Course Description:
ARAB 102 is an extension of ARAB 101, as it is designed to continue introducing students to the four Arabic language skills (i.e., listening, speaking, reading, and writing) at the elementary level and to learn more about the Arab culture. Language teaching cannot be done without learning about the culture(s) where the target language is used. The Arab culture has influenced and is influenced by Islam. Therefore, cultural/religious topics are part of learning the Arabic language. The target proficiency level is Novice-Mid/High (see the proficiency guidelines from the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages). This course is a fully online course (via Moodle: UMOnline). Assignments will be posted weekly on the first workday of the week by noon MST.

Learning Outcomes:
The broad outcomes of the Novice proficiency level are:

1. Listening: At the Novice level, listeners can understand key words, true aural cognates, and formulaic expressions that are highly contextualized and highly predictable, such as those found in introductions and basic courtesies. Novice-level listeners understand words and phrases from simple questions, statements, and high-frequency commands. They typically require repetition, rephrasing, and/or a slowed rate of speech for comprehension. They rely heavily on extralinguistic support to derive meaning. Novice-level listeners are most accurate when they are able to recognize speech that they can anticipate. In this way, these listeners tend to recognize rather than truly comprehend. Their listening is largely dependent on factors other than the message itself.

2. Speaking: Novice-level speakers can communicate short messages on highly predictable, everyday topics that affect them directly. They do so primarily through the use of isolated words and phrases that have been encountered, memorized, and recalled. Novice-level speakers may be difficult to understand even by the most sympathetic interlocutors accustomed to non-native speech.

3. Reading: At the Novice level, readers can understand key words and cognates, as well as formulaic phrases that are highly contextualized. Novice-level readers are able to get a limited amount of information from highly predictable texts in which the topic or context is very familiar, such as a hotel bill, a credit card receipt, or a weather map. Readers at the Novice level may rely heavily on their own background knowledge and extralinguistic support (such as the imagery on the weather map or the format of a credit card bill) to derive meaning. Readers at the Novice level are best able to understand a text when they are able to anticipate the information in the text. At the Novice level, recognition of key words, cognates, and formulaic phrases makes comprehension possible.

4. Writing: Writers at the Novice level are characterized by the ability to produce lists and notes, primarily by writing words and phrases. They can provide limited formulaic information on simple forms and documents. These writers can reproduce practiced material to convey the most simple messages. In addition, they can transcribe familiar words or phrases, copy letters of the alphabet or syllables of a syllabary, or reproduce basic characters with some accuracy.

5. Culture: Language and culture cannot be separate; thus, cultural topics are embedded in every lesson. Moreover, the Arab culture is heavily influenced by the religion of Islam. Various cultural topics will be discussed in the classroom, and students are encouraged to read about current events and happenings in the Arab world.
