'HOUSEHOLD ENERGY CONSERVATION' COURSE
OFFERED FOR UM INTERSESSION, JULY 19-23

MISSOULA--

A course entitled "Household Energy Conservation" will be offered by the Department of Home Economics at the University of Montana in Missoula during the UM Intersession July 19-23.

Classes will be held from 1:20-3:30 p.m. in room 218 of the UM Women's Center.

The three-credit course will provide a consumer analysis of appliances and products on the market in relation to their construction and utilization of energy. Energy conservation methods to conserve major home costs will also be discussed.

For further information about the course and Intersession registration, interested persons may visit the Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs, room 107, Main Hall, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont., or phone 243-2900.
