AUDREY PETERSON ATTENDS
FAMILY ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

MISSOULA--

Audrey Peterson, an assistant professor of home economics at the University of Montana in Missoula, recently attended a conference on the family in the economy at the University of Nevada, Reno. College and university teachers involved in family economics and management courses met there to discuss the implications of the economic confusion experienced by the family.

Besides discussing family financial-crises counseling and updating itself on economic issues, the group also considered new approaches to teaching. Members of the group also shared ideas on programs which have proven to be successful on various campuses.
