Acting III is designed as a professional scene study class focusing on Shaw, Chekhov and Ibsen

We investigate personalization, objective work and the creation of the internal and physical life of the character in the context of these playwrights.

This class is the natural follow-up to Acting II the concepts begun in the Spring semester are followed through the following Fall using Shaw, Chekhov and Ibsen as our base. Historical and cultural context is provided for the class.

This is intense, concentrated work intended for the serious acting student. There is little time and much to cover. Expectations are high for concentration, commitment and willingness to take risks.

REQUIREMENTS AND EVALUATION:

- * Attendance at all classes is mandatory. All excuses must be passed by the instructor for legitimacy.
- * All students are expected to be prepared to work.
- * One thorough character analysis.
- * One mid-term self-analytical paper describing your strengths and weaknesses as an actor in the context of the two semesters work.
