It is proposed that the delegates to the council be picked immediately. There will be one delegate from each fraternity and sorority house on the campus. There will be 18 independent students, the same total as fraternity-sorority people, to be picked as follows: One by each school, one by the division of biological science, two each by the divisions of the humanities, the division of social sciences and the division of physical sciences; one by each residence hall and one by the Independent organization. Five faculty representatives have been chosen to serve on the council from the university's non-central administrative members. They are Dr. Lucia Mirrieles, Professor Anne Platt, Dr. R. L. Housman, Dean C. W. Leapheart and Professor E. L. Freeman.
