Educational Standards Will Remain High At MSU, Says McCain

"In spite of what appears to be a serious overcrowding and some dislocation this fall, Montana State University will be able to maintain a high quality of work in its class rooms and laboratories," Pres. James A. McCain said in convocation this morning.

Tapping of new Bear Paws, and talks by Jerry Anderson, Helena, president of ASMSU, and Douglas Fessenden, coach of the Grizzly squad, rounded out the program.

"The university for over six months has been systematically combing the nation to locate teachers with the best possible qualifications . . . I can assure the student body that the quality of their training will not suffer as a result of the large enrollment," McCain continued. To accommodate the increased enrollment, 40 new teachers have been acquired.

The representative of a large eastern publishing concern, on the campus this week after visiting most of the universities on the West coast, expressed the opinion that Montana State University is currently maintaining standards superior to any university of the West coast, President McCain said.

Pays Tribute

McCain, in paying tribute to the people of Missoula for their co-operation in solving the problem of living quarters, said that several hundred more rooms have been provided in response to an appeal by the university and the students. As a result, when Jumbo hall is completed it will be possible to relieve all congestion in living quarters for single male students.

Examinations For Jobs Announced

The United States Civil Service commission has announced exams for engineering aid, scientific aid, and biological aid positions, for which application must be filed by Oct. 10. These positions, in Washington, D. C., are of a sub-professional nature, with salaries from $1,822 to $2,644 per year for a 40-hour week.

These jobs include work in the main branches of civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering, chemistry, physics, biology, metallurgy, entomology, horticulture, and zoology.

Announcements and application forms which may be secured from the post office downtown, must be on file with the Civil Service commission, Washington 25, D. C. on or before the closing date.

Pre-Game Rally Tonight; Band to Lead Students In Big Parade to Bonfire

Montana students are scheduled to go "all out" for the 1946 Grizzly football team tonight in the biggest MSU rally since pre-war days. Events will start at 7:30 p.m. with a pep parade to the campus, starting at the corner of Sixth and Higgins.

Traditions Board Chairman Howard Golder, Missoula, reports that everything is in readiness for the program, and he urges everyone on the campus to take an active part in the night's activities.

A bonfire collection will be made this afternoon and burned as soon as the parade reaches the university. Raymond Peete, Missoula, bonfire chairman, said that the collecting of material for fire is a traditional job of the freshman class and he hoped that the class of 1950 would not let the school down.

Members of Bear Paw, sophomore men's honorary, will be in charge of the collection. Dick Miller, Butte, Chief Grizzly of Bear Paw, announced yesterday that work on the fire will begin this afternoon at 2 o'clock and will continue until about 6. He asked freshmen to report any time that they are free. University trucks will be used in the collection.

The University band will lead the parade, followed by a student snake dance headed by Bear Paws and Spurs. The procession will proceed east on Sixth one block to Gerald avenue, then south on Gerald to University avenue, and will head east on University to the campus.

ROTC BEARDS OK

The ROTC has never prohibited the growing of beards for Homecoming, Col. J. B. Loveless, professor of Military Science and Tactics, stated yesterday.

Col. Loveless' statement was issued to dispel rumors that the ROTC had forbidden freshmen from growing whiskers.

"There was never any doubt or question about it," said S/Sgt. Bernie Eubanks, ROTC staff member, yesterday.

Independents Will Change Meeting Place

Because of the small size of the Bitterroot room, the first fall meeting of the Organized Independents is scheduled for the Student Union theater Monday at 7:30 p.m., Independent Pres. Stan Phillips, Winnett, said yesterday.

"Because of the large group which attended the Independent party last week, we feel that the theater will be the best place for future meetings," he said.

The main item on the program will be a discussion of plans for the coming year. Explanation of the Organized Independent program will be given new student members, Phillips explained.

Among the plans for the immediate future, which will be discussed, is the election of the Independent candidate for Homecoming queen.

The entertainment program for this first meeting will include a vocal duet by Janet and Lois Blessing, Billings, and a vocal solo by Wilbur Funk, Bozeman.

Homecoming Candidates Will Parade

Eleven candidates for Homecoming queen will ride on floats sponsored by local business houses in the Homecoming parade, ASMSU Pres. Jerry Anderson, Helena, told the Pan-Hellenic meeting Wednesday.

"Names of candidates for queen from each of the sororities, the women's dormitories, the women's co-op house, and the Organized Independents must be handed into either my office or to Mrs. Anne Anderson in the Student Union Business office by 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8," Anderson said.

David Drum, Miles City, chairman of Homecoming, explained the entire Homecoming plans and Anne Fraser, Billings, and Jim McIntosh, Missoula, explained that the floats sponsored by the local business houses are limited in expense.

Jane Solvie, Saco, Pan-Hellenic president, announced that open house will be held Oct. 25 at the sororities for visiting alumni here during Homecoming.

The boards also decided that girls may now be pledged in the dormitories, except during study hours, open rushing beginning today at 6 p.m.

Board Bills To Be Paid By Month

Beginning Oct. 14, meals served at university residence halls will be paid on a monthly basis rather than by individual meal, according to a residence halls bulletin scheduled for distribution today.

Price for all meals Oct. 14 through 31 is $22.80, and is to be paid by Oct. 10 at the business office in University hall. For the period of Nov. 1 through 27, the cost is $34.20, due Oct. 25. Cost of meals Nov. 28 through Dec. 1 is listed at $5.30, payable Nov. 15. From Dec. 2 through lunch Dec. 20, the cost is $23.50, also due Nov. 15.

These rates are according to a basic rate of $38 for a full month.

Corbin, North, and South hall residents will board at their respective dining rooms, with New hall residents boarding at Corbin, although there is no restriction on hall residents boarding outside the halls.

Students listed for Jumbo hall, and all non-resident students, may board according to the following schedule:

A through J, Corbin; K through R, North; and S through Z, South hall.

Present meal hours will continue.

A Free Press—Voice of Freedom, Guardian of Liberty

This is National Newspaper week. To many, this means just another of those national weeks designed to promote the sale of anything from gardenias to corned beef and cabbage. But National Newspaper week is different. It is not designed to sell anything.

It exists to emphasize the newspaper's role as a public servant. It exists to emphasize the importance of the newspaper in our everyday lives.

Being a college paper, the Kaimin is in a position to speak objectively of newspapers in general without being accused of patting its own back.

True, many newspapers in America are taking advantage of lack of local competition or of large financial backing and are consequently becoming stagnant and lackadaisical in their role as a servant of the community. But the majority of papers, and certainly all our best ones, take an active lead in civic affairs and are constantly on the alert for new ideas to better the citizens of their area.

And so, in the midst of our own trials and tribulations, we take time out to pay our highest tribute to the press of the nation—a press that has fought for freedom and for liberty, a press that has fought for better civic conditions, a press that has gained the respect and admiration of the entire world.

About Automobiles

The university's terrific increase in enrollment this fall has brought on another problem to add to the complex worries of the maintenance department.

The number of automobiles on the campus has increased by several hundred this quarter, and the parking and traffic problem has become acute. In former days, it was possible to arrive on the campus at 8 a.m. and park almost anywhere on the oval or in one of the off-the-beaten-path lots around the school. Today all oval spots are filled by 8 and so are most of the parking lots.

Many of these lots are in bad shape, especially the one behind Craig hall, but to date it has been impossible for the university to secure the labor and equipment to improve them.

Another problem brought about by the increase in cars is that of traffic regulations. With so many people trying to get about, both on foot and in cars, it becomes necessary that each of us observe speed limits, stop signs, and common courtesy. If we all cooperate, we can make out until proper facilities are set up for handling the increased traffic.

This column is being tossed together for the editor's approval. If you see it in print it was considered passable, but chances are it will end up in the round file under his desk. (Editor's note: It didn't.)

Last week's football game against Colorado A & M went off very successfully, in fact far better than most people in and around the campus were prone to admit it would prior to game time.

This "T" formation the Grizzlies are using is quite the thing, but it is pretty tough on the man in the stands. Ninety per cent of the time he doesn't know who has the ball until the referee unpiles the boys out on the field, however as long as the Grizzlies keep going for six with the "T," this column won't complain.

Another interesting side light on this year's team. Before the A & M game the wise boys around the various gambling joints in Butte were backing our country cousins, the Bobcats, to knock off the Grizzlies in Butte this Oct. 19 by two touchdowns. Some of these boys were so optimistic, they were spotting 7 points at even money or 8 to 5 with both teams starting equal.

But now the shoe is on the other foot. All similar bets have been swept off the boards and the same guys who were giving 7 points and choosing the Cats have taken to the hills to have their nervous and financial breakdowns. They have been replaced by more sharpies who want 7 to 14 points before they will take the Bobcats. That's more like it.

Little Did I Know

A SERIAL STORY BY JOHN F. BRUNETT

Rarely do I condescend to see my adviser. Ordinarily, when I receive his charming invitations to an interview, I decline politely on the grounds that life is too short. However, his last note had about it an air of desperation. As I paused irresolutely before the door of his outer office, I took the note from my pocket once more.

"Report to my office at 2:33 p.m." it read, followed by the illegible signature of Dr. Mike Robe, professor of bacteriology, chairman of the Board of Boards, and champion of downtrodden bacteria.

Tears filled my eyes. Obviously the man was unhappy. Between the lines stood written the horrible desperation of loneliness.

"What harm could there be in dropping in to cheer him up, to offer companionship, to spend a few minutes chatting over bygone grade curves," I asked myself. "What harm?"

"No harm," I answered.

Flinging wide the door, I ran into the outer office, waving the note before me as a symbol of man's brotherhood and mutual sacrifice.

"Tell Doctor Robe," I shouted—then, halting dramatically at his secretary's desk, I lowered my voice to a husky whisper, "Tell Doctor Robe I have come."

The secretary looked at me for a split second and hurried into the inner office, studying me over her shoulder as she went.

Minutes passed. Puzzled, I sat in a nearby chair and waited. Slowly an uneasy feeling crept over me. I was being watched. I glanced about the room furtively and, with a sudden shock, realized that opposite me, in a chair exactly like mine, sat a co-ed.

The coincidence intrigued me. Looking at her more closely, I found that she was quite captivating with her face coyly hidden behind her make-up.

Seeing that her eyes were upon me, I stood up nonchalantly, flexed my muscles, and executed several hand-springs. This pleased her for she immediately began to jabber excitedly.

Minutes passed.

Finally, the secretary came out. "Doctor Robe will see you now," she said, edging along the far side of the room.

I bowed low to the co-ed and, with the light, springy steps of the athlete, entered the office of Doctor Mike Robe, professor of bacteriology.

Little did I know that I was entering upon my destiny, that Fate held me in a vice-like grip which was so vice-like as to be grip-like. Little did I know that I knew very little.

Student Charged With Low Flying

For allegedly dusting the house-tops and radio aerials of Missoula, William H. Ferguson, a University student from Billings, was charged Thursday as a violator of air commerce regulations in what County Attorney Oskar O. Lympus said is the first action of its kind ever brought in Missoula county. Ferguson allegedly flew a Piper Cub in a careless and reckless manner over Missoula last Sunday.

Ferguson, who holds a commercial pilot's license, is described as having flown his plane at an altitude of as low as 400 to 500 feet, executing loops at a height of 1,000 feet. The complaint further states that neither the pilot nor his passenger was equipped with a parachute, also a violation.

Ferguson, described as a war time flyer, was charged with the violations at the request of Frank W. Wiley, director of the Montana state aeronautics commission, who based his action on a report from a local flyer. Ferguson pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon.

Commander Outlines VFW Plans

At an open meeting of the Veterans of Foreign War's campus post Wednesday night Com. James Potter, Missoula, outlined the aims of the organization with regard to activities at Montana State University and welcomed new overseas-veteran students with an invitation to join.

Commander Potter also made clear that, while other post members may participate actively in the campus post, it is advantageous for veterans attending the university for more than one year to obtain transfers of membership.

A committee was appointed to investigate and recommend action to the director of resident halls toward a more efficient and convenient method of payment for meals served in the halls to non-resident students. The feasibility of issuing meal tickets was discussed and presented to the committee as a possible solution.

"It is not the purpose or policy of the VFW to stir up trouble," the commander stated, "but we believe that constructive criticism and sincere ideas will help bring about better living standards in Missoula, not only for the veteran, but for the non-veteran students as well."

Grizzlies to Show Passing Attack

Fessenden Promises Thrills Will Feature Cheney Tilt; Kickoff Is Saturday 8:15

Countless gridiron thrills are in store for fans at Dornblaser field tomorrow night when the Grizzlies and Cheney Savages tangle under the lights. Coach Doug Fessenden is prepared to unleash every trick in the Grizzly book against the Savages, a wide open attack featuring passes and laterals galore.

FOUL SHOTS

BY DICK KERN

Everyone had better come to Dornblaser field early Saturday night to assure themselves of a seat for the Grizzly-Savage fracas starting at 8:15. Last week's crowd of 7,500 which watched Montana slap the Colorado Aggies around will all be back and the impressive 26-0 tally will bring in a bunch more who didn't figure the Grizzlies to be quite that good.

Cheney comes here with a win from Lewiston Normal in their pocket, and we can suppose they entertain some notions about making it two in a row by winning here. This, of course, is absurd as any fool can plainly see, but it's still necessary to convince them of their folly; so Saturday night should be interesting. The Savages are traditionally a hard team to score upon. The surprisingly small scores of previous games bear this out well. They keep the scores down not by an especially brilliant defense but because their linemen are instructed to slide around blockers and move out of position to avoid them, thus causing a large amount of congestion near the scrimmage line. Opposing ball carriers seldom have a good time playing Cheney.

The high gear smash 'em attack of Montana should net three, or maybe four, touchdowns during the evening while the Savage delegation may get beyond the mid-field stripe probably twice and that will be all.

Next week will be something else again when the Montana-Oregon game occurs. The Webfeet have a group who can very easily pass for a fair football team in spite of the fact that they eased by College of the Pacific by only one point last week. This game will be the Grizzlies first real chance to let off steam. The result will give the coast papers something to write about for weeks because when the smoke goes away, the Oregonians will be beaten by two touchdowns.

Everybody knows what comes

Although the Montanans had to work in mud most of the week, the coach reports that the Bruin passing attack is ready to go. Passing was the weakest department of the Grizzly offense against Colorado last week and the coach figures that plenty of passing against Cheney may bring that department up to par.

The Montana varsity will work out under the lights on Dornblaser field tonight at 7:30. Tomorrow's kickoff will be at 8:15, with the entire east bleachers reserved for the student body.

Ed Rossmiller, right guard, has been named Grizzly game captain for tomorrow night's tussle. Coach Fessenden plans to use the same starting lineup that opened against Colorado. Doug hopes to give everyone suited up a chance to get some game experience.

A newcomer to the lineup, Jerry Walterskirchen, former all-state guard from Missoula, has looked good in practice scrimmage and will probably see action in the Cheney game.

Probable starting lineups:

Pos. Cheney	Montana
LE Howe	Reynolds
LT Smith	Thiebes
LG Rosback	Kumpuris
C Nye	Leeper
RG Ghering	Rossmiller
RT Nagle	Cork
RE Sartain	Yovetich
QB Cobb	Helding
RH St. Marys	Palmer
LH Willson	Reagan
FB Fyatt	Radakovich

after Oregon so we won't even mention the Butte game now. We'll save the Bobcats for later, when we can give more space to such imposing adversaries.

Game Captain

ED ROSSMILLER

Tonight's Grizzly game captain is Ed Rossmiller, hefty 210-pound physical education major from Grand Forks, N. D. He is 28 years old, a senior, played two years varsity ball for North Dakota before entering the service. Played in two of the Grizzlies' games last fall, when Montana beat Pocatello Marines 36 to 6 and lost to Farragut Navy 18 to 13.

Tennis Squad In Fall Workout

Coach Jules Karlin has cut his tennis squad to 15 men and is continuing fall workouts on the university courts.

The 1947 net squad includes four lettermen from last spring, Bev Garrett, Stewart Smith, Otto Ost, and Jerry Casey.

Games have been scheduled with Eastern Washington College of Education for April 16.

Veterans—remember your Veterans' Administration "C" numbers. They're needed every once in awhile.

GRIZZLY GRID BATTLES TO GET RADIO COVERAGE

Montana's away from home games this fall will be carried by radio station KGVO, according to Rod Belcher, Missoula, sports director for the station. Grizzly home games with Utah State and Idaho will also be broadcast over KGVO.

No arrangements for coverage of the Bobcat game in Butte have been made but the station is trying to get the game, Belcher said. The Oregon, UCLA, and Washington games will definitely be carried.

New High In Forestry Enrollment

An all-time record enrollment of over 425 forestry school students was set this term, according to Dean Kenneth P. Davis of the School of Forestry. Of the 425, over half are freshmen, and 85 are advanced standing students from other institutions.

Dean Davis announced that a number of changes have been made this year in the forestry school to meet the needs of modern forestry. This year a new course, Forest Valuation, has been added under Professor Fay Clark.

Dean Davis said that the heavy enrollment in forestry is in large part caused by the fact that forestry has gained tremendously in national stature and recognition in recent years. The war highlighted the essentiality of forest products as never before. Also, with supplies of virgin timber nearing their end, forest products must now come from managed forests.

Mrs. Hazel V. Clapp and Sgt. Richard L. Stott, former university students, are both with the Theater Special Services of the army, according to army releases received here.

Mrs. Clapp, the former Bunny Vial, is director of the tours section of Theater Special Services in Honolulu, Hawaii. Sergeant Stott is currently assigned to the 314th Army Service forces band stationed near Frankfurt, Germany.

JOBS FOR WIVES

Wives of veterans can get jobs through the university Housing and Employment office according to Mrs. Peggy Leigh, secretary. Wives with children are offered jobs such as baby-sitting or housework and can take their children along. Positions are also open for men wanting manual labor for Saturdays and Sundays.

McCain Promises High Standards At University

McCain briefly outlined hopes of getting new classroom buildings from the legislature when it meets this coming January.

The university also hopes to get temporary buildings constructed on the campus this quarter under the Mead act, he said.

New Bear Paws tapped this morning are Glenn Arras, Cut Bank; Bill Cooney, Great Falls; Jim Wirth, Missoula; Carl Lamb, Billings; Phil Magee, Butte; Ken Sharp, Holtville, Calif.; Jack Goick and Ken Gibbs, Billings.

Coach Fessenden reminded students that the Cheney team is a strong team as Cheney teams have always been strong. However, he is confident of the Grizzlies' chances.

Emphasizes Difficulties

Emphasizing the difficulties facing ASMSU in view of the increased enrollment, Jerry Anderson, Helena, president of ASMSU, said the university can expect in future years an enrollment of "at least 3,000 and we're only equipped to handle 2,000."

"I think it all together well and fitting that each of you should acquaint your parents with our situation and ask them to take our problems into consideration when choosing our next Montana legislature," he said.

VA Man Will Contact Veterans Twice Weekly

B. T. Brudevold, Missoula contact representative of the Veterans' Administration, announced yesterday that he will be on the campus Tuesdays and Fridays to advise veterans on any claims they may have with the VA.

Brudevold will be at the office of A. L. Kadlec, chief of the university VA guidance office, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the days indicated. The twice-weekly visits, he explained, are a continuation of a service started summer quarter.

"We will assist veterans with all types of claims, such as insurance, hospitalization, out patient medical and dental treatment, GI loans, and any other claims with the Veterans' Administration," he said.

Mountaineer Staff Will Meet Monday

The first Mountaineer staff meeting of the quarter is scheduled for Monday at 5 p.m. in L105, Marjorie Karlin, Missoula, Mountaineer editor, announced yesterday.

Plans for the year will be discussed, and staff members appointed.

All students interested in creative writing, Miss Karlin explained, are invited to this first meeting. An increase in the size of editorial and business staffs is contemplated.
