

CutBank

Volume 1
Issue 58 CutBank 58

Article 5

Fall 2002

Driving

Emily Koehn

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Koehn, Emily (2002) "Driving," CutBank: Vol. 1 : Iss. 58 , Article 5.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank/vol1/iss58/5>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in CutBank by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

DRIVING

Maybe lost

that in my side it hurts sometimes and I forget fields and open car doors, hands, some other time that this isn't present, who are you and that there must not have been anything. Relevancy. Thinking of today is the day of driving and I'm always driving and blistering of conversation of the sun is so hot

the billboard of glistening droplet
on a wine glass, magnified, a drop the size of a body, a balloon of shine, painted poster board light blue, this could really, be careful, and the highway by the sea stretches with potential knowledge is, is, is.

Some say bits of dark sand in between. Gulls that circle and dart quickly. The ripple of

on the radio: weather:

Inland and inward.

Work on what I work on outward is a question for the concentrated turquoise.