The Montana Grizzlies rank eleventh nationally in team defense according to the latest National Collegiate Sports Services statistic release.

Montana's yield of 62.6 points per game is only two-tenths of a point higher than tenth-ranked St. Joseph's and a strong defensive effort by the Tips in tonight's game with Weber State and Saturday's game with Northern Arizona could move them into the top ten.

Pennsylvania leads the nation in defense with a yield of 55.5 points each game. National powers UCLA and Marquette are members of the top ten as is Air Force, a team that Montana played earlier in the season.

REMINDER

Saturday night is family night at Adams Field House. An entire family can gain admittance to the Montana-Northern Arizona game for a $3 fee.
