ARTERBURN TO ATTEND
NSF MEETING

brunell
11-10-66

Dr. David Arterburn, UM assistant professor of mathematics, will attend a meeting of the National Science Foundation Academic Year Institute Directors in Washington, D. C., November 17 and 18.

Dr. Arterburn is associate director of the University of Montana NSF Academic Year Institute for math teachers, which is under the direction of Prof. Howard E. Reinhardt also of the University.

The math department is currently conducting its second NSF Academic Year Institute during the academic year 1966-67 under a $67,500 NSF grant. It is the only Academic Year Institute for mathematics in Montana.

The UM math department has been notified the Institute has been renewed for the academic year 1967-68.
