U.N. Forces Prepare for Push in Northwest Korea

Tokyo, Nov. 21.—(U)—The United Nations army is getting ready for a big push . . . the drive Allied commanders hope will knock out the huge Red army in northwest Korea.

General MacArthur has given up the faint hope that diplomacy might get the Chinese Reds to pull their troops out of Korea. He is said to believe that the only diplomacy the Communists will understand is the bare-knuckle kind.

The stage was set for the offensive against the army of 100 thousand and North Korean and Chinese Communist troops when the Reds fell back in central Korea today. That action ended the danger of a Communist break-through of Allied lines.

It was still quiet on the western front . . . but there were indications that the lull would end soon. Chinese Communist troops are pouring down through northwest Korea, moving in spite of a hail of American bombs and rockets.

They seem to be building up a new line 50 to 60 miles south of the Manchurian border and about 20 miles north of the Allied Chongchon river front. The enemy's new fortifications extend along a line through Taechon and Unsan.

CANADIAN TROOP TRAIN COLLIDES; TEN DEAD

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 21.—(U)—A train carrying Canadian troops bound for Korea collided head-on with a passenger train in the mountains of Alberta province.

At least ten persons aboard the troop train were killed. Four crewmen of the two trains are listed as missing, and 45 persons are injured.

A Canadian railway official in Edmonton said the wreck occurred near Canoe River, B. C., 83 miles west of Jasper, Alta. Relief trains carrying doctors and nurses were rushed toward the scene. The troops were members of a special brigade being moved westward for eventual shipment to Korea.

A chartered plane flew 42 bottles of blood plasma to the town of Kamloops, where an emergency ward was set up.

In Ottawa, an army spokesman said the uninjured troops would proceed as quickly as possible to Fort Lewis in Washington. He said their job is to get there as soon as they can. The troops are scheduled to begin winter training Thursday.

Weather Report

Roads going out of Missoula were in good condition last night, according to the state highway patrol. However, despite the roads' being mostly dry, there are some slippery spots of which students going home for the Thanksgiving vacation should beware, the highway patrol cautioned.

For students going east of the divide, the United States Weather bureau promised cold weather for tonight and Thursday with temperatures dropping to zero and below. No blizzards, but strong winds are expected there.

Missoula and Kalispell areas are due for some cold weather, too, while in Idaho and Washington conditions will be pretty fair with slightly lower temperatures.

Hinze Chosen For Committee

LeRoy W. Hinze, drama director, was appointed to a committee which will draw up a bill for Congress concerning federal aid for the American National Theater academy. He attended that organization's conference in Seattle this week end.

"There seems to be some likelihood that the bill may be passed," Hinze said.

Hinze Voted $300

Central board recently voted Mr. Hinze $300 to defray expenses to Seattle and a New York conference of the academy in January. He will be a representative of MSU and the northwest region of the group and the Northwest Conference of the American Educational Theater association.

"If the bill is passed, funds would be allotted to each region and representatives from each state would decide how the funds are to be distributed," Hinze said. Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana comprise the northwest region.

Hinze stated that if the bill is passed by Congress it would enable the MSU theater to improve its productions, award scholarships, and build up a community theater. It would also provide for an additional staff member, which would permit several more Masquer productions a year.

Alums Laud Homecoming

"Montana State University students have the sincere thanks of the MSU Alumni association and the Missoula Alumni club's Homecoming committee for their considerable part in making the 1950 event far more successful than anyone had anticipated in view of the weather," Andrew C. Cogswell, director of the public service division, said yesterday.

Cogswell Speaks

Speaking for Ralph E. Fields, Homecoming chairman; Lyle Zimmerman, Missoula club president; R. H. Jesse, acting MSU president; and the Alumni association's executive council, Cogswell commended the work done by students and student organizations.

"The effort and enthusiasm put into the Homecoming program by MSU students was a guarantee in itself that the hundreds of returning alumni would feel as welcome as they did—and would have as enjoyable a week end as they did," the association's executive council said.

Everyone Contributed

"The floats for the parade, the Hi-Jinx show, the students' work in keeping many phases of the program moving smoothly, the band, Indians, majorettes, and others who took part in the parade and half-time program, all contributed to the success of the 1950 Homecoming," the council added. "Certainly not to be overlooked was the splendid showing of the Grizzly team which won a Homecoming game for the first time in many years."

Heerwald, Rivin to Speak As Professional Lecturers

Two recent graduates from the MSU journalism school will deliver a week-long series of professional lectures here beginning Monday, Nov. 27.

Arnie Rivin '47, managing editor of Hospitals, the journal of the American hospital association, will speak on trade and technical publications.

Martin Heerwald '48, United Press bureau manager at Olympia, Wash., will discuss press association work.

The lectures will be delivered in the auditorium of the journalism building from 4:10 to 5 p.m. each day.

Program Initiated in '44

Prominent professional journalists have been invited to speak on their specialized fields to journalism students each year since 1944. The lectures are attended by all the journalism students daily during the week. The public also is invited, according to James L. C. Ford, dean of the journalism school.

Last year's speaker was Prof. Mitchell V. Charnley, noted journalism educator from the University of Minnesota.

This year's lecturers were invited to the journalism students could listen to men speaking from the viewpoint of the recent graduate.

Since his graduation from MSU, Rivin has worked in the trade and technical magazine field in Washington, D.C., and Chicago. He was managing editor of Trustee, the journal for hospital governing boards, before joining the staff of Hospitals.

Former Kaimin Editor

At MSU he was editor of the Kaimin. Monday, Nov. 27, Rivin will discuss opportunities in the trade and technical journalism field. Tuesday, he will describe the job of editing such a publication.

Heerwald worked for the United Press in Boise, Salt Lake City, Utah, and San Francisco, before becoming bureau chief at Olympia. He was an associate editor of the Kaimin while in college.

Press Association Relations

Heerwald will speak Wednesday, Nov. 29, on the organization and operation of press associations. Thursday, he will describe a typical day's operation in a press association bureau.

Friday, Rivin and Heerwald together will discuss employer relationships of the recent journalism graduate.

Symphony Orchestra To Present Concert

The University Symphony orchestra will present its fall quarter concert Sunday, Dec. 3, in the Student Union auditorium at 8:15 p.m., Eugene Andrie, associate professor of music, announced yesterday.

Prof. Emeritus H. A. Weisberg (retired in 1946) has been invited to conduct a major portion of the program in commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the orchestra's inception, Andrie said. Professor Andrie will conduct the remainder of the program.

A cello solo by Robert Sutton, School of Mines staff, will be featured in the program, Professor Andrie said.

Bulen, Fields Are Initiated Into Masquers Royale Club

Virginia Bulen and Nancy Fields, Missoula, were initiated Friday night into Masquers Royale, an organization requiring 100 Montana Masquer points, or 1,000 hours of work in more than one field of dramatic endeavor.

Jerry Hopper, Redwood City, Calif. '49, officiated at the formal ceremony Friday night in the Simpkins Little theater.

The two women are the only two collegiate members at this time.

Hopper said that Masquers Royales must be creative theater people with a certain spirited outlook toward the field, besides accumulating 1,000 hours of work.

"Royales are also chosen for their versatility; not only must they have acted, but must have participated in the other phases of drama, such as set designing and construction, costuming, lighting, directing, and stage managing. They must be able to lead and direct other people, and imbue new students with a creative attitude toward the theater," Hopper said.

Either Miss Fields or Miss Bulen, or both, have worked on every

MSU theater production since "Dracula" was presented in the fall of '47. Besides acting and technical work, Miss Fields has been assistant director of two plays, "Play Boy of the Western World" and the forthcoming "Liliom."

Miss Bulen, theater business manager, has concentrated more upon costuming and set design.

The Masquer's Royale is a body of advanced theater workers who govern themselves and their policies by mutual consent; no officers are elected in the group. It is an organization entirely separate from the Montana Masquers. A Royale no longer in school still continues to be active in theater work.

Betty Jo Trerise Finds Brazil As Well As Her Job Fascinating

Betty Jo Trerise '49 is basking in the sun in Brazil and thoroughly enjoying her job with the United States Information and Education program in that country, according to a letter received from her recently by Thora Sorenson, assistant professor of modern languages.

Miss Trerise, a major in Spanish while here at the University, says her job with the foreign service in Sao Paulo, Brazil, "is one of those rare jobs where you feel you're accomplishing something important to you—telling America's story abroad."

Miss Trerise, a major in Spanish while here at the University, says her job with the foreign service in Sao Paulo, Brazil, "is one of those rare jobs where you feel you're accomplishing something important to you—telling America's story abroad."

"Although Sao Paulo isn't on the coast, we have the beach at Santos within driving distance down the Serra on which Sao Paulo is located, via beautiful Via Anchieta, the amazing highway built by the once-famous Adhemar de Barros," Miss Trerise said.

Sao Paulo is situated about 200 miles southwest of Rio De Janeiro.

Plans Trip on Amazon

Miss Trerise plans to visit Iguassu Falls which is larger than Niagara and plans, before leaving Brazil, to take a trip up the Amazon by ship up the east coast of South America. She then plans to take a river boat up the river to Manaus, the last outpost along the Amazon, and then fly back from Manaus to Rio.

A major in Spanish, Miss Trerise found Portuguese confusing at first but has now become better acquainted with the language. She recently received a scholarship to study Portuguese at the Uniao Cultural Brasil-Estados Unidos.

Miss Trerise was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority while here at the University.

A Happy Thanksgiving to All!

EDITORIAL

Intolerance Hits Close to Home

Our editorial bit for today is certainly not connected with Thanksgiving. In fact, it is anything but conducive to a happy holiday. But it is a subject that deserves mention.

The campus has just witnessed the conclusion of a week of rather intensive religious activity. A number of well-known clergymen visited MSU in order to make this year's Religious Emphasis week a complete and worthwhile program.

We do not know how much effect Religious Emphasis week had upon the students. But we have evidence that the concepts of morality and tolerance that are stressed in religion do not seem to be of great import to certain segments of Missoula's population.

We have mentioned that the religious speakers were prominent men. Two hotels in this city refused to house this group because they objected to the race of one member. When asked for a specific reason for their refusal, the spokesmen of the hotels merely replied, "Sorry, we just couldn't."

It is to the lasting credit of the manager of a third hotel that he was tolerant enough to house the religious week speaking group regardless of the race of the individuals in it.

It is a sorry commentary that in Missoula, an important city in a supposedly enlightened and tolerant northern state, a worthy and respected man was refused lodging merely because long-deflated race nonsense still exerted a powerful influence on certain people. It is difficult to maintain a righteous pose in respect to the race situation in the South when we see in our own bailiwick such a glaring example of the perversion of democracy.

The students at Montana State University did not seem to take race into consideration when accepting the counsel of the religious week speakers. It is unfortunate that the proprietors of certain commercial establishments can not display as tolerant a viewpoint.—D.G.

Applications Due For Kaimin Business Manager

Applicants for the position of Kaimin business manager will be interviewed by Publications board Wednesday, Nov. 28, according to Shirley McKown, Seattle, board chairman.

Applications must be submitted to the Student Union business office by noon, Nov. 28. The Kaimin business manager must be of junior standing at the time of his selection.

The Kaimin staff vacancy will be created by the graduation of Ward Fanning, Butte, present business manager.

Social Work New Addition To Curriculum

Assoc. Prof. John A. Harris, chairman of MSU's newest department, arrived in Missoula Sunday and is getting acquainted with the campus.

Professor Harris is the chairman of the Department of Social Work which is the newest addition to the curriculum at MSU. He will spend the rest of the school year establishing contacts and relationships with social agencies in this part of the state with which the department will work. He will also plan the curriculum necessary for an accredited school and recruit a department faculty.

MSU to Offer Degree

Montana will offer only one year of the two-year program until it is prepared to handle the full program. The purposes of social work education will be to offer a course that will produce students who will meet the standards of various social agencies. It will also furnish proper credits so a student can finish the course at other schools and receive a degree. Another purpose of the department will be of actual use and assistance to the state of Montana in social work.

Professor Harris came to Missoula from Harrisburg, Pa., with

Cochrane Back From Miami

Al Cochrane, Dillon, returned to MSU last week after a 2,900-mile, six-day trip to Miami, Fla., as the local delegate to the national Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism convention.

"As a whole, the convention was very inspiring," Cochrane said, "and I gained many ideas for the local SDX chapter from some of the 128 delegates attending the convention."

Six men spoke before the convention—MacGregor Smith, president of the Florida Power & Light company; Dr. Bowman F. Ashe, president of Miami university; Raymond B. Nixon of the division of journalism, Emory university; Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, deputy chief of staff; and Sir Mohammed Zafrullah, Kahn, Pakistan foreign minister.

"I met delegates from all over the country," Cochrane stated. "I also met Ronald Stead, British correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, who is now doing a series of articles about the states, and is coming to Montana soon to gather material."

In 1932, Professor Harris was graduated from Penn State. He worked at several different jobs before he began work as a case worker in 1934. He said, "I had never heard of social work before 1934, but since then I have never had a dull moment."

Hawaii Tilt Finishes MSU Grid Season

Montana concludes its 1950 grid season Friday night in Honolulu, Hawaii, against a strong San Jose State eleven.

This marks the 10th game of the year for the Silvertip team and probably will turn out to be one of the toughest tilts Montana has played all year. The San Jose squad boasts some very fine backs and has a big line to supplement its attack.

The line averages 201 pounds and the backfield 166 pounds. Gene Menges, the Spartan quarterback, is a fine passer and halfbacks Chagonjian and Mendonsa are speedy ball carriers. Beck, the Spartan fullback, has already set a new individual ground gaining record for the San Jose school for a single season.

Montana expects to make more use of its passing against San Jose State than it was able to in the Utah State battle. The field should be dry enough in Hawaii to allow Tom Kingsford, Grizzly quarterback, to throw passes at will.

San Jose Tough

Montana coaches believe that San Jose State definitely will be tough. The only yardstick for measuring the strength of San Jose is the Spartans' 18-to-6 win over the St. Mary's Gaels. The Gaels downed the Oregon Ducks by a 18-to-13 score while Coach Shipkey's team lost to Oregon by a 21-to-13 margin. However, the Grizzlies played great football against the Utah State Aggies and may have found their early season form.

Halfback Bill Baker is suffering from a leg injury incurred in the Utah State contest and probably won't be available for play on Friday. Ray Bauer, Grizzly end, did not play against the Utah team but expects to play in the Honolulu game.

Spartans Work From 'T'

San Jose uses the T formation, as do so many of the Grizzly opponents. The Spartans' most top-sided victory of the season was a 48-to-7 win over Pepperdine. San Francisco handed the San Jose eleven its worst beating when they scored a 27-to-0 victory over the Spartans.

The Grizzly team will return to Missoula Tuesday. This is the first meeting between San Jose State and the Grizzlies. However, the Spartans have met the Montana State college Bobcats on the gridiron in previous years.

The probable starting lineups for Friday's game:

West Texas State and the University of Cincinnati have accepted invitations to play in the 17th annual Sun bowl game at El Paso on Jan. 1.

Players of both teams voted this afternoon on their respective campuses to accept invitations extended by the Sun Carnival association, sponsors of the annual New Year's day game.

West Texas, located at Canyon, Tex., automatically received the host team bid as champion of the Border conference.

Whitworth college of Spokane may quit the Evergreen Gridiron conference after their worst season in years.

Pres. Frank Warren today confirmed the rumor that the Whitworth Pirates are seriously considering a major change in their football program.

Dr. Warren says the high cost of football made it financially impossible for Whitworth to compete on even terms.

Head Football Coach Denny Meyers has resigned at Boston college, effective Dec. 2. His team failed to win a game this year.

The Last Word

By John Owen

The intramural sports program is one of the most important extracurricular activities on the campus, from the viewpoint of the average student. Because of the intense interest shown in this program, I think that any improvements that can be made should be carried through.

Yesterday, I approached Dave Cole, director of this program, about the possibility of scheduling at least three intramural games with teams from the state college at Bozeman. The championship squads in touch football, basketball, and softball could travel to the Cow college at the close of regular intramural play for games with the winning squads in their circuits. Cole seemed to think the idea had possibilities and urged me to present the plan to the students.

If the members of the various living groups and clubs would discuss this proposal among themselves, they could express their opinions at the next meeting of the intramural managers. What do you think?

The Grizzlies got a late start last night for their air journey to the land of pineapple juice and huladancers. Although the Montana gridders looked good last week end against the Utah Aggies, they will be in for plenty of trouble when they face San Jose State. My pessimistic prediction: Montana 7, San Jose State 20. I hope I'm wrong.

Hometown Students Proclaim New Holiday—Miles City Day

Some people patiently ignore the blissful self-satisfaction of the Texans.

And as long as the Texans stay in Texas, that's fine with us.

But when a crusading group of MSU students take matters into their own hands and declare a "Miles City day," things are going entirely too far!

Thirty-seven eager students banded together yesterday with the sole intent of paying homage to their beloved hometown of Miles City.

How the Miles City chamber of commerce must love them! Each of the valiant statesmen wore yellow pompoms over their hearts, "proudly stating that Miles City was, is, and forever shall be the best in the West."

The idea apparently originated in the minds of the Miles City "fraternity" boys, a group of off-campus students who convinced the rest of their hometown pals that a "Miles City day" should be inaugurated to remind other students that the place existed.

Missoula Theater Scene of Knowles, Glenny Exercises

Mrs. Ella Robb Glenny and Miss Eloise Knowles were the first two graduates of MSU, 1898. Mrs. Glenny is still living, but Miss Knowles died on April 9, 1916.

Eloise Knowles was the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Hiram Knowles, early Missoula pioneers. She was born in Deer Lodge, 1872, and spent her childhood there. The Knowles family moved to Missoula around 1890 and built their home west of town near the river.

Eloise started her work with the University while still an undergraduate. She began as an assistant in the English department in 1897 and later took charge of the art department.

Miss Knowles founded Theta Phi which became Kappa Alpha Theta in 1909 and Penetralia which became Mortar board in 1925.

In 1935, upon completion of the Student Union building, everyone agreed that one of the rooms should be named after her in order that she would become immortalized on the campus.

The first commencement exercises took place in the Union theater in downtown Missoula. The main speeches were given by the two members of the graduating class. Miss Knowles' topic was "Expression of Thought" and Mrs. Glenny's topic was "Tendencies in Education." Miss Knowles was the first president of the MSU alumni.

Ella Robb Glenny was born about 1870 in Iowa where she received her early education. She moved with her family to Montana when she was quite young. After being graduated, she married a railroad telegrapher and settled in Missoula. They later moved back to Iowa, where Mrs. Glenny still lives.
