Honors for Sale...

There is still a way to get rich in the college pastures. The racket of forming "honorary" has been scarcely exploited at all.

All that is necessary is to find yourself a buddy, round up a Greek letter combination that hasn't been used before (this will prove most difficult), and pick on some group to honor.

A warning—your honorary must have qualifying restrictions to make it attractive to prospects who will want an elite membership. Your best trick will be to profit by the experience of other honoraries and insist that the candidate have a "C" average in school and $10 in his pocket for an initiation fee.

Once your charter is handsomely embossed and you have a small following, your problems are practically over. Hundreds will clamor to have the honor of putting Sigma Phi Nothing (credit to Bibler) or Zeta Psi Rh in their jerseys are to turn them away from you. —D.W.

Circulation, Scott Cunningham.

Editor, Dick Wohlgenant; Business Manager, Pat Graham; Associate Editor, Tom Ambrose, Jewel Beck, Bill Bridges, acting president. All members are asked to attend.

The name Kaimin (pronounced Ki-min) is a Selish Indian word and means "somebody." Maintaining the program will be easy. The fall quarter program can be taken up with soliciting, convincing, and fleecing them. If your work has been done well, the cycle will repeat itself the following year. And Zeta Psi Rh will find a place among the other Greek letter combinations that haven't been used before (this would be the honor of being a "first" national.).

Kefauver Says 'Look at Facts'

Seattle, Dec. 4—Senator Estes Kefauver, who says he may be a candidate for the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination, declared his party's policy tonight and labeled General Douglas MacArthur a "Monday morning quarterback."

Kefauver told a Jefferson-Jackson day gathering in Seattle it is "overriding importance to look at the facts" about Korea "instead of being misled by the hypes of the United Nations."

Kefauver's speech was heralded by Seattle Democrats as an answer to MacArthur's address opening the Seattle centennial celebration on the Seattle city council last May. At that time the general blasted the Truman administration policy of "extravagance at home and parsimony abroad." "It is interesting to note that your centennial speaker three weeks ago did not mention the United States once in his address, and yet he was the first commander of that great army of the United Nations," Kefauver said.

The Tennessee senator added, "To me this indicates either lack of understanding of the role of the United Nations or a patriotic desire to rid our city of them."

Kefauver told the 600 dinner guests that he often disagreed with the Truman administration policy. He said he would keep on doing so "whenever I think the country's national interest demands it."

He blamed corruption in government, business and sports as "public apathy," but credited the Democratic party with "leading the battle to expose rotten conditions and rotten officials."

Earlier, Kefauver said he would announce next year whether he will seek the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination.
