It has been sixty years on, since India gained its independence from the British Empire, and the time seems appropriate to reflect upon the life, ideas, work, and legacy of perhaps the single most important figure in that national freedom movement, and surely one of the most remarkable figures anywhere in the past century, Mohandas K. ("Mahatma") Gandhi. This course will examine some of Gandhi's own major writings, as well as different analyses of Gandhianism put forth by various critics inside and outside of India. We will begin with two of Gandhi's own writings, the autobiographical Story of My Experiments with Truth, and his seminal treatise on politics and civilization, Hind Swaraj. Then, we will investigate a variety of interpretive approaches to his life and work, ranging from the dramatic (Richard Attenborough's Academy Award winning film "Gandhi") and the fictional (Raja Rao's Kanthapura) to the documentarial ("The Making of the Mahatma") and the social-scientific (Susanne and Lloyd Rudolph's Gandhi: The Traditional Roots of Charisma). Gandhi's spiritual life and its place in his politics will also be examined, as will his social activism. Finally, we will consider aspects of Gandhi's ongoing influence within and without India, such as the impact of his life and teachings on social activists and reformers like Sunderlal Bahugana in India and Martin Luther King, Jr. in America.

Requirements:

1. Class attendance, preparation, and participation. This aspect of the course cannot be emphasized enough. Because this is a discussion-oriented course, each class is a true joint-learning venture, the success of which depends on every member not only having completed the assigned reading for the day, but also having digested and reflected on it, and being prepared for discussion. To facilitate this, for each class each student will prepare a typed list of at least three questions or topics for discussion, which will be handed in, after being used in class. Finally, it should go without saying that you cannot be considered a participant in class if you do not actually attend class! The choice to attend class is of course yours, but missing more than two classes without an excuse will seriously affect your final grade. Any excused absence requires written authorization for Health Services, a doctor, an advisor, a counselor, or administrator. Class participation will count for 25% of your final grade.

2. Analytic, interpretive writing. The first paper, 7-8 pages in length, will be a response to one topic from a list of suggested topics distributed by the professor. This paper will count for 25% of your final grade. The second paper will be a 12-15-page research paper, due at the end of the semester. Here, the choice of the topic will be yours, in consultation with the professor. This paper will count for 50% of your final grade
