MISSOULA--

Early 20th Century photographs by Eugene Atget, a French photographer, are on display in the University of Montana Center Gallery through Friday, April 23.

The 40 photographs in the exhibit illustrate the form and character of France in the early 1900's. Atget's work has been compared to that of Matthew Brady, the American artist who is well known for his photographs from the Civil War.

The exhibit is on loan from the George Eastman House in Rochester, N.Y.

The University Center Gallery hours are from 9 a.m.-3p.m. weekdays and 7-9 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. A gallery attendant is available at these times to answer questions.
