CHEMISTRY SENIORS ACCEPT GRADUATE AWARDS

Five graduating seniors in chemistry at the University of Montana have accepted fellowships or graduate assistantships to continue their studies in the field at universities in the United States and Canada.

Three of the students have National Defense Education Act Fellowships: Constance Carlisle, Culbertson, will study at the University of Minnesota; James Harkins, Missoula, will attend Pennsylvania State University, and Craig Pierson, Missoula, will remain at the University of Montana.

The other two have accepted graduate assistantships; Melvin Lungle, Fairview, Alta., at the University of British Columbia, and Matthew Petrin, Missoula, at the University of Minnesota.
