PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE

No more mosquitoes, no more flyers
on my car's bird-beshat window, no more tomatoes stolen by raccoons, no more gin tonics gimlets no more rum ever please no more the glass empty, no more the crushed mint—let summer fall from the calendar, let the dress slip from my shoulders and the grownup life begin, of taxes, mice in the cabinets, hands tugging and tugging but please no more lemon trees, no more sun, and the horizon a clean line, no more.
