Cinema Star Lana Turner Voted Campus Blackout Choice by U Males

Forty-two Choose Mary Elrod Ferguson as Their "Shelter Gal" of Year; Others Take Swearingen, Schweitzer

Lana Turner, the nation's number one sweater girl, was elected the campus choice for the title of "National Blackout Companion" in the poll conducted last week under the auspices of the Kaimin. The movie star led a field of more than 50 candidates by polling 81 votes, 26 ahead of her closest competitor, Gene Tierney.

Five hundred and seventeen men voted in the survey, instigated by Pete Kamps, Kaimin associate editor, and John Campbell, university publicity director.

Range Is Wide

Candidates ranged from glamour girls Turner, Tierney and Drake to outstanding figures Jeannette Rankin, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, Mary Elrod Ferguson, acting dean of women, and the "blonde bomber." Several suggestions such as "any good checker player" and "good book" were given by disillusioned elements of the campus male society.

Gene Tierney polled 55 votes, followed by Mrs. Ferguson, 42; Madeline Carroll, 24; Donna Drake, 24; Rita Hayworth, 22; Sally Rand, 21, and Hedy Lamarr with 19 votes.

Runners-up in the contest were Ruth Hussey, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Deanna Durbin, Linda Darnell, Veronica Lake, Judy Garland, Kate Smith, the Blue Ox, Monica B. Swearingen, director of residence halls, Betty Grable, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Zasu Pitts, Baby Snooks, Jeannette Rankin, Carole Landis, Jane Russell, Edna Mae Oliver, Betty Lorenz, Alice Faye, Claudette Colbert and Vera Zorina.

Voted for Once

Those who were mentioned once were Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, Ann Woodward, Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt, Mrs. H. E. Schweitzer, social director of North hall, Janet Blair, Lucia B. Mirrieles, the Andrews sisters, Rachel Ann Cook, Jean Parker, Wally Windsor, Dinah Shore, Mrs. Rochester, Francis

Aber Day Drive Begins Soon

In an effort to collect the $250 necessary for Aber day, students living in sorority and fraternity houses and dormitories will be asked to contribute money to an Aber day fund, Ray Wise, Great Falls, chairman of Aber day committee, announced yesterday. The drive for funds will begin this week.

The money-raising was necessitated by the slash in the university budget last quarter, which eliminated the usual $350 allotted for Aber day. Wise announced that the committee has decided to eliminate the dance in the evening, which will bring the total amount necessary down to $250.

Main expenses of the day, Wise said, are incurred through furnishing a free lunch at noon and various costs connected with the cleanup of the campus.

Help of the various service-honoraries on the campus will be enlisted, he said, since the project will require more work than one committee can handle.

Several student functions will take place during the quarter in an effort to raise the $250, but if they do not receive full student support, the committee will have to ask for increased donations.

Members of the committee are Max Miller, Philadelphia, Pa.; Dave Milstein, Weehawken, N. J.; Tom Willis, Thompson Falls; Mary Jane Deegan, Big Timber; Dorothy Rochon, Anaconda, and Wise.

Sluice Box Will Publish Contest Prizewinner's New Article

"Saturday Night Cinderella," a story by James Kelly, Wolf Point, has been accepted for publication in Sluice Box, student literary magazine, Ann Clements, Helena, editor, announced yesterday. Kelly is the author of "Swack," a story appearing in Sluice Box last year which won him second place in the upperclass division of the Annie Lewis Joyce Memorial prize contest for creative writing in 1941.

Arthur Sanderson, Philipsburg, is the author of "There's Money in the Funnies," an article to appear in the winter issue, and Mrs. Mary B. Clapp, professor of English, is the faculty guest writer for the issue, scheduled to appear early in February.

Material for the winter and spring issues of Sluice Box is still in demand and may be turned in to members of the magazine's editorial board or Library 111, Miss Clements said.

Basic Instruction Course Will Be Inaugurated If Facilities Are Adequate

University Among Others Examined by Head Of Examining Board; Radio Program to Begin Immediately at Selected School

Possibilities that the university may be utilized as a radio training school for navy enlistees were discussed yesterday and today at a conference of faculty members with Commander Creighton, head of the Naval Aviation Examining board. Should facilities be found adequate, between 500 and 1,000 naval officers and men will be stationed here for basic instruction in physics, mathematics and the theory of radio, Creighton said yesterday.

Barristers, New Talent To Appear

Lawyers' Skit Showing Bar Brawl Possibilities Scheduled for Convo

Homer Thompson, Three Forks, chairman of Convocations committee, last night announced that the law school will present a skit advertising Barristers' ball at convocation Thursday. They will use approximately half the time, and the new talent which Thompson's committee has discovered will perform during the other half hour.

Quentin Schulte, Van Hook, N. D., will be master of ceremonies and will introduce Fred Root, Law School association president, who will attempt to show by a skit why Barristers' ball is superior to For-esters'.

Members of the cast are Bjarne Johnson, Dutton; Dale Galles, Billings; Carter Williams, Boulder; Sid Strong, St. Ignatius; Art Ratcliffe, Terre Haute, Ind.; Bill Scott and Orville Gray, both of Great Falls, and Krest Cyr and Harold McChesney, Missoula.

Mike O'Connell, Butte, will dance a specialty number and lead a dancing chorus composed of Eli Seasman, Missoula; Sam Barer, Bozeman; Tony Harlow, Miles City, and Galles, Schulte and Root. McChesney, Schulte and Strong wrote the script for the advertisement of Barristers'. They have announced their intention of awarding a ticket to the ball to the person they consider the best entertainer in the second half of the program.

Thompson said last night that he would announce today the names of the entertainers.

Such action is extremely indefinite, however, the naval officer warned, as the university is only one of several colleges being considered for location of the training base. Among other schools which he will examine are the University of Idaho, Gonzaga, Washington State, and Whitman college.

Examination Conducted

The officer examined dormitories, class rooms, drill fields, gymnasium and other equipment that could be made available to the navy men. He expects to complete similar inspection of the other schools by Thursday and the training program will begin immediately at the college which is selected by navy authorities.

Between 500 and 1,000 men, depending on the adequacy of facilities at the appointed university, will be stationed at the school for the preliminary three months of an eight month course in radio. After they have completed basic training, the men will be moved to the advanced courses at schools on the East or West coast.

Still Undecided

"Of course, no one will know which school will be selected until Commander Creighton's reports have been studied by his superior officers," Dr. Merrill, ground school coordinator for the Civilian Pilot Training program who headed the faculty committee, said. "However, the university is fortunate in being considered for this vital defense job," he declared.

Commander Creighton conferred with a board of faculty members composed of Dr. A. S. Merrill, professor of mathematics and coordinator for the CPT; Dr. G. D. Shallenberger, professor of physics; T. G. Swearingen, maintenance engineer; Mrs. Monica B. Swearingen, director of residence halls, and Dr. Harold Chatland, associate professor of mathematics and instructor in advanced CPT. Creighton will leave Missoula at 3 o'clock today.

Army Wants 250 For Q. M. Course

The School of Business Administration has just received a telegram from the Harvard Business school stating that they have been advised that there is an immediate need to place 250 additional students in training for the Quartermaster's corps of the army.

The training is to be done at the Harvard Graduate School of Business in an 18-month course. This leads to the M.B.A. degree. Applicants must have completed three years of college and the two-year basic ROTC training. Since the instruction starts immediately those interested should see Dean Robert C. Line today.

Summer Students Must File Notices

Students interested in attending summer school quarter should hand in notice of their intentions by 4 o'clock today, Dr. G. D. Shallenberger, director of the summer session, said yesterday.

Notices should be left in the faculty mail box at Main hall and should include all courses needed to graduate, Shallenberger emphasized. Name of the student and other courses desired also should be included.

STUDENTS ORGANIZE TO CONTROL WASTE

College youth is organizing to combat waste on the campus, according to information of the Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration from two national student conferences held during the 1941 Christmas recess.

Among the more spectacular phases of college life which may disappear for the duration as the result of the student anti-waste drive is the excessive use of automobiles. Students are also learning to conserve clothes, electric power and food, and are organizing their buying to eliminate wasteful purchase and consumption of goods.

Already many student leaders have taken the initiative in organizing and putting into operation methods for battling campus waste.

Such an anti-waste program is worthwhile in many respects. To add to the popularity of this undertaking, citations on the amount of money that would be saved alone, would stimulate action. Even during peace time cutting wasteful measures so as to operate more efficiently would be wise. Thus, showing any consumer where he will save money will gain his support.

This "War on Waste" campaign is still in progress and has received attention in high schools in 22 different states between November 17 and December 31.

One group of college students in an effort to cut down living costs agreed to turn off lights at 11 o'clock. In one test month under this program, the women saved more than $3,600. As a result they have been assured that for the next year at least there will be no increase in the cost of their board and room.

The university might well take measures to combat waste such as other schools have done.—W. K. C.

ON MANY CAMPUSES BOND COMMITTEES WORK

Campus defense efforts have finally progressed to the point where most of the organization has been finished and the preliminary work done. Those who have contributed their efforts to this endeavor deserve praise.

But on many of the nation's campuses defense efforts have progressed even farther than here. In addition to wardens, blackouts and sirens, committees have been appointed which help boost the sales of defense bonds and stamps on the campus.

A proof that these committees do obtain results is evidenced by the residence halls of the Iowa State college. One hall recently voted to buy a $18.75 defense bond with funds from a sale and to match each bond purchased now or later with a bond bought directly by funds contributed by the men. The bonds will be made payable to the government. Another hall plans to buy defense stamps with extra funds in the treasury. One dormitory has purchased a bond to be left to buy furnishings in memory of the men now living in the hall who serve in this war.

But such a drive should by no means be confined to dormitories. Campus groups with unused funds might do the same, to say nothing of a drive to promote buying by individual students.

The Forestry club deserves congratulations on being the first campus group to buy a bond. Others might follow if a promotion committee were appointed.

Miss Turner, whose real name is Julia Jan Mildred Frances Turner, was discovered by a talent scout as she sipped a strawberry malt one day in a Hollywood fountain. She recently starred with Clark Gable in "Honky Tonk."

Martha Averill, '33, was married last week to John Hassell.

Communications

Official decree from the law school, under the seal of J. Learned Brow, Custodian of the Quart, confirms the report that this year's Barristers' ball will be a whirling long to be remembered. It will be in the nature of a farewell to the battle-scarred though sadly unpublicized Blackstone Battalion. In order to give this noble fighting force a fitting bon voyage, members of the local "Bench and Bar" have promised an all-out occasion, one with lots of "punch."

Students Depart

Among Blackstonians already departed for the service are Lieuts. Bob Pantzer and Marvin (Dagwood) Hagen. Kermit Daniels, famous Flathead Lake admiral, is now in the Naval reserve. Tony Harlow, after shunning offers from the infantry, Marine corps, Naval reserve and Northwest dog sled troops, has finally decided his services would be most valuable in the Army Air corps and has hastily accepted.

Paul Connoles has also joined the Air corps and is now looking for someone who will trade him a large and serviceable parachute for a slightly used set of the "Montana Code." Art Ratcliffe holds a commission in the cavalry and will soon be exchanging his derby for a set of spurs and be back with Uncle Sam's "yellow-legs."

Dale Galles, local NYA generalissimo, finds the whole situation rather "drafty" and may soon blow on. Among other potential Counselors at Law soon to leave are ROTC seniors Fred Root, Orville Gray, Garvin Shallenberger, Sid Strong, Joe Mudd and Warren Vaughn, who are now singing that modern popular tune, "Goodbye Mama, I'm Off to Yokohama." Members who joined the battalion last year are Bruce Babbitt, Derek Price, Frank Macek, Rigby, Oscar Hauge, Don Smith, Rolf Romstead and Winn Downlin.

Rumors Spread

The learned Custodian also notes with no alarm, that certain unfounded and nebulous rumors have been wafting out of the "tree-squeakery," alias the forestry school (?), that the Wood Nymphs are planning a tea party of some kind. The public is warned, however, to take them lightly, for information from a usually reliable source has it that termites have had full swing in the twig school all year, with disastrous results. Without fear of successful contradiction, the above-mentioned farewell shin-dig, to wit, Barristers' ball, promises to be the undisputed social coup-d-etat of the year, and all are invited by the genial and festive attorneys to attend. The dangers involved are limited to the probable presence of lurking process servers, and the fact that anything said may be used as evidence against the disseminator thereof.

ORVILLE GRAY,

Assistant to the aforementioned and above-named Custodian.

Dennis Murphy, Former U Prof, Publishes Poems

Two northwest poets, Dr. Dennis Murphy, former assistant professor of English, and Hazel Barrington Selby, who attended the summer writers' conference at the university in 1931-32, have recently published volumes of poetry at eastern publishing houses.

Murphy, who is now teaching at the Missouri Teachers' college at Cape Girardeau, published his collection of lyrical poems entitled "Doomed Race" at the Dorance publishing house in New York City. His poetry tells of the natives of the Ozark mountains and the clash they have with the wealthy summer tourists who want to build summer resorts in that locality. The mountain people are comparable in circumstance to the Indians at the time of the settlement of America. The book is illustrated with the author's own sketches.

Murphy received his B.A. and M.A. degrees at the University of Missouri and his Ph.D. at the State University of Iowa. He has published other volumes of poetry of which the best known is "The Silver Plow."

Selby, who was graduated from the University of North Dakota in 1908, published "Stalks of Wind," a collection of poems, at the Bruce Humphrey publishing house in Boston. The volume deals with the conflict between love and beauty as seen from a woman's point of view. It expresses the idea that life should be controlled by love and not beauty.

Business Ad Group to Play Stock Game

Members of Alpha Kappa Psi, national business administration fraternity, will gain practical experience in stock exchange manipulation by playing a game adopted at a recent meeting of the club. Each member and pledge will pick a stock from the New York stock exchange or the Chicago wheat market which he will theoretically buy.

Each one will be free to buy and sell shares of stock at will as the exchange price varies and records of all transactions will be carefully kept. All accounts will be closed out on the last day of February and individual accounts will be totaled.

That half of the members which was least successful in playing the market will be host to its more successful fraternity brothers at a banquet sometime in March.

Bear Paws will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Eloise Knowles room.

Montana Drubs Normal Again, 57-35; Runs Victory Streak to Six Straight

Montana annexed a sixth straight win by trouncing the Montana Normal Bulldogs, 57-35, in the second of a two-game series in the university gym Friday night. In the first of the paired tilts, the Dillon squad went down on their home floor, 57-40.

An extra game was scheduled if the Bulldogs could even the series at one-all, which would have required a play-off on Saturday night.

Fighting Bulldogs put up a stiff battle for the opening eight minutes of play which found the score knotted at six counters. From there on the Grizzlies poured baskets almost at will and led the scrappy southerners 24-12 at half-time.

Grizzlies Pull Away

Both quintets started the second half evenly matched. Bulldogs countered tally-for-tally for each basket the Montana five looped until the closing moments of the fray. "Chuck" Burgess and Dutch Dahmer then rained baskets in a final spurt which increased the victory margin to 22 markers at the final gun.

Normal displayed poor form on gift throws and missed six out of every seven attempts in the field-goal route. The Dillonites found the Montana squad too tall to cope with on man to man defense which finally snowed the losers under in the last part of the first period.

Clawson Scores First

The tilt got off to slow start. After several minutes of scrimmage, Gene Clawson, pivot man, looped one from the hole. Dupuis missed a free throw for Dillon after which Aitken dribbled one in. Bud Deegan dropped another and "Chuck" Burgess and DeGroot rang two push shots.

Both squads led five times in the early moments as the game followed this pattern. Clawson and Dupuis, high scorers for the respective squads, connected often, matching score for score.

With the count at 6-6, Al McKenzie tossed a free throw. "Chuck" Burgess threw his first spectacular overhand for two points. Clawson drove in the hole for a basket.

Good sank a free throw. Clawson dropped another gift shot followed by a short set-up. "Chuck" Burgess and Jones swished a pair of rebounds to put the count at 19-7.

Bulldogs Take Time Out

Dillon Bulldogs took time out and upon start of play, Good dribbled in for a field goal. DeGroot missed a free throw but made it good on the rebound.

Bob Deegan swished one from the side to match the marker. Dupuis made a free throw.

McKenzie hooked a neat overhand tally. Good again connected on a running shot. Dupuis bucketed another gift throw to close the first half.

The second period opened with a flurry of free tosses. McKenzie dropped two to open hostilities, then Aitken countered another. Edwards replaced Jones and Jack Burgess came into the lineup for Harry Hesser, replacement guard.

Burgess Connects

"Chuck" Burgess connected a setup then swished from mid-floor for another. Good and Aitken scored twice, after which Edwards, speedy forward, tossed a one-handed flip.

Dahmer, Clawson, Aitken and Bud Deegan tallied often for each quintet. Near the closing moments Grizzlies spurred for three field goals which put the game on ice, 57-35.

Clawson and "Chuck" Burgess took high point scoring honors for the Montana five with 15 and 10 points respectively. Jack Burgess was outstanding on defensive play.

For the losers, Dupuis was hot as the star offense player with 9 markers. Bob Deegan showed well on defense as a guard.

Cubs Triumph Over Corvallis

Montana's fighting frosh subdued a listless Corvallis Blue Devil squad, 49-29, Saturday night in a one-sided contest played in the men's gym.

Cubs started pouring baskets early and never relinquished the lead. By the close of the first period, the Corvallis quintet fell behind, 21 to 10.

Everybody Scores

Every man on the frosh squad entered the fray. Vick Dikeos, Cub forward, paced his mates for high scoring honors with eight points. The entire Cub lineup scored on the Blue Devils with a single exception.

Both quintets looped the most tallies in the first quarter. Barney Berger sank two buckets in the early moments. Bob LaTrielle connected with gift shots and a field goal.

New Lineup

The second period started with a new Cub lineup. Cramer, Cub forward, contributed two points on a rebound shot, while Bob Downen tipped in a pair.

Don Edwards, guard, chalked up field goals for the Corvallis five to bolster the losers. Play was slow in the second half.

Edwards created the most stir of the Blue Devil aggregation with 11 points.

"Macbeth" Proves Headache To Light, Sound Crews

By BUD HUSTAD

"Macbeth," winter quarter major, may be a good show to some, politically significant to others, and intellectual for others, but to Dawson Oppenheimer, Arnold Riven, Bob Ack-erlund and Marvin Myrick it's a lot of hard work.

"Daws" and Riven handle sound effects for the play, and "Ack" and "Mike" are "on" lights. With about 20 scenes to run through, each of which requires various combinations of trumpet fanfares, bagpipes, drum beats, witch's music, banquet music and incidental music, as well as door knocks, thunder claps and alarm bells, the sound crew is kept hopping.

Their equipment includes four or five separate fanfares, three bagpipe selections and two different bits of 12th century "drawing room" music. These must all come in on cue.

Anyone not intimately acquainted with light plots would have a hard time unraveling the "Macbeth" plot. Each scene is closed with a blackout, which is the easiest part. During the scene certain spotlights and floodlights must be "cut in" on certain lines, to light definite parts of the stage and scenery. The lights must all be set at the proper angles, raised out of sight, cut in, and checked. And just when the lights seem established one of the actors tries his lines in a different spot, so the lights have to be changed.

The light and sound boys say there are about 80 cues for each crew to follow correctly.

Actors making a fast exit often run into the thunder sheet which starts it rattling. Or someone starts a conga line and hits the gong, or runs against a tight flat and sends it shivering. Silence prevails for a while and then the disgruntled crew goes back to work.

Round Table Discusses Pan-America

Cultural, economic and political aspects of Pan-American cooperation were discussed last night over KGVO on the weekly Faculty Round table broadcast, headed by Ralph Y. McGinnis, assistant professor of speech.

Members on the program were McGinnis, Michael J. Mansfield, assistant professor of history; M. M. Oliphant, Missoula county extension agent, and Mrs. H. W. Gregory of the Missoula Federation of Women's clubs.

Economic Pan-American problems can be solved if America learns to give as well as take and to subjugate its trade materials to South America's, at least temporarily, the conference decided.

Eventually an economic exchange will be built up between the Americas which will allow trade on an equal basis. Plans for such a relationship are now in the making.

The Americas have made rapid strides, culturally, to assimilate each other's art, music and literature and will gradually understand the moods and motives of both.

Politically, Chile and Argentina present a temporary problem but there is no real danger of complete Nazi servitude.

Traphagan Design Exhibit Is Shown in Clothing Lab

A collection of student's work from the Traphagan School of Fashion, New York City, was on exhibit in the clothing laboratory room of the natural science building. This exhibit, open to the public from Jan. 12 to 26, was under the sponsorship of Helen Gleason, professor of home economics. Now in its sixteenth year, this fashion school, founded by Ethel Traphagan, has as its purpose practical training in commercial art.

The exhibit gave an accurate and revealing picture of work done in this famous school. There were some 80 or 90 mounted subjects consisting of pen and ink drawings, illustrations, fashion layouts, black and white and color fashion drawings and costume designs both civil and theatrical as well as modern and period costume silhouettes from the 12th century to the present time. This exhibit demonstrates how modern costumes are derived from those of other lands and ages. It exemplifies the way in which inspiration is obtained and originality achieved through study of the tastes and fashion of the past, a method employed by great designers the world over.

Shows Achievement

Especially assembled for young people to whom drawing and designing are of primary interest, it shows what American youth is accomplishing in this field. Special talents are gaining recognition, remuneration is increasing, and artistic scope is widening, making fashion designing the field for all with ideas, irrespective of age.

To those interested in illustrations, drawing or designing with pencil or with fabrics, the Traphagan exhibit was especially informative, since it got down to fundamentals. The school definitely demonstrates how talent can be capitalized to make the transition from the amateur to the professional.

In the realm of advertising, the exhibit had samples of cuts appearing in newspapers throughout the United States. For such advertising, research is carried on in the school library and art reference rooms containing more than 12,000 volumes bearing upon costume and design.

The series of costume layouts illustrates the methods used in the fashion school, showing how students are grounded in the derivation of styles. Students are also taught the psychology behind changing fashions and instructed in harmonizing their skill, knowledge and talents with the rush of modern life.
