INSURANCE FOUNDATION GRANTS UM SCHOLARSHIP

University of Montana business students received a boost in their efforts toward a college degree with the contribution of a $400 scholarship by the Montana Insurance Education Foundation this week.

The scholarship grant was made unanimously by the Foundation's trustees, according to James E. Driscoll of Butte, president of the Foundation.

The faculty scholarship committee of the UM School of Business Administration will select the recipient of the scholarship, which is to be awarded at the business school's award banquet May 19.

The MIEF is the first educational foundation to be established by insurance agents in the United States. Its objectives include improving insurance service and standards in Montana through collegiate courses and continuing seminars for agents.
