Sculptress thrills crowd with talk

Baroness Silvercruys molds head of 8th-grade girl while talking

BY MARGE POWELL

Baroness Suzanne Silvercruys lectured and modeled moist plasticene into a bust portrait of an eighth grade girl sitting in the audience at an impromptu convocation yesterday morning. To an unexpectedly large audience of students, faculty members and townspeople she quoted the following lines:

"Sinews and blood are a thin veil of lace. Whatever you are, you show in your face."

The famous sculptress who recently completed a portrait head of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault is her own example for those words.

She is a middle-aged woman, of average height. Belgian born, her speech is softened by a slight accent. Her hands move continuously in free, expressive gestures. Yesterday she was dressed in a smart, black cape-suit with a touch of red at the throat. Her hair was covered by a red and black turban. But it was her face that seemed to prove her words. Smooth-skinned and unlined, almost translucent in texture, it was the face of "a busy and happy woman" as she herself put it.

Suzanne Silvercruys became a sculptress at a point in her life when she had tuberculosis. She was not "interested in life." Then someone left her a package of plasticene. With a little interest which later grew into fascination, she started the head of her dog, because "if she failed the dog wouldn't tell." On the basis of that work she was admitted to the Yale school of fine arts, from which she was graduated.

"In reaching for a goal, that of creating beauty, I found the meaning of being alive," she said. "It is the goal that is important not necessarily the attaining of it."

Her father once told Suzanne Silvercruys, "Reach for the moon, (please see page four)

Agency is set up to meet needs of returning veterans

Returning war veterans who enroll at the university will find a new agency designed to meet their immediate needs, the president's office has announced. Not only will special assistance in registration be administered, but careful personalized attention will be given in helping the veteran to plan for his post-war future.

An Office of Veteran Education has been established, which will function under the general supervision of an Advisory Committee on Veteran Education. The committee is composed of chairman Dean J. Earle Miller, Dr. W. R. Ames, Dr. Catherine Nutterville, Dr. G. D. Shallenberger, Registrar J. B. Speer and Henrietta Wilhelm, assistant registrar. Dr. A. S. Merrill was named Director of Veteran Education.

Purpose of the office is to assist the returned veteran in technicalities of registration and in relations

Coffee hour crowd gives views on MSU memorial for war casualties

Students will stage world conference

When world figures gather around the San Francisco peace table in April, students will stage a campus version of the world conference.

Prof. E. L. Freeman, chairman of public exercises committee, announced plans to hold a special convocation near the opening date of the San Francisco conference on April 25. Student groups, representing delegations of different countries, will bring the aims of the different world powers, the probable points of conflict and the peace conference as a whole closer to students, faculty members and townspeople.

From 20 to 30 students will be selected by faculty members to take part in this performance.

In their discussion attention will be given to major issues likely to arise at the actual world conference. Trade relations, boundaries, colonies, minorities, aviation, the machinery of the international government, finance, international currency and an international police force have been suggested as topics.

Other fundamental questions related to peace will be considered by students unattached to any national delegations. These questions will include labor, religion, the Jewish question, youth, science and other subjects.

Tentative plans are to provide a conference atmosphere through the use of stage properties, appropriate national music and flags.

The plan, endorsed by the faculty, is being developed by a steering committee appointed by the public exercises committee. The date and hour of the convo will be decided by the committee.

MSU nags run campus track

Horse racing tracks have been closed, but MSU is still brazenly supporting the maintenance of racetracks across the campus lawns.

Instead of the well-known favorites, Whirlaway or Silver, galloping down the home stretch, students and faculty members can now be seen running neck and neck.

When a Spur blows her whistle, that isn't a starting signal to pound off down the track. It's a warning to stay on the sidewalks.

Offenders last week who still had to be introduced by Spurs to that modern improvement, the sidewalk, were:

LES MARGETTS
DEAN WALTER A. ANDERSON
BOB SWITZER
PEGGY LEE
HARRIET DILLAVOU
STEWART BRANDBOG
DR. ROBERT T. TURNER
RUSS CEROVSKI

Variety of ideas come to light when participants suggest everything from fountains and buildings to swimming pools as fitting tribute

"What do you think would be a suitable memorial for alumni who lose their lives in this war?" When coffee-hour conversation turned to this question, strange and varied ideas came to light.

Personal mail

A corporal wrote a letter to a coed on the campus. Then he was summoned to the censor's office. He went—shaking in his shoes.

"I just wanted to tell you that I'm glad you and your fiancée chose the kind of silver that you did. I didn't like the other pattern you were considering," said the lieutenant.

Wren defines Russian aims at peace table

"Russia's peace aims are no different from any of the other Big Three Powers fighting in Europe today."

Melvin C. Wren, assistant professor of history, made this point in opening an informal discussion on Russia and her peace aims before a group of students, faculty members and townsmen. Student Federalists sponsored the meeting, held Tuesday night in the Bitterroot Room.

"Russia's chief and most urgent need," Wren said, "is to get back to peacetime production."

He stated that Stalin probably hasn't too much faith in any international government and for that reason Russia would take steps at the peace table to insure her own security.

Wren clarified Russia's claims to eastern Poland, the Baltic countries, a small territory in Finland and Bessarabia.

Answering the question as to whether Russia wanted to set up communistic governments in surrounding countries, Wren said, "Russia has little interest in the types of governments in countries bordering her except for a renunciation of fascism. She will insist on governments giving her a sense of relief and security."

Wren told the group that this peace conference would be different from the one after the last war. The last peace plan was idealistic, he said, but this one would be realistic.

"It is to Russia's interests as much as ours that Japan be put down," he said in regard to Russia in the east.

HISTORY OF DANCES TOLD AT MEETING

"Los Gringos" met in the Eloise Knowles room last Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. The club was entertained by Rosina Walters and Cora Englehardt who related the history of the more popular native Spanish dances.

After the meeting, coffee and doughnuts were served.

"A fountain," decided Edmund O'Brien, Bigfork. "Not just a little drinking fountain, but a big one like you see in parks."

Andrew C. Cogswell, acting dean of journalism, said he would like to see a memorial along the lines of utility and mentioned a building as a possibility. Annie Fraser, Billings, and Robert Muir, Great Falls, took the same point of view.

Used and lasting

A memorial that was "used and lasting" was also the best idea, in the opinion of Charles F. Hertler, assistant professor of physical education. He advanced the idea that one of the buildings in the building program after the war be dedicated to this purpose.

This idea was contradicted by J. W. Severy, professor of botany, who said, "I don't like a memorial building."

Diggings into his memory for ideas, Severy stated that his Alma Mater had erected a memorial arch after the Boxer Rebellion. Another possibility that came to his mind was a huge natural rock with a memorial plaque honoring all who had lost their lives.

Give scholarships

Bette Kennett, Lewistown, said, "Give scholarships in memory of those who died. Just a suggestion—you work it out."

She came back later to elaborate her pet theory. The alumni association should give at least one creditable scholarship and call it the Memorial Scholarship, she said.

"I don't think it necessary to build any memorials," said Joseph Kramer, assistant professor of botany. "No glamour should be attached to war."

His contention was that the boys should be praised, but not by erecting a statue or similar monument.

Doesn't approve of statues

"Erect a decorative playground area," said Aden Arnold, assistant professor of fine arts. "I don't approve of a statue. There are too many bad ones in the world—and we might get one of them."

Martha Clark Gasser, Missoula, advised that the memorial be something that the whole school would benefit from, and suggested an outdoor swimming pool.

"A special memorial day could be set aside," recommended Curtis Stadstad, Raymond. "The occasion could be commemorated with a program."

Reuben A. Diettert, associate professor of botany, said he approved of Missoula's plan for planting a rose garden. Peter Teel, Polson, advised that a new main hall be built and dedicated to this purpose.

There will be an ad staff meeting Tuesday, March 13, at 5 o'clock in J303. Everyone please be there.

A bright future ahead

Many letters have been received from servicemen which are filled with remembrances of past university life and hopes for its future. We had the opportunity of reading such a letter recently from Arnold Rivin.

Arnie would graduate next June with his class, if Uncle Sam hadn't needed him and lots of other fellows like him to help fight a war. Because he left two years ago, many of you haven't had the opportunity of meeting him. He's somewhere in Germany now and is always interested in meeting anyone from the university. And, now, we would like to give you a long distance introduction to Arnold Rivin.

"I think back on days when there was no war, when a trip to Seattle was a good-sized journey, when a uniform was something we frosh wore at ROTC (three days a week), when the Spurs and the Bear Paws got together to put something across and the Spurs had to do most of it alone.

"I think of Dean Stone Nights, of the slow, drawing, quiet, dry, wisdom-packed bits of advice he used to give me . . . of the nights we used to ring the Victory Bell in Main Hall until the police came, of Singing-on-the-Steps (and its theme song to the tune of 'Genevieve'), of Aber Day and its accompanying campus clean-up (plus elections).

"But don't misunderstand. Going back to MSU is the plan above all plans for me. I do want to go back. There will be a lot of other men who had to leave school who will be back, and who will be just as old and just as fond of the days that were as I am. So things can't look too black. How I long for the day when I can walk down University avenue again and find things back as they were before . . ."

It fills us with pride to know how much this school means to its men at war and how eager they are to hear of its advancement and welfare. They want to come back here and graduate from Montana State University. That is the finest tribute we can ask.

Letters to the editor . . .

Dear Students:

So you like the Wednesday afternoon coffee hours?

Now that a lot of people are agreed on that point, several of you are perhaps thinking up some new ideas to knit student-faculty relations a little closer. Last Wednesday Dr. Browman made a suggestion to me, and I'm passing it on:

Why not use the outdoor fireplace, built last fall, for more get-togethers? It's hidden behind the natural science building near the Women's Gym, but it's just the spot for a late afternoon picnic. Instead of saving up "A" coupons for a trip to Montana Power park this spring, why not hike over to the empty lot, invite the faculty along, and picnic here?

Of course, it's still hard to get wieners, but I haven't seen that cramp anyone's style yet at a picnic. There's a huge field handy for baseball, archery and tennis. It's not far to hike to the river, if you're the exploring type, Mt. Sentinel is close. By the way, have you ever gone walking through the forestry grounds?

It's still a little early, but picnic plans are already in the air. I, for one, agree with Dr. Browman that our outdoor fireplace ought not to be passed up.

Lionel Barrymore, star of the "Mayor of the Town" heard over CBS on Saturday nights at 8:15 comes of a famous American Theatrical family, a brother of Ethel and the late John Barrymore. He is the eldest son of Maurice Barrymore, long famous on the stage, and Georgia Drew Barrymore. Barrymore was born in Philadelphia, Pa., on April 28, 1878.

Lionel Barrymore

His first appearance on the stage was as a crying five-year-old with his parents, and his first adult role on stage was as the footman in "The Road to Ruin" in which his grandmother, Mrs. John Drew, appeared. He also appeared with her on Jan. 1, 1904 in "The Rivals." Lionel's film career commenced in 1909 with the old Biograph company. D. W. Griffith lured him from the stage into the silent films. His stage experience made him a "natural" for talking pictures and radio.

Barrymore has been married twice. He stands six feet tall and is "hard as nails" despite advancing years. His eyes are penetrating steel-gray, and his eyebrows are shaggy. He hates to comb his hair. Lionel is a talented pianist and has composed several concertos. The theme used on his "Mayor of the Town" program was written by him.

His outstanding radio role is that of Scrooge in the dramatization of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," an outstanding Yuletide "must" for the listening audience of the nation.

New Hall wins easy victory over Thetas

New Hall's fast-moving sextet took the Thetas for a ride, 39 to 18, in the semi-finals of the women's basketball tourney Tuesday night to revenge itself for the first defeat at the hands of the Thetas.

Donna Fanning started the scoring off at the beginning for the Thetas, but New Hall's Elaine Hoover came right back to score one field goal and a free shot. From then on it was New Hall leading throughout and the half ended 21 to 12.

In the second half the Thetas were held to six points by effective guarding by the New Hall guards Jean Dineen, Dorothy Grant and Jean Frame. Anne Fraser shifted to guard for Theta and cut Hoover's scoring down, but still New Hall collected 18 points. Donna Fanning put in several nice shots from near the sidelines for the Thetas.

Again Elaine Hoover was high scorer with 23 points collected for New Hall. Donna Fanning rolled up 12 points for the Thetas.

SK swamps Tri Delt, 34-19

Sigma Kappa swamped Tri Delt, 34 to 19, Tuesday night to jump into the final playoff for first and second.

The Sigma Kappas took a seven point lead in the first half which was the closest the Tri Delt ever came to their opponents. Good guarding by the Sigma Kappas held the Tri Delt to 11 points while the pivot, one-handed push shots of Donna Ghirardo and Shirley Anderson rolled the score up to 18 to end the half 18 to 11.

The addition of tall Pauline Bray to the Sigma Kappa guards made their defense even tighter in the second half cutting their adversaries down to eight points while the set-up shots of Mabel Manix and Donna Ghirardo increased their points by 16.

Donna Ghirardo with 16 points and Mabel Manix with 12 points were high for the Sigma Kappas while Jean Warner with 11 points and Jane Jeffers with eight points were high for the Tri Delt.

Thetas knock Tri Delt, 39-20

The Thetas came back from their New Hall defeat Wednesday night to triumph over the Tri Delt, 39 to 20, and to take third place in the women's basketball tournament. This loss gave the Tri Delt fourth place.

Tight defense in the first quarter by the Thetas shut the Tri Delt off from any points and tied them down to five points in the second quarter while Donna Fanning sparked the forwards to a 18 point lead ending the half 24 to 5. Donna Fanning was on the ball this half converting 16 points.

The Tri Delt started playing a better brand of ball the last half making 15 points but the Thetas, led by Shirley Davis, matched them point for point gathering 15 points. This and the big lead they had the first half put the game on ice for them.

Donna Fanning totaled 20 points to be high man of the game for the Thetas while her teammate, Shirley Davis, gathered 12 points to be second high. Jane Jeffers with eight and Jean Warner with seven points were high for the Tri Delt.

Sigma Kappa falls before New Hall, 25-14

New Hall downed the Sigma Kappa basketball team, 25 to 14, to win the basketball championship, Wednesday night in the Women's Gym.

New Hall made a basket on their first throw-in to take the lead which they built up during the game. New Hall forwards converted several baskets in the first quarter by stealing the ball from their guards. Good passing and good shooting made the game fast and kept the spectators on their feet throughout.

In the second half Mable Manix, outstanding on the Sigma Kappa team, came in as Hoover's guard, but although her play cut down Hoover's shooting, New Hall still led in scoring.

New Hall guards kept the Sigma Kappa forwards bottled up and forced them to make long shots.

Elaine Hoover was high scorer in the game with 13 points.

Former coach receives medal

Maj. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, former university football coach, has been decorated with the Croix De Guerre with Palm by Gen. Charles De Gaulle, according to a release from the Seventh Army headquarters in Europe.

In recognition of his skillful command of American troops in the "Colmar Pocket," Milburn, the commanding general of the Twenty First Corps, also was awarded the "Commandeur De La Legion d'Honneur" by the French general.

In conjunction with the First French Army, Major General Milburn's troops effected the decisive defeat and total elimination of the German forces in Southern Alsace. The citations were awarded "at an impressive ceremony on Feb. 10, in the newly liberated city of Colmar," the Army announcement said.

General Milburn performed the dual role of professor of military science and of head football coach at Montana State University, from 1926 until 1931.
