McCarthy Grinds Axe; Truman Refuses Files

Washington, March 28—(UP)—Senator McCarthy has pressed his charges of Communist infiltration of the showdown stage. This afternoon, President Truman refused to turn over secret files on 89 accused persons to senate investigators. And a foreign relations subcommittee headed by Sen. Millard E. Ewing of Maryland voted unanimously to subpoena the records and force a court test of Mr. Truman's power to keep the records secret.

Republican leader Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska has urged the Senate to cite the President for contempt if he refuses to obey the subpoenas and hand over the files.

Wherry says Mr. Truman's action should be tested all the way to the supreme court, if necessary.

In refusing to open the books, Mr. Truman wrote from Key West, Fla., that his own loyalty review board, headed by GOP Attorney Seth Richardson, would study the cases and report to Congress on them.

But that wasn't good enough for Wherry. He called the action "shameful" and "dangerous."

Vet Representative To Open Headquarters

Curtis A. Lindsay, contact representative of the Missoula veteran's administration office, will open headquarters on the campus in Room 101, Main hall, in order that veteran students can settle their complaints. Lindsay will be there from 8 a.m. until 12 noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays, A. L. Kadlec, campus veterans administrator, said.

Lindsay will handle problems such as insurance, medical care, dental care, and claims against the government. Complaints dealing with education and training will not be handled by him.

Comprehensive Job Clinic Assembles at U April 13

The job clinic that convenes at Montana State University on Thursday, April 13, will be the most comprehensive instrument of its kind ever assembled at the University, according to Charles Little, Helena, job clinic committee chairman.

Professional Panels

Business executives, personnel officers, government agency officers, lawyers, educators, and other officers in the employer and public relations field, head the many panels that will be available for student benefit.

The general clinic will get under way at 1 p.m., April 13, at the Student Union auditorium, with a keynote speech by H. T. Engstrom, assistant personnel director for the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company, Denver, Colo. Engstrom is in charge of college recruiting activities for the Mountain States company, and has chosen for his subject, "What the Business Man Expects of the College Graduate."

The main panels that will meet after the introductory speech are grouped under the following titles: business, education, science, and general.

The main panels are scheduled to last approximately two hours.

Each main panel is broken down into sub-panels, and these groups will assemble in pre-designated rooms at 4 p.m.

Banquet, Too

Following the first phase of the sub-panel discussions, a banquet will be given at 6 p.m. for the participating members of the various panels, in the Bitterroot room of the Student Union.

The banquet group will hear a speech by Pres. James A. McCain who will speak on the relationship between industry and the University.

Charles Little, Phi Delta Theta, chairman of the job clinic committee, stated that the clinic is valuable to all the students because it is entirely for the instruction, assistance, and guidance of students who plan to seek employment in the future.

"Also," he said, "if the clinic is a success this year, we plan to make it an annual affair."

Montana Lovelies Set Last Practice For Friday Show

Twenty candidates for Miss Montana go through their final rehearsals tonight in preparation for the pageant Friday. This is the culmination of over two months intensive practice.

Since the middle of January, when the candidates were selected, they have been meeting once or twice a week to practice walking and attending lectures on poise, personality, diet, and grooming. Mrs. Robert Breen has been working with them at these meetings, and Dr. Agnes Stoodley of the physical education department has helped them in smaller groups during the week.

This is part of an overall AWS program which begins every fall. Throughout the year speakers address the women's living groups on manners, beauty care, and related topics. Then in January the candidates begin their specialized training.

Tickets for the pageant are on sale at the Student Union business office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Spurs to Campaign Against Cowpaths

Spurs will emerge with their whistles Monday to pipe stragglers off the grass, Gene Kallgren, Butte, traditions board chairman, said.

"Everyone should realize that this is not only a tradition," Kallgren said. "All these cowpaths spoil the beauty of the campus. The areas around the Student Union and Main hall are particularly bad."

Kallgren asked everybody to cooperate in using the sidewalks and giving the grass a chance to grow.

Film Tickets on Sale; Italian Production First

Tickets are still being sold this week for this quarter's University Film society program of five motion pictures, Tom Roberts, Missoula, society business manager, announced yesterday.

Ticket sales will end Sunday with the showing in Simpkins Little theater of the quarter's first society picture, "To Live in Peace," Roberts said.

Available at the Simpkins hall box office from 1 to 5 weekday afternoons, and at the door before this Sunday's showings, society season tickets for the five films are $2 each, including tax. Mail orders addressed to the society in care of the University are being accepted, Roberts said. Tickets may be purchased for either 7 or 9 p.m. Sunday showings.

War Film

Sunday's picture, "To Live in Peace," is an Italian film portraying the story of a war-weary European village just prior to the armistice of World War II. In the film an American soldier, hidden by Italian villagers, finally comes face to face with his enemy.

The second picture in the society series, to be shown April 16, will be "The Birth of a Nation," directed by the late D. W. Griffith, pioneer in modern film techniques, "Lysistrata," a new film version of Aristophanes' play satirizing war, will be shown April 30. This film was recently produced in the American zone of Austria.

Middle of May

"Potemkin," the fourth picture in the series, which will be shown May 14, is an account of the Russo-Japanese war and the Russian revolution filmed by the director, Eisenstein.

The final film society picture, "Grand Illusion," to be shown May 28, is a French production completed just before World War II. It goes back to World War I and presents a dreamed-of picture of international understanding as seen by French prisoners in a German camp.

WSSF Drive Opens April 2

"They Still Need You" is the theme of the World Student Service Fund campaign this year. The campus drive opens April 2 under the leadership of Bob Moran, Red Lodge, chairman of the committee.

One week of intensive work by various committees helping with the drive will be climaxed by a Chinese auction, similar to the one last year. The week is to be called "World Student Week."

Growing Program

WSSF is not a new organization, on campus or internationally, as it has been operating for more than a decade, distributing relief material to university men and women in war-devastated countries. During this year the program will be expanded to utilize more fully the channels of personal communication available to students, such as story tours, seminars, conferences, and correspondence exchanges.

The governing body of WSSF is a general committee composed of representatives from sponsoring student organizations, including Newman club, Federation, B'nai B'rith Hillel foundations, National Student associations, and the United Student Christian council, representing all Protestant denominations, including YMCA and YWCA.

Financing

Money to operate the many services of WSSF depends entirely on contributions from university, college, and prep school students and professors as the only source of income. The goal of this organization is to be an agency through which American students and professors, at the college level, may share materially and intellectually with their needy contemporaries throughout the world.

Coronation Ball Will Crown New Montana Winner

Tickets for the Coronation ball are now on sale in all women's living groups, according to Betty Bee Young, Lewistown, chairman of the committee.

The dance will be in the Student Union Gold room Saturday night, and tickets are $1.20 per couple.

The Coronation ball, formerly Co-ed, is sponsored by AWS to honor all Miss Montana candidates. Miss Montana of 1950 will be crowned during the dance by Pres. James A. McCain and Carol Fraser, last year's Miss Montana. The five other finalists will be awarded AWS scholarships at that time.

Don Lichtwardt, Helena, will be the master of ceremonies for the coronation and the ceremony will be broadcast over the two local radio stations, KGVO and KXLL. Dallas Reed, Missoula, is in charge of the broadcast.

The Coronation ball is one of the two dances for all university women. Sadie Hawkins, sponsored by the Spurs, is the other one.

The new crown and robe to be used at the coronation are now on display in the windows of the Missoula Mercantile.

Students Pack U Auditorium To Find Top Entertainment

By CYRUS NOE

Students packed the Student Union auditorium yesterday to see a double bill of grand opera: Mascagni's Eastertime tragedy of adulterous circumstances, "Cavalleria Rusticana," and Leoncavallo's tune-tale of clowns, infidelity, and death, "I Pagliacci."

Expecting a parallel to the usual seedy light opera company, the opera-goers found the Charles L. Wagner Opera company had tasteful sets, charming costumes, an excellent orchestra of over 20 pieces and generally competent and talented singers.

In "Cavalleria Rusticana," outstanding singers were Shirley Bardin, as the spurned Santuzza; Jon Crain, who was of typical tenor size, as the spurning Turridu; and Frank Cappelli, a baritone, as Alfio, the carter.

Singing and Acting

Miss Bardin was not particularly rave-worthy in her acting or movements. Crain did a bit better with his acting; especially in his second duet with Miss Bardin and more especially in his duet with Lucia which part was sung, and very well, by Grace Hoffman.

The stage presence, singing, and acting of Margaret Roggero (Lola) in her short part were top-notch. A brief departure from this excellence she shared with Miss Bardin in scene VI. The libretto is marked liberally with "ironicas." Irony was absent, replaced by something more like boredom—a common operatic failing.

Tenor Rafael Lagares sang Canio in "Pagliacci." His voice was good, his inspiration good, and his acting good, more often than not. His aria "Vesti la giubba" wasn't overly noteworthy, but, since a comparison with so many great voices singing this aria is readily available, it is perhaps unfair to cast shadows on his offering.

Beautiful Falcon

Bruna Falcon, a soprano and an unusually beautiful sight on the operatic stage, was rather withdrawn but nonetheless very effective as Nedda. Her acting was above the norm, although during her marathon aria in the first act, she did a wooden-legged bit of moving coming down from the player's stage. The aria itself was well done.

Richard Torigi, a baritone, was fine as the hunchback Tonio, though his voice quality was not superlative. He bounded about the stage with economy and purpose, singing his malicious and pitiful bits with a good blend of vitriol and pathos.

Thomas Perkins, the Silvio, had a good baritone voice and carried his half of the love scene admirably. Beppo was sung by Byron Steele, and although his voice seemed rather thin, he was more than adequate.

It is not altogether fair to comment upon operatic acting, as has been done here: even the Metropolitan has emoting lapses, some quite comprehensive. But opera is, after all, a dramatic effort in song, and should not be excused from even small dramatic breaks. If there was a fault in yesterday afternoon's business, it was the acting as a whole.

But this did not but slightly mar an unexpectedly enjoyable and worthy afternoon.

Bomb Development Given Green Light

Washington, March 28.—(UP)—Top atomic official says there has been a shake-up of the nation's atomic program to speed development of the hydrogen super-bomb.

Acting Chairman Sumner Pike of the Atomic Energy commission says the shake-up is meant to bring the utmost weight to bear on the hydrogen bomb development. Pike says the commission has advanced the timetable for construction of an atomic engine or submarines.

In a speech at Mt. Holyoke college of South Hadley, Mass., Pike gave no details of the effort to concentrate scientific resources on the hydrogen bomb. He did not even mention the dreaded weapon by name.

Plans Made For Plaque Identifiers

A project to set up identification plaques in front of all university buildings has been undertaken by the campus chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national Boy Scout service fraternity, announced R. G. Nicholson, president.

The plans for the plaques were presented to and approved by the university planning committee at their meeting last Wednesday night.

Plans call for the plaque to be constructed of heavy wood in the shape of the state of Montana. The plaque will hang from a pole fastened to a ten-foot spruce pole set securely in a concrete base.

The face of the plaque will be inscribed with the name, the major departments within, and the date of construction of the building. This information will be burned in and then the plaques will be finished with varnish in their natural wood color.

The plans tentatively call for a small Grizzly bear figure at the top of each pole.

Nineteen of these identification markers are to be set up, one in front of every campus building and two on Hello walk, the walk extending from the library to the new school. On these latter two markers will be a brief explanation of the Hello walk tradition.

Nicholson stated that the committees assigned to the duties involved in the construction of the markers have begun to collect materials. He felt it would take at least a year to complete the project.

Spies, Mud, and Politics . . .

Every now and then, one begins to wonder just what manner of lunacy exists in our nation's capital—and why.

Such a wonderment was reached by this writer yesterday morning when the charges of Sen. Styles Bridges, a Massachusetts Republican, were seen poured down the front page columns of the American press.

Briefly, the senator did this: He charged there had been, for a period of some 15 years, what he termed a "master spy" in the U. S. Department of State; he said homosexuals and subversives were in the state department because "Russia wanted them there."

This may be true. If so, it should be acted upon in as quick, thorough, and level-headed a manner as our laws permit.

But the charges lack the ring of honest charges honestly made.

One of the reasons is the timing. After the explosive interludes offered us by the tintinnabulation of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R, Wis.), the grim tower of the witch hunt grew taller. The Bridges' accusation seems designed to add a few more shameful bricks.

The "master spy" thing, grabbed from context of thriller fiction, looks like a teaser through the use of this fascinating and adventurous idea. The homosexual accusation appears to be the same tactic turned topside down. Nothing would so discredit the state department in the eyes of the American people than to be shown that organization was stacked with perverts. And the process wouldn't do the Democratic party any good, either.

Bridges made no attempt to tell who was the master spy and who were the sexual deviates. Of course, this is not an indication of the truth of the charges; but one cannot help but wonder if he will have the same difficulty naming names as has his fellow fingerpointer, Brother McCarthy.

In this case, and in many others, it is unfortunate that the statements of senators and representatives made in congress are immune from redress. There are many reasons why this should be so, but in such cases as the McCarthy affair, the characters so thoroughly and deliberately assassinated are helpless.

It is rumored that Bridges' bellow was a signal to Republicans in the senate to hang Dean Acheson's hindquarters on the panelled walls of the chambers and all take a crack at it. This smacks of the practices of the mud-and-guts school of vote getting, which is something the GOP has long tried and seldom made work.

In McCarthy's go-round, J. Edgar Hoover said Monday he advises against making state department loyalty files available for senate use. This is laudably level-headed of the FBI chief, who has been somewhat of a leading keeper of the hounds in the witch hunt. Perhaps he, too, is getting sick of the more unwholesome of the goings on. If so, it is welcome, though overdue.

There should be some way of letting the wolf of responsibility loose at the doors of some senators. The only way that now exists is public opinion, a slow, limp whip at best.

Want to See the World? Here's Your Chance

Far away places with strange sounding names—if they are calling you here is your chance. Take your pick of Hong Kong, Paris, Manila, Jerusalem, Guatemala, or Honolulu.

Summer seminars and other credit courses are offered by various American colleges for European trips or a stay at the University of San Carlos, Guatemala. The expeditions are planned and supervised by the Association for Travel Abroad, 42 Broadway, New York 4, N. Y., a non-profit organization.

Intensive Study

They offer teachers' tours, a special tour for law students, one intensive study of France, and another of Austria in addition to general European tours.

Among the countries one may visit are Ireland, England, Scotland, Switzerland, Denmark, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Norway, Luxembourg, Sweden, and the Netherlands.

France to Italy

Two tours through France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, and Italy are organized for July and August under the leadership of Dr. Edouard Bourbousson, an associate professor at Oregon State college. He will give further information to anyone who writes him.

Hechalutz organization in co-operation with the Intercollegiate Zionist federation sponsors a two-month summer visit to the Holy Land for 150 students who will travel about the country, study accredited courses, and work in collective settlements to learn first-hand about the people and customs of Israel.

Interested persons may write Hechalutz organization, Western Regional office, 317 South Vermont, Los Angeles.

Restless Souls

For those restless souls who want to go west, way west, to the Far East, there is the "summer adventure cruise" aboard the S. S. President Wilson with calls at Hong Kong, Manila, Yokohama, and Kobe in Japan, and Honolulu.

Those who prefer may disembark at Yokohama for a 16-day Japanese visit until the vessel makes its return call at that port. San Francisco State college offers six credits for field studies in Far Eastern sociology and humanities completed during this voyage.

Details can be obtained from the American President lines, public relations department, 311 California street, San Francisco.

RADIO GUILD SESSION

The Radio Guild will have a work session meeting in the Main hall auditorium tonight at 7:30, announced Ansel H. Resler, faculty advisor.

Work will be done on the music library and other department improvements. Refreshments will be served. Members are asked to wear old clothes.

JOB CLINIC WILL MEET

The job clinic committee will meet today at 3:30 p.m. in Craig 104, Chuck Little, chairman, announced.

Ed Club Members Plan Speech Tour

Montana State University's Education club will send students to the Bitterroot valley April 4 and 5 to stimulate interest in the Ravalli County Teachers association's scholarship program.

Ravalli's program sends Bitterroot valley high school students to MSU each year to determine the student with the best teaching capabilities.

MSU students will talk of opportunities in education and on the educational field that they will enter.

Don Marshall, Missoula, chairman of arrangements for the trip, will act as master of ceremonies. Other students who will speak on the education program are Don Orlich, Butte; John Holding, Missoula; Laura Bergh, Froid; Carol Fraser, Billings; and Boyd Swingley, Heath. Orlich is last year's winner of the Western Montana

Motta Drops Hunter in Sixth

Cleveland, March 28—(UP)—Middleweight champ Jake LaMotta flashed a terrific body attack atop Chuck Hunter of Cleveland in 59 seconds of the sixth round tonight in a scheduled 10-round non-title bout at Cleveland.

LaMotta, after a slow start, leapt out in the sixth and popped Hunter with a left hook to the head. The Cleveland mid-weight contender took a nine-count, and got up groggy. LaMotta leapt across the ring and started pound away at the nearly helpless Hunter. The referee stepped in and stopped the fight with less than a minute gone in the round.

LUTHERAN STUDENTS ELECT NEW OFFICERS AT MEETING

Kenneth Read, Missoula, was elected president of the Lutheran Student's association on the MSU campus for the ensuing year at a business meeting Sunday evening in St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Other officers elected were Henry Pratt, Francois Lake, B. C., vice president; Gurina Froiland, Missoula, secretary; Dick Bolte, Livingston, treasurer; and Dale Conover, Broadview, publicity chairman.

"The California Comet" was not Mel Patton, but Maurice McLoughlin, of tennis fame.

CCNY Bids Grand Slam in Sports

New York, March 28.—(UP)—City College of New York carved a chunk of basketball history tonight. CCNY beat Bradley, 71 to 68, at New York to win the NCAA basketball championship and the first grand slam in the annals of the sport.

City had whipped the same Bradley crew in the national invitation tournament finals at New York two weeks ago. No other team ever has won both national championships in the same season.

Coach Nat Holman's sophomore scourge snatched the lead after the first 10 minutes of play at Madison Square Garden and they never again turned it loose.

The Braves from Peoria, Ill., fought to within one point of City at 69 to 68 with 30 seconds to play, and that touched off a deafening bedlam in the Garden.

But Norm Mager skittered in for a layup to make the final score 71 to 68. Mager played the second half with five ugly stitches in his forehead after a spill in the first half.

Masquer Play 'Antigone' to Open April 11

A Masquer troupe directed by Abe Wollock, instructor in drama, is entering the final stage of preparation for the Greek tragedy, "Antigone," to open April 11.

Joan Hardin, Missoula, and Carroll O'Connor, New York City, head the student cast in the roles of Antigone and Creon, King of Thebes.

Other major roles are Mary Maurer, Libby, as Ismene, Antigone's sister; Lauren Buck, Butte, as Haimon, son of Creon; Dorothy Ross, Butte, as Eurydice, Creon's wife; Jesper Jensen, Copenhagen, Denmark, as Teiresias, blind soothsayer; Cyrus Noe, Bozeman, as the Sentry; and Dick Haag, Missoula, as the Messenger.

Story of Conflict

The Antigone of Sophocles, the story of the conflict between the individual and the state, is produced by the Masquers from an English version by Dudley Fitts and Robert Fitzgerald.

It tells of the tragic fate of Antigone, who contrary to the edict of King Creon of Thebes, her uncle, performs burial rites for the body of her brother, Polyneices, who was killed in battle. The body had been ordered left unburied to serve as an example to people whose acts were considered traitorous.

Antigone Executed

Antigone, firm in her position, does nothing to save herself, and is ordered executed. The weight of public opinion finally causes Creon to reconsider, but he is too late, and the evil caused by his blind act reaches his family in the suicides of his son, Haimon, and subsequently of Eurydice, his wife.

Production Staff

The production staff includes Dick Haag, assistant to the director; Anne Stone, Missoula, music and sound; and Charles Schmitt, designer of the settings. Costumes were designed by Virginia Bulen and are being constructed by Nan-

Mag Illustrators Lead Rough Life

All is not poppies and petunias for illustrators, Nancy Fields, Mountaineer art editor, said while wiping last quarter's last minute sweat from her brow.

Waiting for the Mountaineer editorial staff's deadline selection of material generally leaves illustrators but three or four days to supply a pen and ink drawing that is expected to be equal to the quality of the literature.

During that time the artists must read the story to get it well in mind, pick out a significant scene that will put across the feeling of the story, do the necessary research, and then draw the illustration. The problem is to portray the mood of the individual story and still have the drawing harmonize with other illustrations, Miss Fields said.

Beside doing all that, she added, her staff has to keep up on school work.

Versatility is a requisite of her staff members. The illustrator must be able to modify techniques to match the different stories. Western story specialists Ace Powell and George Gogas must be ready to switch to illustrating a war story or what have you at the drop of a paintbrush.

Miss Fields stated that the objective in illustrating the Mountaineer is to give the art school and its talent greater recognition.

cy Hays, Missoula, and Audrey Lindscheid, Vida.

Mrs. Roberta Solld and Mrs. Maxine Taylor designed the dance arrangement, and the music was written by a student at the University of Southern California, Edward Earl.

Third of Campus Has Tick Shots

Nearly one thousand students and other campus members have been inoculated against tick fever, Dr. C. R. Lyons, health service director, said.

The health service is engaged in an experiment to determine the different effects of egg embryo and regular tick vaccine. Dr. Lyons said the health service is in need of 30 more volunteers who have never had tick shots before. Students, faculty members and their families, and other campus employees can receive the shots.

The shots must be taken before March 31.
