KAIMIN SELECTS NEW EDITORS

MISSOULA--

Six University of Montana students serve as editors of the Montana Kaimin, student newspaper, published four times a week during the school year.

The new editor, Sue O'Connell, was chosen spring quarter for a one-year term by the University Publications Board. All other staff positions are filled on a quarterly basis.

O'Connell, daughter of John and Beverly O'Connell of Great Falls, is a graduate of C.M. Russell High School and is presently a senior in journalism and political science. She served as an intern at the Missoulian during the summer of 1979 and holds a Watkins Scholarship for the 1979-80 school year.

Mike Dennison, managing editor, is the son of Charles and Bonita Dennison of Seattle, Wash., and is a senior in journalism and English.

Cathy Kradolfer, news editor, is the daughter of Ernest and Ruth Kradolfer of Missoula and a graduate of Hellgate High School. A senior in journalism and history/political science, Kradolfer received a Lee Newspapers Scholarship in 1979 and a Montana Pressmen's Association Scholarship in 1978.

Boomer Slothower, news editor, is the son of John and Carol Slothower of Wayzata, Minn., and a junior in journalism.

Eileen Sansom, senior editor, is the daughter of Edwin T. Sanson of Superior. and a senior in journalism.

John McNay, senior editor, is the son of John T. McNay of Anaconda, and a senior in journalism and history/political science.
