THTR 580.01: Problems in Playwriting

Randy Bolton
University of Montana - Missoula, randy.bolton@umontana.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi
Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi/1914

This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the Course Syllabi at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Syllabi by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
Purpose/Intent/Criteria

This experience is a workshop in creative writing. We will focus on dramatic writing and take opportunities to expand to screen writing, poetry, and fiction if necessary. Writing is writing. The criteria, as always, is grounded in dramatic structure, conflict, tension, and character complexities/psychology. These are the essentials of story. What are the characters after? What do they have to get for their life? What is most critical to them? What are they willing to do to get what they need and want? How badly do we want to know what happens next?

The goal/outcome is to write more regularly and more pages than you have before in any of our previous workshops. Of course you have current projects you are yearning to continue and complete, but we want to write even more.

Texts:

- Triggering Town. Richard Hugo
- Elements of Style. Strunk & White
- The New Yorker magazine

Plays and other sources sought out by you

Final Product:

Two completed pieces of 17-20 minutes each.

Final Session: