FREDERICKSEN APPOINTED UM RELIGION SCHOOL DIRECTOR

Dr. Linwood Fredericksen, an associate professor at the University of Montana since Fall Quarter '66, has been appointed director of the UM School of Religion by the school's board of trustees.

Dr. Fredericksen is a 1953 graduate of Dana College, Blair, Neb.; received his bachelor of divinity degree from the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago, and his doctorate from the University of Iowa in 1965.

He is the author of "Truth," an article in Resource Magazine, and the Pastoral Epistles, published by the Lutheran Church in America. He also did editorial work on volume 32 of the American edition of Luther's Works.

Dr. Fredericksen has been a graduate and teaching assistant at the University of Iowa, an instructor at Minot College, N.D., and an assistant professor at Midland Lutheran College in Fremont, Neb.

In his new position, Dr. Fredericksen replaces Dr. Toshimi Tatsuyama who has been associated with the School of Religion since 1958 and has served as director since 1959. Dr. Tatsuyama will continue to teach classes in the school.
