Job of State University In Education Is Topic Of Third Forum in Series

Four speakers, including both students and faculty members, will discuss the university's educational job in the third forum of the University Forum series in the Student Union auditorium at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The topic will be: "What Is the State University's Educational Job; or Is There Too Much Bread and Butter Education?"

Tentative forum speakers are Russell Smith, assistant professor of law; C. Rulon Jeppesen, professor of physics; Harry Thomsen, exchange student from Denmark, and Sterling Soderlind, Billings, student in the journalism school. Dean James W. Maucker of the education school will be moderator for the forum.

Among the problems expected to be discussed are those of general education courses, the catering of the universities to big business, the general absence of mandatory courses in the continually confront state universities.

Carroll O'Connor, Missoula, chairman of the Montana Forum, urged a large turnout for Sunday's discussion.

"The attendance at the previous forums has been good, and in view of the fact that the subject matter this time is of prime importance to both students and faculty, it is hoped that the turnout will be much larger this Sunday," O'Connor said.

Band Closer To New Duds

Central board yesterday made further progress toward the final purchase of new haberdashery for the Grizzly band. Justin Gray, director of university bands, reported to the board the bids of several uniform manufacturers and handling offers made by local firms.

The board tentatively cut the number of new garbs from 100 to 90 as the cost per uniform quoted by the manufacturers was generally higher than anticipated. Originally, the cost of the outfits was set at between $45 and $50 apiece. Bids varied from slightly below $50 to $55. The board has appropriated $5,000 for the purchase of the uniforms.

Agents for handling the purchase and tailoring of the suits for the University have been narrowed to two local concerns. Central board will examine sample uniforms now being made up.

On recommendation of publications board, Central board appointed Hugh O'Connor, New York York City, Sentinel photograph editor. The position pays $35 a month.

A pompon concession was granted by the board to WAA.

The pompons are to be purchased by the organization and resold to students at university athletic contests. Cost of the baubles will be approximately 45 cents. WAA was given the concession for the school years 1949-50 and 1950-51 with the opportunity of yearly renewals after 1951.

The purpose of the pompons is two-fold, according to WAA. They are designed to increase school spirit and also to line the coffers of the organization from the proceeds of their sale. Profits are scheduled to be used in furthering interscholastic athletic competition for university women.

Soldier's Medal Awarded Wife

Mrs. Alberta E. Tense, 2005 South 12th Street, received a Soldier's Medal in lieu of her husband, Cpl. Francis L. Tense, at a ceremony yesterday at the ROTC building. Corporal Tense lost his life in a drowning accident last summer.

President James A. McCain spoke to a group of Mrs. Tense's friends and relatives and military department staff members. Colonel Porter presented the medal to Mrs. Tense and her 3-year old son, Alvin.

Corporal Tense lost his life July 9, 1949 at Fort Riley, Kansas, while attempting to rescue a 3-year old boy from drowning. Corporal Tense and some companions were picnicking near his station when Tense saw the child struggling in the nearby river. Tense made his way to the aid of the child but the river's current was too strong for him and both he and the child drowned.

Orators Practice For Three-Way Debate Tourney

Practice debates between the teams to go to the Northwest Triangle meet this week end will be the program for tomorrow night's MSU Debate and Oratory association meeting. The meeting, every Wednesday, is in Library 109 at 7:30.

The Triangle meet is an annual tournament between Montana, Idaho, and Washington State universities. The three schools will debate on the national debate question for this year: that the United States should nationalize all basic non-agricultural industries.

Tom's 45-Man Crew Has Served U for 220 Years

BY TOM E. ROBERTS

It takes more than students and faculty to make up a university. Forty-five behind-the-scenes men guide the well-oiled machinery of MSU's maintenance department.

The staff of Maintenance Engineer Tom Swearingen does all the odd jobs around the campus from heating and repairing all the buildings to replacing burned-out fuses and light bulbs. Of these 45 men, nine have a total of 220 years service to the University.

One man in this department has seen graduating classes from the 1919 class of 64 students to last year's largest class of 466 students. He is DeForest Merroman and has been on the staff for 30 years. He has seen the campus grow from a few buildings to its present 32. He was employed in 1919 as night watchman, and in '29 became janitor of the forestry building. In 1940, Main hall became his daily workshop and last year he moved to the temporary classroom buildings. He is 74, second in age to the University's oldest employee.

Oldest

The oldest employee in age is Henry Bergstrom of the carpenter's shop. He is 77, but is a comparative youngster in tenure, having been on the campus only 11 years. He did carpenter work in Missoula from 1907 until 1938, when he joined the maintenance ranks.

During the war, Bergstrom retired—for three weeks. He was called back because of the shortage of help and hasn't bothered about retiring again.

During President Clapp's administration, in 1921, John Swartz joined the staff. He has been tending to the heat, first as fireman, now as engineer, since 1922. In '22, John's brother George Swartz came to the University, and in 1923, became foreman of the heating plant. He remained foreman for 15 years, then received his present position of Chief Engineer.

Third Place Tie

Tied with Swartz for third place on the tenure list with 27 years is Walt Smith. He is foreman of the carpenter shop; the behind-the-scenes man who does the building and repair work in his shop—that building just south of the men's gym.

Then there is the custodian who has seen only 26 classes gradu-

SOCIAL HEADS

TO MEET

The social chairmen of all organizations and living groups on the campus will meet tomorrow at 5 o'clock in the Bitterroot room to make the temporary social calendar for winter quarter.

Cow College Questions Fight Song

Mid-quarters are over at Bozeman, and that nasty little sheet known as the Montana Exponent (which doesn't make its weekly appearance during mid-quarter tests) is back with all its venom.

This time it has maligned not only the Kaimin, but the whole of MSU and one of its most cherished traditions. When the Exponent was weeping several weeks ago about MSC not having a school fight song which had not been plagiarized (that's the way it is spelled, Cy) from some other college or university, we suggested that the MSU music school might be willing to help out the country cousins.

Noe Has Doubts

Cy Noe, who attacked MSU in his column, "The Acid Bath," is an alleged sports writer, so naturally he had his ears glued to the radio when Georgia Tech played Alabama several weeks ago. While doing so, he heard the familiar strains of "Up with Montana" in the guise of the Georgia Tech fight song, he says.

Now, if Brother Noe had been in the habit of doing a little checking before he took pen in hand, he would have discovered the following information:

In 1929 the Associated Students of the University of Montana (that's before the name was changed to MSU) copyrighted "Up with Montana." You just don't get a copyright for plagiarized material. The song was sung here for years before that date.

MSU Song

The song was written by Dick Howell, the piano arrangement by Lowndes Maury. Both are former MSU students.

Stanley Teel, professor of music at MSU and former director of the Grizzly band, made the band arrangement about 10 years ago. That arrangement is still being used at MSU.

Professor Teel says that no one has ever questioned the copyright of "Up With Montana." This also might be added: Early this quarter a national recording company asked ASMSU if it would allow the company to make cuttings of "Up with Montana" on a royalty basis. Need more be said?

The Bottleneck

This is a typical noontime scene at the corner of University and Maurice near the entrance to the oval. Cars which flood out of the parking lots on the south side of the campus are lined up to the south on Maurice almost as far as the camera's lens can see. To the north, behind the cameraman, the scene is almost identical. Would a traffic light help?

ate from this school. Lawrence Toner did miscellaneous work for the University in 1923 and from '25 to '35 drove trucks. Since then, he has been custodian, or, as he puts it, "bell hop."

Keeps Us Warm

Orval Keith joined the staff of the heating plant 23 years ago and has helped keep the buildings warm ever since.

The ninth of the 45 men who have 20 years or more service to MSU is John McFarland, who came here as watchman in 1929. His tours of the campus brought some excitement in 1937 when he discovered two men trying to break into Craig hall. He exchanged shots with the fleeing men and was hit in the leg. At that time, he was transferred to the heating plant where he is today.

Two hundred and twenty years, and they're not looking for new jobs. They seem to like it here.

Juniors Get Thumbs-Down On Delegate

The junior delegate election fiasco became a thing of the recent past and the vacant delegateship was consigned to the not-so-distant future through action taken by Central board yesterday. Throwing up their hands in a manner more or less akin to disgust, the board members decided to leave the junior board position vacant until the Aber-day elections.

George Fox, Laurel, present—and for the moment sole—junior delegate, moved that the board "terminate this junior election business" by waiving article five of the ASMSU by-laws, the vacancy to be filled during the general spring elections. Article five stipulates that a board vacancy is to be remedied in a class meeting with 20 per cent of the eligible voters attending.

The position will be filled in the spring under article seven, calling for a primary and a general election, which governs all student officers chosen in the Aber-day balloting.

Thus, the juniors, failing in three tries to name a board spokesman, will sit out winter and part of spring quarter minus one (1) Central board delegate. Board members were of the opinion that Central board, in calling three class meetings, had made an honest attempt to name a successor to Jeanne Jones, Butte, and that juniors, in failing to manifest sufficient interest in the election, had forced the board to make this decision.

The only dissenting vote on the motion was registered by Torval Halverson, Ledger.

Sentiments expressed by board members indicate that the 20 per cent attendance ruling may call for future rewriting of article five.

Play Tryouts Begin Tonight

Tryouts for Montana Masquer's winter quarter production, "There Shall Be No Night" begin tonight. Director LeRoy W. Hinze has announced opening tryouts at 7:30 this evening in Simpkins Little Theater.

Tryouts will be completed this week. They are scheduled for this evening; tomorrow from 3 to 5 and from 7 to 9:30. Final tryouts will be Friday evening. Any interested student is invited to participate, Mr. Hinze said.

The entire cast for Robert Sherwood's play will be chosen at week's end, although the show will not go into actual rehearsal until after Christmas vacation.

Second in the Masquer season of three productions, "There Shall Be No Night" is scheduled for Jan. 31 through Feb. 4 in Simpkins Little Theatre.

If It Takes Fear, Let's Have Fear

The Kaimin yesterday received the following letter from the state highway patrol:

"Due to numerous violations and complaints coming through the Montana Highway patrol, Supervisor E. H. England has instructed all patrolmen to make arrests for violations of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit through towns and the 15 m.p.h. speed limit through school zones.

"Supervisor England has asked that all the motoring public be on the alert when traveling through these zones on account of the numerous school children and pedestrians.

"Let not one of us be the guilty party to kill or injure an innocent school child."

This is welcome news, but we can't expect the highway patrolmen to patrol the streets of this or any other Montana city or town. There just aren't enough of them. It is a big enough job to patrol the highways.

In fact, the Missoula police department is hardly large enough to patrol the city, otherwise there would be a great deal more arrests in the university district—particularly on the University avenue speedway.

The picture on page 1 of today's Kaimin illustrates two problems:

1. The congestion at University and Maurice avenue at noontime. Cars are lined up almost as far as the eye can see to the south. Behind the cameraman, cars were lined up equally as far to the north. They are being held up by a steady stream of cars coming around the oval and going west on University. A traffic light might alleviate this jam.

2. Also there is a problem here which the cameraman couldn't catch with his Speed Graphic. Each of the cars stopped or traveling at this corner is a potential killer, particularly when judged from the speed with which many of them travel down University. Other cars—unseen in this shot—move with equally great speeds down other streets which run parallel to University. University students are not the only potential victims of these speeders. High school and grade school children also are among the pedestrians in the university district at noontime.

The only way to reduce speed—and thereby reduce the probability of running down pedestrians—is through enforcement of the laws. And that means patrolling. Few drivers are considerate enough to obey traffic laws voluntarily, particularly laws involving speeding. The only time most drivers obey speed limits is when there is a cop in sight or when they are afraid one might be around the next corner or behind the next billboard.

It is a shame that we must admit this. But, honestly now, isn't it true? The National Safety council can quote figures, percentages, proportions, averages, totals, but year after year the death toll rises. Year after year there are more drunken drivers, drunken pedestrians, reckless drivers, speeders, show-offs, maniacs behind the wheels. Apparently we are too old or too wise or don't give-a-damn-ish to have an consideration for the other fellow—or ourselves for that matter.

We don't listen to figures or slogans. We don't look at the signs or posters or the mutilated bodies of traffic victims. We don't hear the pleas for safety or the cries from hospital emergency wards. We just listen for the patrolman's siren and if we don't hear it we keep on speeding. We listen only to fear—not the fear of hurting ourselves or someone else, but the fear of shelling out 10 berries to a police judge or JP.

If it takes fear to control the speeding and reckless driving and drunken driving in the university district—or anywhere else—then let's have fear. Let's hear more sirens, let's read more traffic tickets, let's have more fines. Let's save more lives.—GR.

Letters to the Editor . . .

BEAR PAWS ARE NOT RESPONSIBLE

Dear Editor:

We are indeed sorry to hear that Mr. Joe Stell did not receive a carton of Chesterfields for his letter to the editor of Nov. 18.

As far as his accusations directed toward the Bear Paws go, we would prefer to ignore the ranting of some badly informed student do-gooder. However, as a matter of record and to clear our name, the responsibility for cleaning up the bonfire rests with the university maintenance department and not with the Bear Paws as charged.

In regard to who set off the premature blaze, we have good circumstantial evidence as to who did the job, but no actual proof. In order to protect a possibly innocent student, we have said nothing. Could be you know more about it, eh, Joe?

Anytime you have any more comments or suggestions to make, Joe, we meet Tuesday at 9 in the Student Union. I hope this letter has clarified matters for Mr. Stell and any other interested party.

Sincerely,
Jim Murphy

President's Reception Slated for Tonight

President and Mrs. James A. McCain will greet faculty members and the clerical staff tonight at the president's annual reception in the Student Union lounge from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Vet Housing Has Winterizing Glass

The veterans' housing office announced that weather-glass material for winterizing doors and windows is now available to those living in the housing project.

The material comes in 36-inch widths and will be sold for 22 cents a linear foot at the housing office. The weather-glass will be sold only in whole-foot lengths and not in odd lengths.

Project residents were advised that no money for the material will be taken at the housing office, but that the amount will be charged to their rental account.

Rotary Club Likes MSU's Symphonians

"That was music I liked. It is obvious that your students sing from the heart, and enjoy what they sing."

This comment was made by Toastmaster Weymout Symmes after the MSU Symphonians sang at the ladies' night dinner of the Rotary club in Lewistown last Tuesday. The quote is taken from an editorial that appeared in the Lewistown Daily News.

The editorial went on to say that University music students have been entertaining there now for several years, and they always make a tremendous hit. They are good, of course, but one of the big reasons for the pleasure they give others is that their music so obviously comes from their hearts. They enjoy immensely what they are doing. And they do it exceedingly well. They made fine ambassadors for MSU.

The members of the groups are all music majors and have been singing together for four years. The members who made the trip to Lewistown are Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, Missoula; James Callihan, Missoula; Neil Dahlstrom, Missoula, and Colleen Haag, Pasco, Wash. John Lester, professor of music, was in charge of the group.

Fiedler To Speak On Author Today

Leslie A. Fiedler, associate professor of English in humanities, will present a talk on Simone Weil, famous European author, and her letters today at 4 o'clock in the Bitterroot room. The occasion is the last English club meeting of this quarter.

Miss Weil, who died two years ago, is famous for her essay on the "Iliad" by Homer. She is relatively unknown in this country, and the purpose of Fiedler's talk is to introduce her to the students of MSU.

Plans Made for Nite Club Show

Bob Turner, Helena, president of the Music club, announced today that plans for the annual Nite Club dance are being made and an entertainment committee has been appointed.

Members of the committee are John Lester, adviser; Falle Nelson, Glendive; Bob Morrow, Butte; Patsy Moore, Bozeman; Jim Calhoun, Missoula; and Doug Custer.

Planned Next Quarter

The date of the dance has been tentatively set as Jan. 14, and price of tickets has not been decided upon.

The Nite Club dance was started in 1940 as a means of getting money for the Music School foundation to be paid out as student loans.

A formal dance, it is one of the few functions on the campus where students and Missoula residents come together. Of all tickets sold, about half are sold to townpeople.

Theme Undecided

The entertainment is presented on a certain theme, yet to be decided upon, and the interior of the Gold room is set to the scene of a high-class nite club, complete with flower girls. The dance, some say, is second only to the famous Forster's ball.

'List' Interviews Keep Dean's Office Busy

Folks over in the dean's office are keeping plenty busy these days interviewing students who find themselves on the much-feared "dean's list."

Conducting the interviews of students who were flunking two or more courses at mid-quarter are Dr. Gordon B. Castle, senior academic dean; Dr. H. J. Wunderlich, dean of students; and Dr. Maurine Clow, associate dean of students.

Why Flunk?

The purpose of the interviews, Dean Wunderlich explained, is to find out why the students on the "list" are flunking.

"We try to open up the difficulties," he said. "We are not attempting to resolve a student's problem. We want to open the student's thinking on the problem so he knows what he is up against."

The dean doing the interviewing has plenty of material at his fingertips: high school records, academic record, personnel record, counseling center data, and other individual records.

In these records may lie clues to the student's difficulty. They may show either that the student is not devoting enough time to academic work or that he is in need of vocational guidance.

Students Advised

In the latter case, the student is advised to make arrangements with the counseling center to take aptitude tests which perhaps will show him he is better suited for a field than that in which he is majoring.

An equally great problem, Dean Wunderlich pointed out, is that of the "under-achiever"—the fellow who slips by with B minuses or C's when he could be doing better work if he applied himself, who floats along on his ability and has one continual good time instead of interesting himself in his academic work.

Under-Achiever

The "under-achiever" is not found on the "dean's list" but he is a great loss to a democratic society and the taxpayers' dollar, the dean explained.

A third problem in the educational system, Wunderlich said, is getting the curriculum adapted to the needs of many who do not seem to fit into it. The University does not have courses in "special studies"—more commonly known as trade schools—and hence cannot accommodate students who are better adapted to be in trade schools than in professional schools.

Dean Concerned

Dean Wunderlich is concerned about students who flunk out of the University and consequently brand themselves as failures. Many students have other abilities and will go far in other fields, he said. They are not failures.

The dean calls the interviews and the counseling center's work "a test—a hole-boring—of ability."

"Edison tried many things before he found an element for his incandescent bulb," Dean Wunderlich pointed out.

"To the extent that we can remove the idea of failure through guidance, we have made a contribution," he said.

New Building Gets 150 Armchairs

The $416,000 Business Administration - Education building has been assured of a full complement of furniture, even if new equipment doesn't arrive in time for next quarter's use.

The maintenance office reported yesterday that 150 armchairs were recently received from the Farragut Institute of Technology in Idaho. Farragut college is being abandoned.

These chairs and other surplus furniture on the campus will be used to furnish the three-story building if the new equipment is delayed.

All three floors of the building will be occupied—the business administration school on the first and third and the education school on the second.

Plans are now being made for dedication ceremonies early next quarter.

Controversy Over 'Accompanist' In Art Showing

Most controversial piece in the art exhibit which closes tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock is the wood carving by Frances Senska, "Accompanist," Aden F. Arnold, associate professor of fine arts, states. The art show is in the gallery of the Fine Arts building.

"Accompanist," done in walnut, is an African woman, presumably keeping time by clapping her hands for a native dance. Miss Senska, though living most of her life in the United States, was born in Africa.

Mr. Arnold says "Monkey," by Cyril Conrad, head of the MSC art department, is perhaps the favorite piece in the art show. Imaginative male art students compare the stone sculpture with the vain, aloof female aristocrat stereotype.

Lithographs, water colors, and oil paintings by the Bozeman art faculty are also on display.

The art gallery will be open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow.

The Georgia Tech College Inn in Atlanta, Georgia, is a favorite haunt of the Georgia Tech students. That's because the Georgia Tech College Inn is a friendly place, always full of the busy atmosphere of college life. There is always plenty of ice-cold Coca-Cola, too. For here, as in university gathering spots everywhere—Coke belongs.
