'Joan' Opening Set for Tonight

Gayle Davidson to Star In 'Play Within a Play'

The Masquer winter quarter production, "Joan of Lorraine," opens tonight in the Simpkins Little theater with Gayle Davidson, Polson, playing the title role.

When the curtain goes up on a bare stage at 8:15, the audience will see an acting group rehearsing a play about Joan of Arc; the famous historical character's story is deftly woven into Maxwell Anderson's drama as a play-within-a-play, according to Abe Wollock, director.

Through his device of two plays in one, Mr. Anderson has imbued his chronicle of the famous Maid of Orleans with contemporary meanings, and has compared her problems to the problems confronting mankind today, Wollock said. Asking whether temporary acceptance of evil can lead to eventual good, the arguments between the play's star and director are used to show the similarity between Joan's support of the corrupt Dauphin, and modern man's need to compromise with evil forces in order to realize ultimate ideals, he added.

Others in the cast include Miss Davidson are Dick Barsness, Fort Benton, the Inquisitor; Charles Cromwell, Coeur d'Alene, Ida.; Dunois; Tom Ellis, Ronan, the Archbishop of Rheims; Bill Sphar, Missoula, Tremoille; Mary Mauer, Libby, Aureole; Lee Woodward, Missoula, Father Massieu; Larry Kadlec, Missoula, Jean de Metz; Gunter Ordelt, Austria, the bishop of Beauvais; Emery Brunnett, Missoula, Poulengy; Charles Schmitt, Chicago, Laxart; Dean Jellison, Kalispell, Pierre d'Arc; John Pecarich, Missoula, Jacques d'Arc; Jack Shapira, New York, St. Michel; Joan Hardin, Missoula, St. Margaret; Isabel Gopian, Essex, St. Catherine; Tom Sherlock, Great Falls, General LaHire; Lane Justus, Bozeman, De Courselle; and Lloyd Paulson, Belt, a stage electrician. Two faculty members will also be seen in the Masquer presentation. Instructor Vernon Hess of the speech department will play the part of Alain Chartrier, while Instructor Herbert Carson, also of the speech department, will be seen as the Dauphin.

Students may get tickets for the performances, which will continue through Feb. 10, by presenting their activity tickets at the Masquer box office in Simpkins hall. Tickets may also be obtained at the door, according to Virginia Bulen, Missoula, ticket manager. Miss Bulen added that the best seats are still available for tonight and tomorrow.

NW Secretary Talks to WUS

Dave Levering, Northwest traveling secretary for World University service, briefed the campus committee, Friday, on the programs sponsored by the international organization.

WUS, known as the World Student service fund before its reorganization last year, is at present concentrating on giving help to students in South-East Asian universities, Levering said. The Orient's students today will be its rulers tomorrow, he emphasized, and the West, he added, should not abandon them now.

His organization, which has the backing of the Protestant Students' associations, and the World Jewish Students' association, Pax Romana, also supports the International Student chalet at Chembleau, France, as a no-cost tuberculosis sanitarium.

Levering, a former student-body president at Redlands college in San Bernardino, Calif., attended an international students' round-table meeting at Mysore, India, last summer, in which 25 countries were represented. The group also met with Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi.

The concluding selection will be Demarest's "Rhapsody," a piano-organ number, with Miss Zakos assisted by Elaine Schelling, Great Falls, pianist.

Committee Orders Removal of Cars

Campus drivers who persist in parking in restricted areas may have a hard time finding their cars tomorrow.

The campus parking committee has ordered the maintenance department to start hauling away autos found in "no-parking areas, T. G. Swearingen, maintenance engineer, said yesterday.

A few non-co-operative drivers of cars not registered under the parking plan have forced the move, Swearingen said. One auto with a California license has been tagged nine times, and a green pickup truck without license plates has also been ticketed several times.

Defense Mobilizer Calls For End To Rail Walkout

Washington, Feb. 5.—(U)—Defense Mobilizer Charles Wilson called on striking railroad workers to return to work as "patriotic Americans."

His appeal came in a nationwide radio and television address tonight and in the midst of rising pressure in congress for a crackdown against the "sick" switchmen.

Wilson denounced the walkout as a "terrible thing" and said, "No matter how serious your grievances may seem to you, they can not justify the harm you are doing to your country."

A bill to draft the strikers was discussed in congress today. Chairman Graham Barden of the House labor committee said the bill would get swift action if brought before his group.

Short Story Contest Rules Announced

Rules for the 1951 Stearns short story contest have been announced by H. G. Merriam, chairman of the humanities department. Harold and Jean Stearns, MSU alumni, award $50 annually to the writer of the best short story of the year, Merriam said.

The contest extends until April 7, when three double-spaced, type-written copies of each story must be submitted in L 101, he said. Each story must be signed with an assumed name and have an envelope attached to it enclosing the writer's real name.

Any undergraduate or graduate student enrolled at MSU during autumn quarter, 1950, and winter and spring quarters, 1951, in any school or department, is eligible to participate. Not more than three stories may be entered, each having a minimum of 3,000 words, Merriam said. There are limitations on the kind of story or the subject matter.

Each story entered in the contest must have been written while the writer was a student, and must not have been published, except in the Mountaineer. Stories will be judged by three off-campus judges, he said.

Manuscripts that are badly typed, corrected, smudged, or faint carbon copies will automatically be disqualified. He added that margins of one and one-half inches should be allowed in typing stories.

Bengals Salvage Second Battle

The Montana State University Grizzlies split another series last week end when they won one and lost one from the Idaho State college Bengals. The Grizzlies defeated the Idaho team Friday night, 54 to 47, by playing the same type of ball-control game that proved so effective against the Montana State college Bobcats two weeks ago.

The Bengals took an early lead in the first game of the series and led, 16 to 12, with ten minutes gone. Hal Sherbeck and Jack Sparks found the range and took over for the Grizzlies in the latter part of the first half. Sherbeck's aggressive floor work proved particularly effective for the Montana team.

Mick Luckman gathered four fouls in the first half and sat out the better part of the second half. His rebounding power was ably handled by reserve center Dale Johnson.

Bob Hasquet led all scorers with 20 points, followed by Sparks with 14. Mel Clark and Wes Leach led the Bengals with 12 points each.

Saturday night's game was a different story when the Bengals literally pulled the Grizzlies apart as they drove to a victory in the second half, winning 60 to 49.

Wes Leach, 6 foot, 1 inch forward for Idaho, just couldn't miss as he sank a total of 25 points for scoring honors. Leach missed only one shot in the second half.

Montana had a 29-to-19 lead when they came up to start the second half, but behind the accurate shooting of Leach and the rebounding of 6 foot, 5 inch Dewey Cunningham the Bengals controlled the game from that point on.

This week the Grizzlies take to the road to meet Willamette college at Salem on Wednesday night and Portland university Friday and Saturday.

Money Problems Outlined By Band Director Gray

"The band performs in public more than any other university organization, and if its activities should be curtailed, it would seriously affect the entire university's prestige."

J. Justin Gray, university bands director, made that evaluation of his organization, in a letter to ASMSU officers.

The band is one of many campus organizations that have outlined their money troubles for the student government. "The band is finding it difficult right now to maintain participation in as many campus activities as it feels it should," Gray said.

The organization's budget has fallen from $1,102 in 1946 to $911 this year, most of which was used on the Butte trip for the Grizzly-Bobcat game this fall.

"The band's budget is too small to provide much more than one football trip a year," Gray wrote, "while prices have risen considerably, our budgeted allotment has gone down."

Among the band activities student money supports, Gray said, are:

An average of three to four home football game performances; the football trip to Butte; about 10 parades and rallies; performances at about 18 basketball games; four concerts per year; performance at Interscholastic; performance at Aber day; convocations; University concert publicity tours.

"Potentially, we have students of the caliber which would permit the University to have a band of unequalled quality anywhere in the West," Gray said, "but the band lacks, primarily, instruments—most high schools in this state have better equipment and instruments than our university band."

"The band," he said, "would like to have a little money to put on an adequate recruiting program—at least one to match the one put on by the State college in Bozeman. We would like, also, to have just half as much as the State college spends each year on statewide concert tours."

"However, the band realizes the limitation of funds for all these items. As a result effort has been made to secure funds from other sources. The local Elks club provided our Indian outfits. The University has provided over $1,000 a year for instruments. The ROTC has provided several instruments. The music school provides all music, and the music school foundation has been hit for all sorts of equipment."

The band, Gray said, had practically no usable equipment in 1946, and it has been a long and expensive job to bring the organization up to its present standards.

MSU Museum To Exhibit Far East Art

The Northwest Historical museum's Russian and Far Eastern exhibit was supplemented with several rare Korean, Japanese, and Okinawan items last week when an MSU law senior added part of his private collection to the display.

Dennis Gordon, Missoula, after viewing the articles in the museum's showcase on the journalism school third floor, brought in a 500- to 1,000-year-old Korean pitcher, a silver cup which once belonged to Korea's last queen, a Japanese obi, an antique ivory Okinawan abacus, and a Chinese compass.

The pitcher, Gordon said, represents the lost Korean art of pottery glazing, and is an example of the best in that art. It is blue-gray in color, and is decorated with several stylized painted figures.

The cup, which has the royal Korean crest on its cover, was identified as the queen's by Cha En Lai, Korean official under the Japanese government. It was presented to Gordon by M. K. Paik of Seoul.

The oji, a woman's sash, is 3½ yards long, woven of silk damask, and its design is worked in gold thread.

Museum officials report that attendance at the exhibit has been heavy. It has also led to the offer of at least one more object for display, a Tibetan idol, by another MSU student, they say.
