MSU Student in Clink After Assaulting Cop

A Missoula police officer was punched in the jaw at 1:30 yesterday morning on Woody street and a 20-year-old university student spent last night in the county jail booked on charges of disturbance and resisting arrest.

The student left one of the taverns in that area a few minutes earlier and as he walked down the street he met four other university students.

According to these witnesses, the student, upon approaching them, struck one of them on the side of the head and said "let's just fight on general principles."

Lou Silverstein, journalism major from Minneapolis, a member of the group, said he saw a police prowl car sitting at the opposite curb and told the offender to go see the police if he wanted trouble. He stepped over to the car then and accosted the officers.

One of the policemen, Floyd Campbell, stepped from the car in an attempt to calm him and was slugged in the jaw. Campbell then threw him to the ground and with the assistance of the other officers handcuffed him and took him to the police station.

The student was arraigned on charges of disturbance and resisting arrest before Justice of the Peace Arthur Woods yesterday, at which time he pleaded guilty and was confined to the county jail until he receives sentence on Friday. No bond will be allowed in the case, Woods said.

Medical Problems Are Discussed at National Meeting

Health education, prepaid medical insurance, and tuberculosis control were discussed at the annual meeting of the American College Health association in New York Dec. 29 and 30, announced Dr. Willard Nicholl, associate director of the student health service.

Dr. Nicholl was one of 150 doctors and administrators from about 90 colleges in the United States and Canada in attendance at this meeting. These meetings are to compare information and various college health service problems and attempt to offer solutions.

Dr. Nicholl stated our university health service in its coverage and service to the students offers, without extra charge, more complete coverage than at least 90 per cent of the universities. The health fee of $4 per quarter or $12 annually is 20 per cent lower than the national average.

At this university the problem of health education is covered by the health and physical education departments, said Dr. Nicholl. The problem of tuberculosis control is being solved by compulsory chest X-rays at the time of fall registration. Medical insurance on a prepaid basis is being studied here.

Scotch Debaters To Conduct Session at MSU

Ralph Y. McGinnis, professor of speech, announced today that two debaters from Scotland will appear at MSU on Tuesday, March 7, to conduct a debate with one of our own debate teams.

The question to be aired is: Resolved—that the welfare state is detrimental to the best interests of the people.

The Scots that will appear are Dr. Malcolm D. W. Low, from the University of Edinburgh, and David D. T. Reid, from the University of Glasgow. One of them will argue the affirmative side of the question, and the other will take the negative side. The two debaters representing MSU will take opposite sides of the question also.

The debate, which will be open to the public, will be held in the Student Union auditorium. There will be a charge of 60 cents for non-students, and students will be admitted upon presentation of their activity cards.

McGinnis said that as yet he has not picked the team that will represent MSU.

The Scottish debaters will be on a tour sponsored by the Institute of International Education. The last tour of this type to touch the MSU campus was the team from Oxford which was here in March of 1948.

Manpower Abundant At MSU

Census officials believe that for the first time in United States history, women will outnumber men when noses are counted this spring, but MSU coeds will not have to grab the first unsuspecting male who ventures within their reach or face lonesome existences as spinsters.

Winter quarter enrollment figures just released by the President's office show that out of a total winter quarter enrollment of 3,226, 2,462 are males (a large number of whom are unattached and unassigned) as compared with 764 coeds.

These figures reveal that winter quarter enrollment is down slightly from last January's peak of 3,341, the record enrollment in the University's history for winter quarter.

The ratio of males to females is approximately the same as last winter when there were 2,563 men and 778 women.

The figure for this quarter is not final as a few students are expected to enroll this week.

WAC Wants Co-ed Officers

In answer to the many queries about opportunities for appointments to the Women's Army Corps, Colonel Ericl D. Porter, PMS&T, Montana State University, has been notified that college women now have the opportunity of becoming commissioned officers in the WAC.

Few careers are available to the young woman today offering such a variety of interesting fields as that offered by the WAC. The WAC career is based on a rotation of assignments in a planned pattern which includes advanced schooling, career responsibilities, and travel, both foreign and domestic.

The deadline for filing applications in 1950 will be February 15. However, this is a continuous program, with new groups to be selected each year. The requirements for application demand that the applicant must have a good moral character and good physical health; she must have reached her twenty-first birthday, and not passed her twenty-seventh birthday on the date of her commission; she must be a United States citizen, unmarried, and must have no dependents under eighteen years of age. An applicant cannot be, or ever have been, a member of a subversive organization.

All university women who meet the requirements and are interested in the program may obtain additional information and all necessary forms from Capt. Robert C. Ratliff of the ROTC department.

Sororities and fraternities who want to house foreign students next year are asked to report to Dr. Bart Thomas before the end of this week.

PENON REPLACED BY FAST

Mrs. Frances Fast, Polson, has replaced Mrs. Esther Penon as cook and dietitian at the student health service.

Before coming here Mrs. Fast worked for a physician in California for eight years.

Regional Head Praises Student Help to WSSF

"The work that members of the World Student Service fund are doing helping students in war-torn countries to complete their education is simply thrilling," Mrs. Gladys Lawther said in an interview Tuesday.

Mrs. Lawther, who serves as Pacific Northwest regional secretary of the WSSF, was a visitor on the campus earlier this week.

The WSSF is a national student organization started in 1937 to help Chinese students by sending them school supplies when their schools were destroyed. At the present, the WSSF is allied with other national student organizations in placing displaced students in schools in the United States. Over 200 displaced students are studying in this country now and more places are being sought.

Books, laboratory equipment, and other items needed in such countries as Germany, Italy, Greece, and Burma, are also being supplied.

"The need for up-to-date text and reference books is critical in many areas," according to Mrs. Lawther. One medical school in Europe with an enrollment of 20,000 had fewer than 100 books printed since 1939. The newest books in the agriculture school in Burma were printed in 1937.

"The conditions that many students encounter in Europe are terrible," Mrs. Lawther said. "I saw students who had no place to study, no books, and no supplies on my trip to Europe this summer."

Mrs. Lawther then went on to tell of the work that the WSSF is doing in Europe in setting up student centers for group study and discussions; providing living quarters and hostels; and supplying many other items, including food and vitamins.

The money for these activities is supplied through drives by the WSSF at schools and colleges in this country. Help is also being received from organizations in Denmark, France, Holland, and other European countries that received help from the WSSF just after the close of the war. These countries now feel that they are in a position to help others, Mrs. Lawther said.

"A national drive at 763 schools raised over a half million dollars last year," according to Mrs. Lawther, "but not all of this was in actual cash. Part of it was in books, school supplies and other items that are also needed."

Drives on this campus raised $224 last year and $466 the year before.

"The work that the WSSF is doing is important in bringing about international understanding and harmony if we are to live together peacefully," Mrs. Lawther said. "Students have no greater chance than at the present to assist in the work that this organization is doing."

MSU Club Aids Future Teachers

Members of the MSU Education club helped put into motion the formation of a chapter of the Future Teachers of America at a Missoula County high school luncheon Tuesday.

The collegians told the high school students attending what they believed advantages of a FTA chapter at the Missoula institution would be.

Present from the University were Gif Martin, Kalispell; Oscar Donisthorpe, Lewistown; Jack Grindy, club president, Lewistown; Ben Frost, education instructor and L. G. Carleton, also an education instructor.

Publications board will meet at 4 o'clock today in the Eloise Knowles room to interview applicants for the position of associate editor of the Kaimin, Laura Bergh, Froid, chairman, said yesterday.

Written applications are due in the Student Union business office at 3 o'clock Thursday. Persons applying must appear before the board at 4.

The vacancy was created last fall when Joe Stell, Hamilton, resigned. The new associate will hold the job until the end of this quarter. The job pays $10 monthly.

Applicants must have served on the Kaimin staff or have had one year of practical newspaper experience and must have attended the University at least one quarter prior to this one.

SDX Smoker Will Honor Lecturer

Mitchell V. Charnley, professional lecturer at the journalism school this week, will be guest at a Sigma Delta Chi smoker for all men J-school majors in the Copper room of the Student Union tonight at 8 o'clock.

Charnley, professor at the University of Minnesota journalism school, at one time was national vice-president of Sigma Delta Chi.

The smoker will give students a chance to meet and talk with Charnley informally, SDX President Al Pepper, Rochester, N. Y., said.

Preceding the smoker will be a meeting of SDX members at 7:15 in the Copper room. Both actives and pledges will meet.

Four Students To Seek Elks Scholarships

Four MSU students will compete for scholarships being sponsored by the Elks. They are Weldon Norman Niva, Butte, a classical languages and English major; Merton M. Robertson, Whitetail, a mathematics major; Lex Mudd, Missoula, a sociology major; and Barbara Jaskot, Dore, N. D., a business administration major.

The candidates were selected by a local Elks committee headed by Henry Zahn, Missoula, and will have their records forwarded to the state selection committee which will pick the scholarship winners from candidates from MSU and other units of the Greater University later this month.

Winners in the state competition will compete in the national scholarship sponsored by the Elks' national organization.

Dr. Nicholl Issues Frostbite Advice

Because of the danger of frostbite, Dr. Willard Nicholl of the University Health service has outlined the following steps to be taken in its treatment:

1. Do not rub frostbitten areas with anything and least of all snow.
2. Remember to warm gradually at room temperature.
3. See physician immediately in case of frostbitten hands or feet because there is a new drug, rutin, which can prevent serious damage to the tissues.

Residence Halls Get New Staffers

Two members have been recently added to the staff of the residence halls office, according to Edith Ames, manager of residence halls.

New secretary in the front office is Mildred Larson. She was formerly employed in the consulting forester's office in Seattle. Mrs. Rosalie Bruce, the new clerk-typist, was previously employed by the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company in Missoula.

Eleanor MacArthur, assistant manager of residence halls, has a leave of absence for two quarters and is now visiting in the Virgin Islands. Her leave extends until July 1, 1950.

Choral Group To Give Free Concert

The Sinfonietta, a select group of university musicians, "small, flexible, and proficient," will present a concert next Wednesday, Jan. 18, at 8:15 in the Student Union auditorium. The concert, under the direction of Eugene Andrie, will require no admission charge.

Mr. Andrie said the group will play works particularly suited to the ensemble.

The concerto is a spirited but intricate work written for four solo instruments and strings. It uses the trumpet as a melodic soloist along with the flute, violin, and oboe.

Soloists will be: Nancy Critelli, Billings, cello; Betty Young, Lewistown, flute; Grant Mundy, Moore, trumpet; Madison Vick, Missoula, violin; and Harold Herbig, Missoula, oboe.

The program will include: Symphony No. 24 in B-flat Major by Mozart; Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 in F Major by Bach; Symphony No. 5 in B-flat Major (one movement only) by Schubert; Hora Staccato by Dnicu; Jamaican Rhumba by Benjamin; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet with Nancy Critelli, Billings, as cello soloist; and Three Dinsli Suite by Pelz.

Dance Ducats Still Available

The downtown ticket allotment for the Nite Club dance has been sold but student tickets are still available, officials of the Music club, sponsors of the dance, announced yesterday.

The dance will be in the Gold room from 9 to 12 o'clock Saturday night. Tickets are being sold today and tomorrow from 9 to 10 and 2 to 4 in the Student Union coke store.

The theme of the annual function will be "Dixieland Minstrels." The Gold room will be decorated as a night club. In addition to special entertainment throughout the evening, a floor show will be presented at 11 o'clock.

Admission is $3 per couple. Proceeds go to the Music School foundation.

A Dear, Old Friend Has Returned

Guess what's before Central board again? None other than the green beanie question.

Gene Kallgren, Butte, Traditions board chairman, Tuesday asked the board for a loan of $134.50 to purchase 269 beanies which the Spurs and Bear Paws were unable to unload upon freshmen in their pre-Homecoming sale last fall.

Unless Central board makes the loan, Kallgren reported, the sophomore honoraries will be stuck to the tune of $67.25 each for the little hats over which they had such a squabble with Central board early in fall quarter.

(They had purchased about 700 of the hats without previously asking the board's permission to sell them to the frosh. They finally got the board's permission to sell them if they promised that freshmen would not be forced to buy them and that no hazing would develop from the tradition which they were attempting to reinstitute after an 18-year absence from the campus. Pres. C. H. Clapp had ordered the sale of beanies stopped in 1931 after a wave of hazing.)

Here is the proposition Traditions board got from the honoraries:

The Spurs and Bear Paws will sell the beanies to the board for 50 cents each (3 cents less than they paid for them). Since the hats have the numerals "53" on them, the honoraries will sew "54s" on them if Traditions board will buy the new numerals.

Central board suggested that maybe Traditions board wasn't getting such a good deal from the Spurs and I-K's and that it (Central board) had some doubts about continuing the tradition. Some board members seemed to feel that the honoraries should at least buy the numerals as long as Traditions board was getting stuck with the loss.

The breakdown of the unsold beanies is as follows: 15 small, 163 medium, and 91 large. Apparently more small and large hats were sold than medium-sized ones. This would indicate that most of the freshmen who bought the hats were either pinheads or fatheads.—GR

A total of 855,646 sheep and goat skins were exported from Afghanistan in one year. Whew.

There are no railroads in Afghanistan. They walk.

Letters to the Editor . . .

FAIR ENOUGH, BY W. PEGLER

Dear Editor:

It is with considerable trepidation that I send a note to the student paper, for I realize that my theme is hardly as important as the problem of whether or not it is possible to burn a ride to class. But I must leave such profound thoughts for greater minds.

Now that it has become clear to most that Russia and/or her satellites don't want to be friendly, how much longer is it going to take for our government to assume the duties of a country which is one of the two most powerful in the world?

The British Empire at one time stood between us and alien influences, but now that the English have relinquished their position as leaders and protectors, the United States falls into the vacuum created. Great Britain sent her fleet to protect British interests, and while people probably complained that blood was being shed for the wealthy, her system did thrive and make it possible for British business to prosper and Englishmen to be proud of their country.

Today, on the other hand, our business interests and stockholders (even as you and I) are being deprived of their investments in Communist-controlled countries. Our diplomats are insulted daily at the United Nations and maltreated by as sorry a crew of political adventurers as this world has seen.

Our elder statesmen and experienced senators recommend a stand in the Orient on Formosa, but this president of ours is content to see another potential Gibraltar against Communism go down before the Red avalanche.

While it is the sorry truth that a senile Roosevelt sold out the ancient states of eastern Europe to Stalin, there is no reason why we should go on with this appeasement policy. Hitler taught Stalin a lesson that has escaped our government: that for every inch gained, one should demand two more.

The Atlantic Pact has stopped Stalin in Europe and now he must be stopped in Asia before he is in Manila, Tokyo, and Brisbane.

How about holding southern Korea and Formosa indefinitely for a start, and then think about taking active steps toward restoring Chinese independence from Moscow? At least, they will serve as a bulwark to protect our interests in the Pacific—interests which we purchased at great cost in the last war.

JOB SITUATION WORRIES STUDENT

Dear Editor:

In the Jan. 10 issue of the Kaimin appeared an article announcing the latest and best opportunity for MSU students in years. At last a way has been devised by which a college education can be obtained with few or no economic worries.

I am referring to the article entitled "MSU Athletic Crisis Appears To Be Ended." This article suggests complete employment service for our poor athletes who are apparently nearly destitute due to lack of funds.

The point is that athletes will be given a priority rating for any available jobs. What about the not-so-fortunate non-athletes who also need jobs? I realize that our athletes have demonstrated their brilliant abilities on the football field and in the gymnasium, but why does that entitle them to special employment privileges?

The SOS has been sent out. Anyone who would like to help the cause, either by a direct donation or by employing an athlete, is needed at once. We cannot forget those who are upholding the name of our University.

After having read the article I would like to submit a plan to the athletic department to help them out of their troubles:

Why not fire all non-athletes who are now employed on the campus such as in the residence halls, Student Union, fraternity houses, etc. and replace them with athletes? If that should prove to be insufficient why not put pressure upon the downtown business establishments to hire only athletes? Surely a non-athletic student should not be allowed to hold a

While I was on vacation, I saw a handy little calculator that would be a decided boon to Grizzly courtwriting. As it is, we no longer get a column of figures added to determine the individual average, the team average, and the in-loss percentage, and not to mention Cope's figure-snapping freak, that it takes patience, pencil chewing, and a slip stick to keep abreast of our Silvertips.

Cy Noe (pronounced "no-eh"), a stowaway writer for the Montana State College Exponent, is writing reports for the Kaimin, now, as well as news and features. He slipped in between quarters, and does quite well. I doubt whether there will be an "Acid Bath" to withstand, however. "Nitric" Noe left his baggage de plume at Bozeman.

Some controversy invariably blows into focus each basketball season in regard to the merits or the want of principle of body contact in basketball. It's as debatable point as the football platoon system, and coaches are nearly as set on their opinions, pro and con.

At the Hot Springs (Ark.) packing clinic early in August of last year, Claire Bee, basketball coach of note, emphasized, "Basketball is built up as a game without body contact. But it isn't; it ever has been, and I hope it never will be a non-contact game. If it ever becomes that, it won't be worth watching."

Bee, LIU's mentor who is a definite "student of the game," as well as a coach and an author of several books on basketball, maintains that fans enjoy a little contact, and a certain amount of roughness makes basketball more interesting for the players as well. Fortunately, Bee doesn't represent the ideas of the majority in favor of conservative play.

Many games are literally long and drawn out because they are rock-marked with personal and technical fouls. One such game you'll probably remember as the Grizzly-Gonzaga game last season. It was stopped for free throws more than 25 times during the second half because the referees were trying desperately to stop a rash ofacking, clipping, and out-and-out tripping. What doth it profit a man, to quote from the Bible, if a layer has his full quota of fouls left toward the end of a game, and proceeds to pare the margin?

For that matter, a scrubby substitute team could go in and delete the opposition so that the regular quint could have smooth sailing. A rabbit punch or kidney blow means a personal foul, but it will have served its purpose. droitly done, mind you.

Naturally, it is never quite so obvious. But Claire Bee dismisses the possibility by interjecting, "Of course, fouls are called on some body contact. But I'd rather have an aggressive team fouling than a

Male Hickory Masters Comment on Gal Skiers

BY MARVIN "TONI" McARTHUR

The chill of winter is here and the slopes are blanketed with snow. The local ski enthusiasts are praying for even more of the little white flakes while the campus refugees from the California Chamber of Commerce look upon them as ignorant Eskimos.

The coed who wants to show off that she is the outdoor type, or wants to get a windblown complexion, or just wants to be a social whirl on a ski party, got daddy or Santa Claus to give her new skis and a luscious looking ski outfit, and is ready to try her luck on the slopes—and, of course, the lodge.

More Women

The seasoned, more experienced male skiers on the campus noticed the influx of femininity on the ski slopes last season. An increase is expected this year in the nation's No. 1 outdoor-winter sport, probably because quite a few coeds on this campus think they would look nice in a pair of ski pants. There is even an expected increase in the number of leg casts hobbling along the campus walks.

A few of the following comments have been heard from some of the university's male masters of the hickories:

Al Stevens growled when he said, "The large majority are not interested in skiing but interested in how they look. It's just another fad to them."

In a nonchalant manner Jim Murphy remarked, "When I take a date skiing, she skis with the women and I ski with the boys but I meet her at the bottom of the hill to buy her a hamburger. Women are more active skiers on the way home."

After looking in his book of statistics Tom Kelly, emphasized, "One out of every five women go out to ski, the rest go out for social connections."

George Oeschli, who dates often, said, "If women are seriously interested in learning how to ski that's fine; otherwise they aren't worth the trouble."

Another Angle

Sticking up for the opposite sex, Royal Johnson exclaimed, "I definitely think they fit on the ski hill. They are as important as having the lodge at the bottom of the hill." Acting like a regular instructor, team which was too durned clean losing ball games." Well, Mr. Bee, how about brass knuckles and bolo knives? Anything for a win.

More comment on personal contact will appear in subsequent issues of the Kaimin, with viewpoints of several Montana coaches on this body contact controversy.

Ward Fanning stated, "If they are serious about it, I'll teach them how to ski."

Gathering the whole thing in a nut shell, Hal McVey says, "They're definitely a part of the lodge and look fine as snow bunnies on the hill as long as they remember to bring their skis and their share of the expense."

Frank Kerr, Sigma Nu social chairman, may be quoted as saying, "Everything I know . . . about skiing, I owe to a woman. In fact, a female taught me how. Why, my mother was a skier. I'm always happy to pay all expenses for my date on ski trips."

Skill Display

All this talk will not dampen the courage of our young coeds and you can be sure they will be on the ski hills displaying their skill at making a Sitzmark. After all, the university ski trip Jan. 6 to 8 wouldn't have been a success unless there were women novices for the masterful male skiers to pay their undivided attention to.

That old saying about women even applies to skiing. "You can't do anything without them and you can't do anything with them."

Hoop Gals Must Have Heart Exam

Junior and senior women who intend to play in the basketball tournament must have heart examinations at the health service. Freshman and sophomore women have already been required to take these examinations.

Juniors and seniors may take these examinations at the health service anytime this week, starting today.

Any unaffiliated women may sign up to play basketball at the women's gym between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, 1 and 2 o'clock, and from 4 to 6 p.m.

The detachment has completed building its fully equipped office and dispensary at the National Guard armory at Fort Missoula.

Dr. Nicholl urges any men interested in this, regardless of army experience or education, to see him at the university health service.

Song Contest Schedule Announced

At a special meeting of Traditions board Thursday final arrangements were made regarding the men's and women's living groups' song contests to be featured during the half-time periods at future basketball games. It was decided that a permanent cup would be awarded to the winner in each of the two divisions.

The board also emphasized the fact that while different selections may be sung in the finals than are presented in the preliminaries, the same group of singers must represent each organization.

A number of coordinating judges were suggested. However, their names will not be announced until they have accepted.

The following order of entry was decided by lot:

Jan. 20—North Hall, KKG, KAT.

Jan. 21—Jumbo, PSK, TX, PDT.

Feb. 3—DG, AXO, Synadelphic, New hall.

Feb. 4—SX, SPE, Corbin.

Feb. 6—AP, SK, DDD.

Feb. 7—ATO, South, SAE, SN.

The date of the finals has not been arranged; however, it is hoped that finals will be held at a convocation sometime during February.

Musical Tryouts Begin Today For Variety Show

Tryouts for the Miss Montana musical show will be given in the Student Union auditorium today and Monday at 4 o'clock, Gene Kallgren, Butte, chairman of the program, said.

Acts for the proposed show will be used in the "Stairway to the Stars" musical to be given at the new Fox theatre March 1 and 2 to raise funds for the Miss Montana pageant next spring.

Grindy Plans EC Meetings

Interest in the MSU Education club, an organization for students majoring in education, is being stirred up through classroom distribution of invitations to EC meetings, Pres. Jack Grindy, Lewistown, said yesterday.

The three gatherings, slated for Room 211 of the Business and Education building, will be conferences to acquaint prospective members with future plans of the club and its purpose. The opinions of those attending as to what the club should do will also be solicited.

The meetings are scheduled for today at 4 p.m., and tomorrow at 2 p.m. Any student is welcome, Grindy said.

A general meeting is slated for Wednesday, Jan. 18. Further information as to the separate phases of club work will be revealed at that time, he said.

I-M Ping Pong Play to Start

Play will start next week in the intramural ping-pong tournament in the Silver room, Wally Schmitz, Helena, who is in charge of the tourney, announced yesterday.

The first round in the double elimination matches Sigma Phi Epsilon against Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma against Sigma Chi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon against Phi Sigma Kappa, Alpha Tau Omega against Theta Chi, and Sigma Nu against Lambda Chi Alpha. These games must be played by Saturday, Jan. 21. Teams may arrange games at their own convenience.

Two singles and one doubles match will be played in each round. Each team will furnish three balls and its own paddles. The forestry club has donated the table on which the games will be played.

The table will be assembled for each match and Schmitz asked that it be taken down after each match is played. He requested that contestants put results of their matches on a chart which will be tacked on the Student Union bulletin board.

United States Table Tennis association rules will be followed in the tournament. Points will be awarded to individual winners. Points will help decide a team to play in a match which MSU ping-pong enthusiasts are trying to arrange with the State college.
