MISSOULA--

The pads go on and the individual battles for starting berths become a head-to-head affair Friday afternoon when the University of Montana football team has its first session of live contact.

The squad will take the field at 3:30 p.m., but it will be close to 4:30 before the scrimmaging begins, according to Coach Jack Swarthout.

Swarthout said that practice has been going well. "The attitude of the players is real good. They have been working hard and are rounding into shape," Swarthout commented.

The Grizzlies have been practicing without pads the past three days and Swarthout said that he was anxious to see his charges "knock heads."

Friday's session will be conducted on the field back of the Fieldhouse.

NOTE--The Grizzlies will scrimmage at Dornblaser Saturday, but the time of the scrimmage is still to be decided.
