

Fall 2011

resorting at the seaside

Ruth Williams

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

---

Recommended Citation

Williams, Ruth (2011) "resorting at the seaside," CutBank: Vol. 1 : Iss. 75 , Article 47.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/cutbank/vol1/iss75/47>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in CutBank by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

RESORTING AT THE SEASIDE

Jesus, we had a lot of fishes!
My sea legs shagged the net and I didn't finish the sentence you wanted to loose the flapper flip of the unasked.

I wanted to be a basket or to be made into a holding set of arms. I asked to be slimmer than the sea which is wide and flat in its own infinity.

You told me to cut my excess and I cried.

Did you see how I flipped that? My habitat is the purple wanting along the setting sun. A skiff that bends to darkly give up its angles,

an oval ghost that jibes you.

I love the wave that drags me, an irritant along your clavicle. It is hard and sifty, the hand on my face, pressing the wafer of my body that skims along singing its own end.