CELEBRITY LIST GROWS FOR MONTANA SPECIAL OLYMPICS

MISSOULA--

Several more professional football players have indicated they will serve as Special Olympics "celebrity coaches," announced Barry Darrow, a former University of Montana gridder and National Football League Player.

Darrow, who is coordinating the attendance of celebrities for the Montana Special Olympics, said more pro athletes will attend the games which are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 14-16, in Missoula. This is the second straight year Missoula and UM have hosted the event.

NFLers George Buehler, Bill Kollar and Gerry Sullivan are three additions to the celebrities roster. Three Grizzlies who have recently signed with professional football teams will also attend. Guy Bingham (New York Jets), Allen Green (Houston Oilers) and Greg Dunn (Seattle Seahawks) have all indicated they will serve as coaches.

According to UM athletic director and director of the games Harley Lewis, approximately 1,100 physically handicapped people will participate in the 1980 games. They will come from nearly 100 communities in Montana.

Lewis said 20 individuals from last year's games advanced to the national Special Olympics.
