Traveling Debate Team

Debaters to Talk At 16 Schools

The MSU debate squad will leave this Sunday on their annual autumn trip to Montana high schools, Assoc. Prof. Ralph Y. McGinnis, debate coach, said today.

The team will visit 16 schools and debate on the national high school question, resolved: That the president should be elected by a direct vote of the people, Professor McGinnis said.

McGinnis said the trip will take a week, and that he expects to be back for homecoming.

"If it weren't for Homecoming," Professor McGinnis said, "we'd stop to hunt and fish a little before coming back."

Following are the schools the debaters will visit:

Monday, Oct. 17

9 a.m.—Laurel high school
11 a.m.—Billings senior high school
2:30 p.m.—Roundup high school
8 p.m.—Custer County high school, Miles City.

King of Boogie Plays Nov. 5

Freddie Slack—the Boogie Woogie King—will play for a student dance November 5, Kay Hennessey, Conrad, ASMSU social chairman, said yesterday. Slack and his orchestra have agreed to appear here one night for $750. The original price quoted by Slack's agent, $1,250, was rejected by Central board last week.

The dance has been scheduled for 9 to 12 p.m. in the Gold room. It will be the first large student affair to make use of the new floor in the Student Union ballroom.

According to the advance publicity, Slack and his group are rated among the foremost contemporary exponents of the boogie art. During the past several years Slack has recorded a number of his arrangements, both in albums and on single records.

Preparations Made For Homecoming

The MSU-Idaho traditional football battle for the "Little Brown Stein" will top the gala, two-day Homecoming celebration Oct. 21 and 22. Parades, alumni gatherings, election of Homecoming queen, house decorating, a variety show, and much more, are scheduled, Royal Johnson, Butte, student Homecoming chairman, said today.

Big Deal

All indications point to an even bigger celebration than the beard-growing one of 1946.

Final plans are in the smoothing-out stage by Traditions board, Bear Paws, and Spurs. Assisting Johnson on the student Homecoming committee are Margaret Jesse, Missoula, Bill Mitchell, Miles City, and

Friday afternoon, Oct. 21, will find the frosh hard after bonfire wood for the evening campus pep parade and giant rally. At 7 o'clock following the rally, the University Cubs play host to a strong Montana State college Bobkitten eleven. The first day session draws to a close, said Johnson, with a variety show at the Student Union auditorium and a get-together dance in the Gold room.

Big Show

The house decorations must be up by 3 p.m. that Friday, according to Johnson, with the judging to be both during the day and night.

The Homecoming parade at 10 Saturday morning touches off the Oct. 22 festivities, Johnson said. Planning calls for four bands, floats from all girl's living groups—each with their queen entrant aboard, floats from each professional schools, and from many campus clubs and downtown organizations.

Big Game

The Grizzlies tackle the rugged Idaho Vandals at 2 p.m. Extensive half-time activities are to include a performance by the University band, and awarding of prizes for house decoration, Johnson said.

Open house at all fraternities, sororities, residence halls, and the Student Union for visitors and alumni follows the game from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Mountaineer Staff Election Today

The editor in chief and other members of the Mountaineer staff for the coming year will be chosen at the first regular Mountaineer meeting today at 4 p.m. in Library 103.

Joe Gionet, Shirley, Mass., urges all students interested in any phase of writing, advertising, magazine makeup, and circulation to attend the meeting. Gionet served as fiction editor of the Mountaineer last spring quarter.

Mountaineer staff members of last year extend a special welcome to underclassmen who are interested in poetry, fiction, and article writing.

The Mountaineer is the campus quarterly magazine which has as its purpose the encouragement of student writing through publication.

Applications Due—

Today is the last day for people interested in being an associate editor on the Sentinel to turn in their applications. Applications should be addressed to Laura Bergh, chairman, publications board, and should be in the Student Union business office before 3 p.m. today. People applying should be of junior or senior standing.

TEA THURSDAY FOR FORESTERS' WIVES

The Forestry Wife's club will have its annual tea Thursday, Oct. 13, 8 p.m. at the Community center on the corner of South avenue and Hilda. Bunny Frame and Phyllis Kincheloe are co-chairmen.

The purpose of the tea is to welcome all new and old members. Forestry student's wives interested are invited to attend, the chairmen said.

VARSITY RIFLE CLUB MEETS

The varsity rifle club will meet at 7:30 tonight in Forestry 103 to discuss routine business and plan postal matches for the year.

PHILATELISTS GATHER

Stamp collectors will gather tonight at 8:30 in the Eloise Knowles room of the Student Union for the first meeting of the Stamp club, according to V. C. Anderson, Missoula. Anderson requested that members of the club notice the change in meeting time over last year.

Get a Horse? No Thank You; Make Mine Heteromorphic

Transportation . . . what is it? Webster says it's a "means of conveyance." Be what it may, transportation on the campus today is no longer a horse and buggy parade, though occasionally the line may be onion-skin thin.

Students and faculty members ride to classes in almost everything but Jinrikishas. On Aber day students closely parallel this type of transportation when they haul each other around in wheel barrows.

Since referendums 51 and 52 are now history, one would think that the faculty would set the style with up-to-date automotive conveyances. This is hardly the case. Sometime, when time and occasion permits, observe some of the deans, professors, and instructors struggle out of or off from their vehicles. Notice occasionally a resemblance to a tractor in sound and something plowed up in vintage.

What is the campus fad in the line of transportation?

There is none. There seems to be no rhyme or reason to what is the Joe-college buggy of today. The painted up jalopy is hardly more than a memory. But automobiles, to use the term loosely to be more inclusive, predominate. The auto vintages range from the classical period to the present ultra-modernistic. Comparing the two extreme eras, one might recklessly conclude that the greatest evolutionary change is in the appearance. After evolving away from, then back to many of the original principles, the function of the automobile remains the same. Or does it? The original function was transportation, remember?

Of the classical carriers on the campus, the model "T" Ford is still traditionally represented. This quarter there are about five, most of which are in better condition than the people driving them.

Next are the "A" models, Jeeps, the junior sized Crosleys, and other makes with the troublesome gearshift that fits between the legs of the unfortunate who finds himself riding in the middle. Though hardly a fad, these are the most numerous cars around.

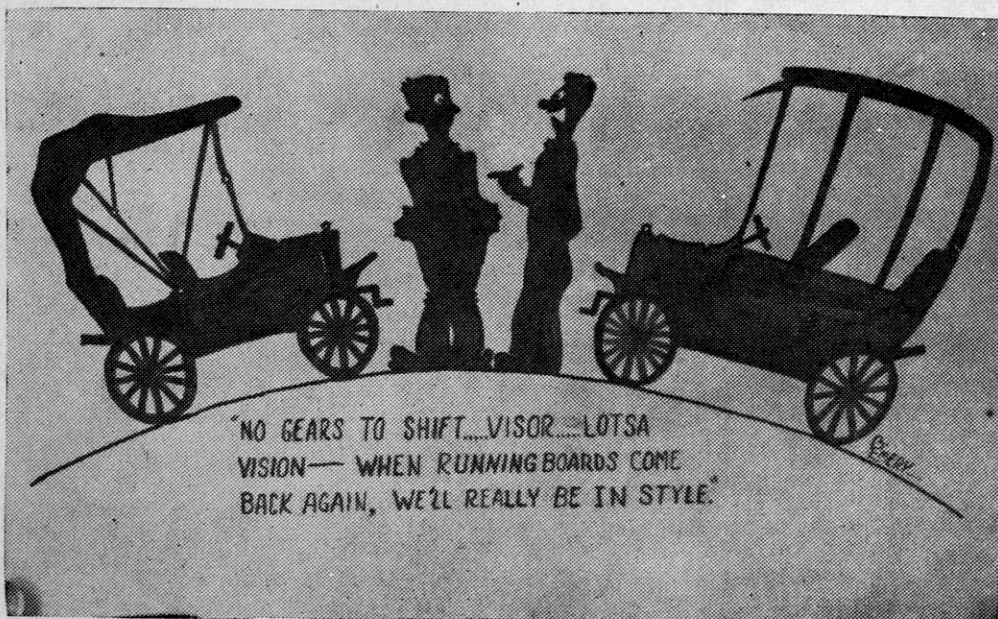

From this stage, the cars evolve to gearshifts on the steering wheels and massive fenders . . . fenders that cost more to replace than the entire body of a hoorah car of the twenties.

Finally in the ultra-modern era of automotive transportation, are the fishtailed, propeller beaked, and portholed campus cruisers. Once in a while you can see the heteromorphic car. That is a car that the owner has added to the original design fancy decorations found on the futuristic autos. New Chevies look neat with fishtails, portholes, and a packard Swan radiator decoration. Then there are the hot rods . . . the car that has nothing left of its original self but a gas tank cap or, a battery cable. There is a limited supply of hot rods on the campus this year.

Among the two-wheelers that frequent the campus are the motorcycles, bicycles, motorscooters, motorbikes and a tandem bicycle. Many of these seem to disappear in the winter, though there are always a few students and faculty members that brave the icy streets and cold winds on two wheels when many a four-wheeled vehicle can't cut a straight path down University.

Transportation . . . how interesting it would be if we could look into a crystal ball and see how our children and grandchildren will make their eight o'clocks.

Hot Situation

Governor Bonner is in a peculiar situation. He is a defendant in a lawsuit brought by a plaintiff with whom he agrees in principal.

The governor, as one of the three members of the state board of examiners, is a joint defendant in a suit brought by Mrs. Cloyse Overturf of Helena, a university alumna, in which she alleges that the examiners acted without proper authority in their allocation of the $5,000,000 greater university bond issue. The other two examiners are Attorney General Arnie Olsen and Secretary of State Sam Mitchell.

Governor Bonner, if you remember, opposed Olsen and Mitchell in the allocation of the funds. The governor favored the original allocation made by the state board of education, a non-partisan group composed of some of the state's leading citizens. At a meeting of the examiners in August Bonner moved to accept the allocation of the board of education, but his motion was killed when it failed to receive a second from either of the other two examiners.

Monday the governor, in a separate answer to Mrs. Overturf's complaint, stated that the examiners' allocation was unreasonable and denied that "the entire board of examiners," as charged in the complaint, "intends to and will carry out the alleged allocation."

Apparently the governor intends to stick by his guns in opposing Olsen's and Mitchell's action. It should be interesting when the hearing starts Nov. 7 to see one of the defendants testifying on behalf of the plaintiff.—GR.

Don't Cheat, Try This

Editorials on how to cheat on examinations are getting to be old stuff, but this one which appeared in the Whitman college Pioneer, Sept. 29, is almost too good to pass up. It was by-lined Brad Scudder and entitled "Examination Insurance" or "150 Proof System Outlined."—Ed.

In order to benefit from this article, read and reread it. Commit it to memory. You frosh—pay attention here—we're giving you dope that ain't readily obtained on this campus. This refers to the 150 proof system of examination insurance. Of course, if you feel that this sort of thing is unnecessary, or if you would rather (ugh) study for examinations, stop here.

The pitifully unsophisticated refer to our insurance as cheating—of all the ridiculous ideas. Cheating is called the easy way—just try and get five hundred words on a two-inch square of bond paper. This is not easy and requires a certain amount of skill and dexterity.

Four of the most popular examination insurance policies are sketched below. With a little imagination and possibly some rationalization the more unfortunately endowed (mentally, that is) students can manage to hold out for three semesters or more by holding one of these policies.

Card Tricks Help

(1) The "Pocket Card" or "Filing System": After diligently practicing our special micro-writing system, try and print all the information you will need on a small piece of stiff white paper. Then run down to the Beta house and check out a clean white shirt. Grease the pocket with "Wildroot" especially compounded for cold winter examinations. The card should now slide easily in and out of the shirt pocket. If the professor should catch you with the cards in the out position merely shuffle them and ask him to take one because you have a dandy new card trick to show him. When he picks out one run like hell.

(2) The "Continental System": Write all information in French on a large card. Don't be afraid to show the card because most of the professors can't read French. However, if you do find a professor who can read French, write the notes in Sanskrit. Of course if you can't read Greek or Sanskrit, forget it. Send your notes to Greece or Sanskrit and help some poor kid that may be flunking there.

The Absentee System

(3) The "Proxy Method": This scheme doesn't even require your presence in the examination room. Send in your place a friend who has already taken the examination, or a person who is alleged to have the course "cooled." If you can't find a friend or a brain trust, send somebody who can read French.

(4) The "Bold Look Method": This method is to be used only as a last resort, and requires only a text book and a fearless composure. When a tough question comes up, simply haul out the text book and look up the answer. If the professor asks you why—you, of all people would do a thing like this—tell him you saw a tarantula crawl into the book and also to mind his own damn business.

New Parking Rules in Effect For Dornblaser Field Games

New parking regulations have been worked out for high school and university football games at Dornblaser field, T. G. Swearingen, maintenance engineer, said yesterday. The new regulations were formed by Cac Hubbard, MSU athletic director, D. H. Beary, principal of Missoula county high school, and Mr. Swearingen.

The following regulations were adopted:

All parking will be prohibited east along Van Buren street and along the rear of the west football stands except for one police car, one fire department car, and one sheriff's car. This measure has been taken to safeguard pedestrians, Swearingen said.

Restricted parking will be allowed in the area from the parking chain south-east of the chemistry-pharmacy building on Keith avenue to the men's gymnasium and north as far as the forestry building and Simpkins hall. This area will be reserved for the vehicles of officials, vending machine operators, personnel, and trailer house occupants. Special windshield stickers will admit cars to this area.

The parking areas around the oval and in front of the natural science building will be reserved for the police, special guests, and the highway patrol. Admittance to this area will be by windshield stickers.

The special passes for the trailer occupants owning automobiles may be secured in Swearingen's office in the basement of Main hall.

CHEMISTRY CLUB TO MEET

Juniors and seniors in the chemistry department have been invited to attend a meeting of the Chemistry club at 7:30 tonight in room 108 of the chemistry-pharmacy building.

Health Service Has Results of X-Rays

All students who had chest X-rays taken during registration week can pick up the results at the health service office today, according to Dr. C. R. Lyons, health service director.

Students with a trace of pathology in their records will be notified by mail this week, Dr. Lyons said.

The Montana State Board of Health reported yesterday that the chest X-ray unit recorded 2,490 students during registration week at Montana State University. Of this total there were 13 cases of suspected tuberculosis.

Dr. Lyons added that this is a higher percentage than in previous years and that most of the positive cases involve new students in the 17-19 age group.

Frosh Candidates File by Saturday

Candidates who will run for office in the freshman primary elections a week from today must file petitions with the student union auditor at the Student Union business office by noon Saturday.

Candidates may pick up petition forms now at the Student Union business office. Each petition must be signed by 20 members of the freshman class in addition to the candidate himself.

Offices to be filled are president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and Central board delegate. The two candidates for each office who receive the largest number of votes in the primaries will compete in the general election which will be within two weeks of the primaries.

Only those members of the freshman class who will be freshmen according to credits for two quarters of the school year will be eligible to vote.

Voting will be by secret ballot in both primary and general elections.

If all the students who sleep in class were laid end to end, they would be much more comfortable.

Grizzlies Open 29-Game Season at Billings With NDU, Dec. 2; Rocheleau Absent from Lineup Sparked by Eight Lettermen

Despite the loss of Lou Rocheleau by ineligibility, if not by a broken leg, the Montana State University Grizzlies basketball team for 1949-50 will be a tough one to beat. There are eight returning lettermen, and eight ready-for-action sophomores who earned frosh letters to spark the Grizzlies to higher marks and more broken records than ever.

Coach "Jiggs" Dahlberg has announced a 29-game schedule for the university hoopsters, with more than half the engagements being played on the home court.

Sparked by veterans Bobby Cope, Jim Graham, Dick Carsten-son, Johnny Eaheart, Ray Bauer, Tommy Kingsford, Dan Marinkovich, and Burt Thompson, Mont-ana's Silvertips will take to the courts for the first time on Decem-ber 2 and 3, when they will play the University of North Dakota at Billings.

Added to the veteran string are several sophomore standouts who begin varsity competition this season. Using last year's scorebooks as an indication, the Grizzlies will be bolstered by such hoopsters as Bob Hasquet, Joe Luckman, Bob- by Sparks, Bob Bedard, Walt Stockoff, Dick Anderson, George Scott, and Don Lucas.

A Ventura Junior college trans-fer, Joe Brennan, is another fine addition. Brennan hails from Helena, and will be remembered for his versatility in basketball, football and track.

The basketball schedule for this season is as follows:

Dec. 2, University of North Da-kota, Billings.

Dec. 3, University of North Da-kota, Billings.

Rally and Mixer For Freshmen

A combination pep rally and mixer will be staged in the Copper room at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Jean Ann Pocta, Findlay, Ohio, rally chairman, said yesterday.

Miss Pocta said the program is being presented to give freshmen a chance to meet their classmates and to learn the school songs and yells in preparation for the first Cub home game Saturday. The rally-dance is open to upperclassmen as well as freshmen.

Two judges will select the pep-piest and prettiest fresman wo-man as queen of the rally. The judges will be Fred Abbott, Bos-ton, and Bob Zibell, Linton, N. D. Admission will be 25 cents.

News From Other Schools

Over at Whitman college in Walla Walla, Wash., Parent's week end is being revived. This year the event will coincide with Whitman's homecoming. The college paper, The Pioneer, says that the parents will have full freedom of the campus to do as they wish for a day. Sounds like a chance for Pop to collect a few F's for Junior.

All charity organizations are included in the Community Chest drive on the campus of the Uni-versity of Washington, according to the University of Washington Daily.

A mixer was sponsored by the campus organization and all pro-ceeds went into a common coffer which was later divided up by the various organizations. Highlight of the dance was a drawing by the men for a date with an unknown 5 foot 4 inch blonde. The gals re-ceived their chance at a drawing too. First prize was a date with a BMOC—name not revealed—6 foot 2 inches tall.

The Oregon State Daily Barom-eter reports that a delegation of fur farmers representing the Ore-gon Fox and Mink Breeders asso-ciation visited the campus last week relative to conducting some research on fur-bearing animals at the college. A delegation from Montana will be at Corvallis this Saturday afternoon collecting a beaver pelt to go with a starting collection of Aggie and Coyote pelts.

WELLESLEY, MASS: The math-ematics department at Wellesly college has developed a plan which might well be copied by depart-ments in other schools. It is a sys-tem of interchange of personnel between the mathematics depart-ments of various schools.

Now being prepared for a trial run under the direction of Depart-mental Chairman Marion E. Stark, the plan has already been sub-scribed to by several other colleges. It may start officially in the 1950-51 academic year.

To begin with, the plan will be merely a two-way exchange, Miss Stark said. An instructor from one college will teach for a year in a second college, while someone from the second college will teach for a year in the first.

SIG EPS BLANK JUMBO

A touchdown in the waning sec-onds of the third quarter, and a safety on the succeeding kick-off accounted for all scoring in the Jumbo hall-SPE touchball league contest Tuesday.

The 8-0 loss was the second in two starts for Jumbo while it pro-vided an opening game win for SPE.

A Bedard-to-Melver pass pro-vided the SPE scoring punch. The Jumbo receiver slipped and fell after receiving the kick off for an automatic safety.

Campbell Cites Student Abuses Of Library's Privileges

"I am ashamed to say this, but I have never seen a library build-ing anywhere, on any campus that I have visited, that has been so badly kept by the students," said Kathleen Campbell, head librari-an, yesterday.

"Therefore, we would like to request that the students pick up their belongings, on leaving the library, and refrain from throwing their cigarette butts all over the lower halls. This is for your sake rather than ours."

Smoking Privileges

According to Miss Campbell, the students at MSU have the privi-lege of smoking in the lower halls of the library building, a privi-lege granted in few libraries of other educational institutions.

Also, on no other campus that they visited did either Miss Camp-bell or Catherine M. White, refer-ence librarian, note loud talking or laughing in the halls, either afternoons or evenings, even in libraries whose overfilled reading rooms were larger than ours.

Several signs have been placed on the stairways, requesting stu-dents to refrain from blocking them. This request has been in large part ignored by certain stu-dents who laugh, talk, and smoke, meanwhile distributing their ashes and cigarettes over the floor. This situation has caused the library and the University a great deal of embarrassment recently when offi-cials of other educational institu-tions have visited here.

Miss Campbell stated that the incoming draught of air up through the stairway served to circulate smoke through the upper floors, making conditions on these floors bad.

Classes Disturbed

Another reason for the main-tenance of quiet on the main floor is that several classes are con-ducted in those rooms and concen-tration is almost impossible during certain hours of the day. There are also reserved reading rooms on the first floor in which stu-dents taking survey courses must study.

"The majority of the students do cooperate, on being asked to maintain silence," Miss Campbell said, "but it is always the same

Mrs. Frank Keith, housemother for Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, couldn't believe her eyes Sunday morning when she opened the front door and saw a model "T" Ford, complete with 1932 license plates and convertible top, parked squarely in front of the Kappa threshold.

After a few minutes of deliberate examination she decided it was a car and it was sitting directly in front of the entrance of 1005 Gerald avenue.

Pranksters

During the course of Saturday evening, pranksters, rushing Halloween, apparently pushed the aged model up on the front porch and situated it neatly between the front door and the pillars at the end of the porch.

The battered chugmobile, belonging to Keri Gyllette, Los Angeles, and Janet Howe, Fargo, N. D., had been purchased recently from Glenn Hall, Spokane. According to Miss Gillette, "It was an engineering masterpiece the way the trouble makers fitted our limousine so close to the front door without scratching the beautiful finish."

Obstacle Course

From all reports the outdated vehicle made it quite hazardous for the Kappas to get from the front entrance to church with the outlandish form blocking the main thoroughfare of the Kappa mansion.

Gracefulness, poise, and ladylike movement were abolished when the girls could be seen straddling the hood of the old relic to get out and enjoy the Sunday air. When the first hope of moving the "T" seemed lost, some of the sisters suggested keeping the old car as a permanent fixture on the front porch and building a new door next to the old "chugmobile."

Rush Party

One girl suggested keeping it for rushing purposes for the coming year. "With a new coat of paint, some curtains, and venetian blinds, who knows what a rushing attribute it might turn into?" she exclaimed.

Both owners of Ford's earlier creation thought with the car placed the way it was, quite a few dollars could be saved in gas and oil. Beside that it would solve the question of where to store it for the coming winter.

When all hope seemed to dwindle, the Kappas' neighbors, the Sigma Nus, came to the rescue by offering to move it from its apparent last resting place.

Not more than half an hour later

Bond Hearing Set for Nov. 7

The disputed University bond allocation issue was up in the air again when the district court hearing was postponed Tuesday until November 7.

The hearing on the injunction suit was originally scheduled for Oct. 3. This is the third time it has been moved ahead by District Judge George W. Padbury.

Attorneys for Mrs. Cloyse Overturf, Helena, have asked for more time to prepare their briefs. Mrs. Overturf seeks to restrain the state board of examiners from spending the $5,000,000 without the approval of the state education board. A temporary ban is now in effect pending the hearing.

Meanwhile, a group of Havre citizens have filed a complaint with the court, supporting the examiners.

The board of examiners split in a 2-1 decision as to how the money should be allocated to the six units of the university system. Gov. John Bonner was in favor of following the recommendations of the board of education. Attorney General Arnold Olsen and Secretary of State Sam Mitchell revised these recommendations, cutting the appropriations for the university, Western Montana college of education, and the State college. Northern Montana college of education at Havre was raised from $500,000 to $1,200,000; Eastern college of education, at Billings, $300,000 to $600,000. The School of Mines at Butte had no change made in its appropriation.
