

Fall 2005

"Manufacturing as a city of fairies"

Erika Howsare

Jen Tynes

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Howsare, Erika and Tynes, Jen (2005) "Manufacturing as a city of fairies," CutBank: Vol. 1 : Iss. 63 , Article 16.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank/vol1/iss63/16>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in CutBank by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

"Manufacturing as city of fairies"

Manufacturing as city of fairies, claiming no loss, just kilowatts. Numbers turning. "Bifurcated geography" pits tongues against necks. Seeing past yards because towers are wider, and nobody steps on themselves. Lick themselves. For once a corner means something. "Proprietary about the areas" of shaved, little curl at the end, a sweet gasp toward seedheads. Imagine a whole country just for sleeping, another for waking, a third for lying. Sitting in brackish water with complete control. In the center of the pot, one quick shoot. It, as follows, we will grow together. Down where Ten Mile Creek comes in so rural it rots. We find each other's animal. One per bend the rules of the house. "Rules: only those" whose swim will come up for air. And that, a zone of water or of bricksand, a blend of extents. And other patient places.