Wheeler Given Trophy, Elected Team Captain

C. H. McLeod Cup Awarded to Ronan Sharpshooters; Men Beat Women in Last Match of Season; Fickes, McNamara Also High

Grace Jean Wheeler, Ronan, was awarded the C. H. McLeod trophy and elected captain of the university women's rifle team for 1939-40, at the conclusion of the university men-women's match last night.

The C. H. McLeod trophy is given to the member of the women's team who makes the highest average in all official recorded shooting in the Garden City league. This trophy is the highest award which a university woman marksman can win.

Miss Wheeler's scores throughout the past season have been high for one who had little previous experience. She is a sophomore. Peggy Shannon, Missoula, co-captain this year, won the trophy in the 1937-38 competition.

MEN TRIUMPH IN LAST MATCH

University men defeated university women, 2470 to 2450, in the final match of the Garden City Rifle association, on the ROTC range last night.

Grace Jean Wheeler, Mary Catherine Fickes and Stuart McNamara shared high-score honors with 284 each.

Women's team totals were: Carl-obelle Button, 276; Audrey Darrow, 273; Doris Graewin, 261; Dorothy Ann Murphy, 267; Peggy Shannon, 279; Shirley Timm, 269; Grace Jean Wheeler, 284, and Mary Catherine Fickes, 284.

Class to Elect New Delegates

Other business brought before Central board was arrangements for Interscholastic Track week ticket petitions. The arranging was left in the hands of Paul Chumrau, who will prepare the petitions.

Senior election place was not decided upon but will be announced later.

According to word received on the campus yesterday, Miss Rector will visit the United States in May. She has been in the Canal Zone for the last three or four years.

Government Agency in War Remains as Testing Service

Dr. J. P. Rowe's Public Service Division of the Geology department began functioning in 1918 as an experimental station for the U. S. government. The department was used to test samples of war minerals which the government was looking for in the northwest region.

"There was a need at that time for an experienced staff of mineralogists to test the numerous samples of ore which people were sending in to be tested for the various minerals needed in the making of war materials," said Dr. Rowe.

"We took hold of a real job as there were about 2,700 samples sent to us during that year. Among these was a sample of ore from the largest deposit of chromite in the state."

When the government no longer needed this testing service, Dr.

Legislators Hear Report Of Inquirers

Board Lauds Dormitories, Praises School Spirit Of U Students

Re-establishment of the chancellor system of control over units of the Greater University of Montana was suggested last night in the house of representatives by the committee of inquiry which was on the campus between February 4 and 8. The report described the present plan of supervision as "inefficient and ineffective."

The committee also concluded (1) that the Montana State university student body spirit is good; (2) that the dormitory system is commendable; (3) that ASMSU fees are justifiable; (4) that supervision had at times neared censorship, but had never become unreasonable in connection with teaching or speaking; (5) that serious dissension exists within the faculty, which they "severely condemned," and (6) that there has been "too much downtown interference" in university affairs.

Concerning the state board of education, the inquirers said "We believe that this supervisory board should be remodeled so that it would in fact become a real state board of education, and we seriously suggest that members of this board should not be appointed from cities having units of the Greater University of Montana."

COMPROMISE ON LEVY LIMIT

Senate and house committees compromised yesterday to reduce the proposed greater university levy limit of four mills to three and one-half. The bill over which the compromise arose provides for the question to be submitted to electors at the next general election.

Rowe, instead of abandoning the project, kept the service and named it the Public Service Division of Geology.

"This free identifying service has been used for 21 years and an average of from five to fifteen people send samples to the department each week. Many interesting samples have been found and the service has helped a large number of people in the state. We are now receiving samples from all over the northwest, with Idaho, Washington and Wyoming contributing."

What We Need Is a Club To Investigate Clubs

Montana State college's student government has decided to crack down on the school's collection of 72 student clubs, groups and societies. The senate, student governing body, has ordered all campus organizations to show cause for their existence.

In a written report to the senate each organization must list its purposes, contributions made during the last college year, list of dues and fees, meeting schedule, membership and qualifications.

"We are attempting to find a basis," said Bill White, president of the student body, "upon which to begin recommending the removal of at least a few of the 72 organizations on the campus that are demanding too much of the average student's time."

Campus organizations undoubtedly contribute much to the student's academic and social background. All the advantages of higher education are not to be secured from textbooks and lectures. But it will be interesting to see how many of the college's organizations can show sufficient cause for existence.

Also interesting would be a similar investigation at Montana State university. Members of almost any campus organization can easily see the advantage of doing away with several other organizations.

Take, for instance, the sad case of Joe Student. In his freshman year Joe did pretty well by his studies. He belonged only to one fraternity and one beer-drinking society. During his sophomore year Joe became a member of a service society and a badminton bund, but by cutting down on his coke-hour and devoting the time formerly spent on informal discussion to study he managed to get by.

Joe's junior year was pretty well divided among a professional honorary, a bicycling society, choir practice, a club news-letter and a political organization known as the Young Reactionaries.

Now it's Joe's senior year. By rigorously excluding all but the most necessary organizations of which he is a member Joe has managed to work out a pretty good club schedule and even attends a class now and then. But he's getting round-shouldered from wearing all those keys on his watch-chain.

Fortunately the average student doesn't spend as much time on his organizations as Joe does. But he does help to perpetuate a number of clubs and societies which are demanding a large total of student hours and student money every year. An investigation of the organization situation at the university might determine whether those hours and funds add up to benefits to the school and to the students equal to the outlay.

Students interested in such an investigation might form a Club Investigation club, elect officers, collect dues, buy a page in the Sentinel and draw up a constitution.

Warren-Designed Scenery To Use Varied Combination

Settings for Montana Masquers' three one-act plays, to be presented Thursday in the Student Union theater, combine realism, impressionism and representation in scenery. The settings, designed by Bob Warren, will utilize the circular stage constructed for "The Adding Machine" to facilitate rapid shifting between plays.

Jake Rangitsch Saves Program

There's something of the trouper in Jake Rangitsch, Student Union building janitor. There's a certain versatility about laying aside a broom for a baton to save the show. For the anniversary concert last Thursday Director Clarence Bell and three or four of the band members planned to fake a bit of discord in "London Suite." Then Harrison Kellum, a graduate of '38, was to come to the rescue and successfully lead them through.

For days, during rehearsal, Jake watched as he worked in the auditorium and he thrilled to the stirring marches and lilting swing. The success of the concert became of vital importance to Jake.

On Thursday afternoon word came that Kellum was ill and could not join in the evening's celebration. Disappointed Bell told his fellow conspirators they'd have to drop that discord number. But Jake had been watching. He'd liked that part. He was sure he could do it and so he volunteered.

Came the night of performance. "London Suite" was next on the program. Three times Bell tapped for silence as discordant notes blurred the melody. The majority of the band members looked troubled. Down the aisle stalked a smiling Jake. Like a professional he raised the baton and the band swung out clear and loud. The janitor had saved, and stolen, the show.

STUDENTS ENTER HOSPITAL

Roma Fullberg, Stark, and Donald Satterthwaite, Great Falls, were admitted to St. Patrick's hospital yesterday. Emily Marlow, Helena, was admitted to the Thornton hospital.

The first play, "Columbine," will have a realistic background, representing a cheap New York flat, wherein Sally and Minnie as characters conflict over the former's first love affair. Lighting, costuming and properties will help establish the metropolitan atmosphere.

Impressionism determines the setting for the second play, "A Morality Play for the Leisured Class." Four interiors are depicted by the same number of levels and connecting staircases. "Blackouts" will be used to indicate passage of time.

Background for "Special Assignment" is representative, combining drapes, properties and identifying features to portray an officer's dugout. Lighting and costuming will follow the war theme, and sound effects will aid in producing the required mood.

JANESTORMS

Not only is the pen mightier than the sword, Zimba, the campus great dane, falls in the same classification. The advanced army men were swinging down the highway Monday when Zimba came bounding from the opposite direction barking fiercely. Major Caulkins swallowed hard twice, took a few jerky steps forward and then hoarsely commanded "To the rear! March... quick!"

Sunday night we got a telephone call and it said, "This is Jack Hay... I'll have none of it... keep my name out."

A book could be written on that, but let's do it the mild ladylike way. We are just an ordinary human being with ordinary human interests and you aren't one of them. Remember that. Countless men have lived and blundered and eventually died—they'll go on that same way, on and on. You're just one of the pattern as we are. You don't matter. We don't matter.

God is good. Our paths may never cross.

It's getting so nowadays that an ordinary student can't tell whether he's in the School of Business Administration or a clip joint what with Dean Line bringing his electric razor to school and shaving in his office every day.

Revenge is sweet and it's the woman who pays—viewing, as we usually do, both sides of the problem. Garvin Shallenberger and Clarke Irvine got even Monday night in the student cave by smearing very red and very greasy lipstick over the howling faces of Katie O'Rourke and Annice English.

Speaking of publicity hounds other than Jack Hay, Phi Sigma Kappa jarred loose by the good luck of the neighboring brotherhoods, have launched an extensive publicity and advertising campaign.

The Sigma Chis received a phone call the other night allegedly from the Harlem Globe Trotters asking them to come out to see the brothers perform.

Montana Basketeers Have Heavy Practice For Bobcat Conflicts

With the toughest test of the basketball season just around the corner, Coach Jiggs Dahlberg has but two days left in which to prime his Grizzly machine for the impending state championship struggles with the Montana State Bobcats here Friday and Saturday. The Grizzly cagers went through two stiff but spirited scrimmages Monday and Tuesday. Today they are scheduled to work on defense, passing and fundamentals.

If the Grizzlies can take both games from the Bozeman crew, they will wear the crown for the first time in five years. If the series here ends in a split, the Bobcats will take the title back to their lair for another year.

Last for Two

Coach Dahlberg is relying chiefly upon two tall seniors in Montana's quest for the title. Captain Jim Seyler at center and Forward Bill Lazetich, in a temporary scoring slump, will be playing their last games against their rivals from the Aggie institution. It will be Lazetich's twelfth meeting with the Bobcats, and Seyler's eleventh.

Bill Hall, high-scoring center or forward, sharp-shooting Barney Ryan at forward; Art Merrick, steady guard; Frank Nugent, who usually plays his best game against the Bobcats; Don Sundquist at forward and "Gunner" Shields are due to see most of the action in the title series.

Teams on Paper

Bobcats boast of a better winning record than the Grizzlies, having won 17 and lost nine, while the university team has won 15 and dropped 13 against tougher opposition.

Statistics show that, despite the evenness of the two games played earlier in the year at Bozeman, Grizzlies have the edge in scoring. Taking the teams which both schools have met on the court during the year, Grizzlies have won six of nine, averaging better than 51 points as against 40. Against the same teams, Bobcats have won seven of ten, averaging 40 points against 40 points.

Bobcats placed third in the orphan section of the Rocky Mountain conference. While not in any conference, Grizzlies have won from Washington State once and dropped two close games, 33-41 and 28-34, to Washington.

Forestry Club Downs Maine

Montana Forestry club's rifle team won over the University of Maine club team in a telegraphic meet shot on February 17, by a score of 1798 to 1696. The match was based on the scores of the five highest men. Ten Montana foresters and eight Maine men shot.

Howard Doyle of Montana led all shooters with a score of 374. High man for the Maine team was Craig, who shot 348. This was a lower score than any of the five high Montana scores.

Individual scores for Montana were: Doyle, 374; Thelen, 362; Yaggy, 357; Dufour, 354; Milodragovich, 351; Jackson, 346; Griffith, 344; Berven, 316; Hedman, 276, and Duffy, 229.

Scores for the Maine team were: Craig, 348; Cranch, 342; Trask, 336; Gray, 336; Stockholm, 334; Duby, 312; Wenger, 265; Demant, 305.

Waring Problem Will Be Subject Of Math Meeting

A problem which originated in 1770 and was not solved until 1937 will be discussed by Dr. Harold Chatland, instructor in mathematics, at 7:30 o'clock tonight before a meeting of Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary. The meeting will be in Craig 303.

Dr. Chatland says he would need 140 lecture hours to state the Waring problem adequately even to graduate mathematicians. At tonight's meeting he will give the history of the problem. No details on its solution will be mentioned.

L. E. Dickson of the University of Chicago, one of the best known mathematicians in the world today and the professor under whom Dr. Chatland did graduate work, solved the problem in 1937. Dr. Chatland is doing research work upon the subject now.

Stated simply the problem says that every integer is the sum of four squares, nine cubes, 19 fourth powers, etc., progressing according to a certain formula.

Skiers Name Maden Head

Foresters elected Austin Maden, Hamilton, as president of the Forestry Ski club at an informal meeting during last Sunday's ski trip up Pattee canyon. Maden succeeds Bud Vladimiroff, Chicago. Bob Doull, Butte, was elected vice-president and Jack Trump, Kahoka, Missouri, secretary-treasurer.

"Twenty people were on the last ski trip," said Gene Elliott, Billings. "Pattee canyon is in fine condition for skiing and we plan to make the last ski trip of the quarter this Sunday."

Emblems for ski club members have been ordered and will be here soon. They consist of a green tree, brown M and black crossed skis on a white background, surrounded by a green border.

High Scorer For Cagers Is Biff Hall

Rangy Sophomore Center Leads Shot-Makers; Ryan Second

Leading Grizzly scorer, with but two games left on the book, is Sophomore Bill Hall, Montana's rugged center, with 229 points. The big South Dakotan has 76 field goals and 77 free throws to his credit.

In second place is Barney Ryan, junior forward, who trails Hall by 13 points with a total of 216, followed by Senior Lazetich, forward, with a 210 total.

Captain Jim Seyler's 125 and Art Merrick's 122 points bring the total number of players making over 100 points up to five.

AN OPEN LETTER TO . . .

The Grizzly Basketball Team,
Montana State University,
Missoula, Montana.

Dear Fellows:

Well, it has been a long and tiresome season for all of us, hasn't it? Behind you lies a record full of ups and downs and both big and bad moments. To most of you, the campaign has been comparatively quiet and colorless, due, perhaps, to the schedule itself and the switch from the Northern Division league to freelancing. Montana has a good team this year and the times it failed to spark were not calamities but just the way this unpredictable game of basketball goes sometimes.

Physical exhaustion cost you those games on the Rocky Mountain tour at the start of the season, while the coast invasion was simply a matter of power and tradition to beat. Washington bested you by six and seven points and that's nothing to fret over. The Huskies are playing mighty Oregon day after tomorrow for the Northern Division championship. You didn't look so bad against Idaho. Three bright spots on the scorebook were the victories over Gonzaga but the highlight of the season was the stirring win over Washington State in a game in which you clearly proved your ability.

Guess you found the Bobcats tougher than they were supposed to be, eh? Too bad you couldn't have taken that second one. No doubt you are aware of the coming two games with Montana State here which close the season.

The Bobcats have held the state hoop title since 1934, when Jimmy Brown and Bill Erickson beat the cowpunchers four times in a row. You have a rangy, scrappy team, probably one of the best in university history, and certainly the best in the last half-decade, to fight for the coveted crown. In order to bring the season to a glorious end, nothing would be sweeter than a pair of trimmings over your arch foes. The student body, townspeople and even far-away alumni feel that these are two games you must win.

But we can't demand any more than that you do your best; that's all anybody can ask. So when you take the floor Friday night, by-gones will be by-gones and from Dr. George Finlay Simmons to the unfortunates in the infirmary, we'll be behind you 100 per cent. And not very far behind!

Yours with the best of luck,
STUDENTS OF MONTANA
STATE UNIVERSITY.

Senior Loggers Plan Trip Of 3,322 Miles in 24 Days

Forestry seniors will travel a total of 3,322 miles on their annual spring trip, which will probably start about April 23. This might be just an after-dinner walk for Paul Bunyan, but it will take the foresters 24 days to complete their excursion through Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California and back to Montana.

The longest jump in one day will be from Burns, Oregon, to Susanville, California, a distance of 303 miles. They will average 138.41 miles per day if everything goes as planned.

From Missoula, the seniors will go to Idaho and then into Washington to visit mills and nurseries. In Oregon they will be taken on a range inspection tour and will observe logging operations. Redwood logging will be studied in California, and the highlight of the trip will be a three-day stopover at the San Francisco exposition.

The group plans to stop for three days at Eureka, California, to watch redwood logging and milling, and then to cut back into Oregon and up to Washington, where the foresters will visit Grand Coulee dam and the Mount Hood government camp before returning to Missoula, on or about May 16.
