ARTS AND SOCIETY LECTURE
SERIES WILL START APRIL 1

MISSOULA--

Members of faculties in the arts and the humanities from the University of Montana and Indiana University will speak in the Arts and Society Lecture Series, which will start in Missoula April 1.

The free lectures will be given each Tuesday from April 1 through May 13 at 8 p.m. in the upstairs gallery of the Missoula Museum of the Arts, 335 N. Pattee. An informal reception will follow each lecture.

Dr. Julie Codell, UM art department, is the coordinator of the series and is one of the lecturers. She will speak April 15 on "Boiled and Roasted: Painters and Patrons in the Renaissance."

Other speakers and their topics are:

April 1--Robert Wilcox, UM drama/dance department, "The New Morality and the New Theatre"; April 8--Cynthia Kinnard, Indiana University English department, "Depicting Urban Life in America: 1810-1910"; April 22-Phillip Fandozzi, UM philosophy department, "Art in a Technological Setting: Creation or Recreation?"

April 29--James Todd, UM humanities program, "Democratic Promise in U.S. Art: Its Success and Failure"; May 6--Fred McGlynn, UM philosophy department, "Monumentalism and the Modern Revolution in Music: The Passive and the Active Perceiver"; May 13--Henry Harrington, UM English department, "Ordering Violence: The Two Faces of Entropy."

The series is sponsored by the School of Fine Arts, the Humanities Program, and the Departments of Art, Drama/Dance, English, and Philosophy at the UM.
