Macbeth: 'Study in Middle Class But Still a Remarkable Effort'

BY LUDWIG SCHUBERT

When Shakespeare's genius—some 150 years after the poet's death—was discovered by the leading minds of continental Europe, his work was hailed as a true expression of nature itself, as he vehement and powerful drama of the clash of human emotions. The first translations into German and French, clumsy as they were, initiated a breathtaking intellectual revolution which swept like a blizzard into the well-kept gardens, French style, of aristocratic European art and thinking. The related discovery of Shakespeare helped to start a new epoch which found its crown finally in the genius of Goethe.

Loss of Power

Some 300 years after the poet's death, in Missoula, Montana, Shakespeare seems to have lost a good deal of his power. The Montana Masquers staged his "Macbeth" as if it were a drama out of a middle-class living room.

Last night in Simpkins Little theater I observed no clash of human emotions, no "true expression of nature," and next to no explosive force. Instead, I found a group of nice and well-mannered people who now and then lost their tempers and got excited—usually because somebody had been stabbed. Which obviously is not the right thing to do in any living room.

Primary Fault

What was wrong with this "Macbeth" was primarily Macbeth himself. Mr. Glenn Reznor spoke Shakespeare's verse beautifully, but lacked any affinity to the sinister figure of the Scottish thane, and later king. He didn't seem to be torn between ambition and conscience or to be "eaten" by the lust for power; he just appeared as an elderly husband with a nagging wife—a man who doesn't quite realize what he is doing and finds this experience somewhat discomforting. He mentioned his arrangement to have Banquo slain as if he was planning to bring his wife a nice little birthday present, and he spoke of the murder of King Duncan as if he was describing a beautiful landscape under the evening sun.

Macduff Has Profile

I almost think that Dick Barsness would have made a more convincing Macbeth. Because his Macduff definitely had profile: a man of flesh and blood, real and inwardly flaming with emotion, one of those guys who roamed the heaths of Scotland in the eleventh century.

Let me hasten to add another highlight of the production: the very enjoyable performance Jack Shapira gave as the porter ("knock, knock"). Mr. Shapira, by the way, had quite a crowded evening. Before and after the porter interlude he was a dignified Banquo, and after Banquo's death he reappeared as Siward, the general of the English forces.

Sherlock and Lundell

Another fine piece of acting was done by Tom Sherlock (as Ross), while Art Lundell presented King Duncan and later the doctor, both mild-mannered and suave. Marjorie Lovberg showed talent but wasn't quite strong enough to create an entirely convincing Lady Macbeth.

Director Leroy W. Hinze solved the manifold theatrical problems (as the witch scenes, apparitions, etc.) of the play very aptly, greatly assisted by the refreshingly modern settings of David W. Weiss and Dean Johnson. Monroe C. DeJarnette wrote an equally modern musical score, which I, however, feel not competent enough to judge. In these surroundings the costumes almost appeared to be a little bit too historic.

A Live Ghost

As a whole, there seemed to be a tendency to compensate the lack of real, forceful emotions with a certain over-dramatizing of stage action. No murder was omitted, and Banquo's ghost appeared in flesh, blood-stained and illuminated with a ghastly green. For heaven's sake: why not have the audience conclude the ghost's appearance from the stunned face of Macbeth?

But even so, the production, in my opinion, was a remarkable effort.

CAMPFIRE LEADER TO MAKE SPEECH

Social welfare majors and women physical education majors and minors are invited to hear Martha F. Allen, national director of Camp Fire girls. She will speak at 4 p.m. on Thursday in Old Science, room 109. Miss Allen is making a survey of Northwestern Camp Fire organizations, according to Mrs. James Dew, assistant professor of physical education.

Glenn S. Reznor, former Missoula high school instructor and now an MSU post graduate student, plays the lead role of "Macbeth" in the Shakespearean tragedy now playing at Simpkins Little theater. Mr. Reznor is a graduate of Thiel college, near Pittsburg, Pa. At this school he had major roles in four plays. Last fall he played in the Missoula Community theater's production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

U.S. to Attempt Patching British, Egyptian Troubles

Washington, Jan. 29.—(P)—Uncle Sam is going to try a hand at getting things patched up between Egypt and Great Britain. This news comes from diplomatic officials in Washington.

The officials say the United States will move soon to try to get the new Egyptian government of Premier Aly Maher Pasha and the British government of Prime Minister Winston Churchill around the conference table.

Washington officials say the United States won't make any specific proposal for settling the dispute.

As one official puts it: This country will try only "to get both sides talking instead of fighting." And he adds, "Once they start talking, some kind of a solution can be worked out."

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden spoke along the same lines in the House of Commons today. Eden said he hoped Premier Aly Maher's new government would be willing to negotiate. He also said he hoped something could be worked out which would grant Egypt both her national aspirations and guarantee the defense of the Suez Canal zone.

Eden also said Britain will hold Egypt accountable for the loss of British lives and damage to British property during riots in Cairo last Saturday.

Aide Denounces McCarthy 'Lie'

Washington, Jan. 29.—(P)—White House aide Philleo Nash has denied charges made by Sen. Joseph McCarthy that he was named in FBI reports as a Communist and "close associate" of members of a Canadian Red spy ring.

Philleo Nash calls the charges a "contemptible lie." He denies ever having been a member of the Communist party and blamed his sister's anti-McCarthy activities for the senator's blast.

Nash says, "I have absolutely nothing to hide and never have had."

He says he suspects that McCarthy "has been stung" by a newspaper advertisement denouncing the senator. Nash's sister was one of the sponsors.

KAPPA TAU SENTINEL PIX TO BE RETAKEN TODAY

Kappa Tau's Sentinel pictures will be retaken at 7 p.m. today in the Student Union lounge. Paul Tschache, Hamilton, president of the senior scholastic honor society, has asked that all members be present, and that the men wear suit coats and ties.

UN Raises New Hopes For Truce

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 29.—(P)—United Press correspondent Arnold Dibble cables from Korea tonight: "The United Nations high command believes a double-barreled attempt to reach a Korean armistice will be successful."

Communist and Allied staff officers will meet again tonight at Panmunjon to plunge into the heart of a blue-print for policing a truce. Since Sunday, when they first began discussing the plan proposed by the UN, the delegates have gotten a quarter of the way through the 17-page document.

Dibble says "no man could say" how soon it would be for a truce to be approved. He says it's believed the Allies would not have introduced the detailed plan unless they thought the issues could be solved.

With that in mind, a joint subcommittee talking prisoner exchange also meets again tonight to talk about a companion plan on that subject.

Geology Students To Tour Mine

Geology students will make a trip through the Leonard mine in Butte this week end, according to Ray Olson, Missoula.

The group of 23 students and two faculty members will leave at 6 a.m., Feb. 1, and return that evening. The trip is being sponsored by Sigma Gamma Epsilon, professional geology fraternity. Olson, vice-president of the fraternity, said the trip would include tours of underground workings of the mine, the geology offices, and a study of surface outcroppings.

Picture Schedule

Club and organization pictures for the Sentinel that were postponed before will be taken today in the Student Union lounge.

This is the schedule, according to Gene Hoyt, Havre, associate editor: 12:30, Phi Delta Phi; 7:00, Sigma Gamma Epsilon and Kappa Tau; 7:15, Alpha Kappa Psi, Phi Epsilon Kappa, and Panhellenic; 7:30, Pi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Westminster Foundation and Homearts club.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(P)—The Senate has voted approval of a move which would admit Turkey and Greece to the North Atlantic treaty organization. Enrollment Drop Shown in Survey

A student residence survey for winter quarter, made by Gloria Meehan, secretary to the dean of students, shows that residence halls have taken a drop of 113 students. This quarter there are 669 students living in the halls.

Fraternity and sorority living groups have remained about the same. Fraternities have gained 36 over fall quarter's total of 222. There are 205 women living in sororities this quarter.

Six hundred fifty-four students are living with their parents or in private homes in Missoula. The survey shows that there are 460 married students attending the University. An over-all view shows that there was a general drop in University enrollment.

Educators Finish Survey of Schools

Missoula, Jan. 29.—(P)—Two educators have recommended that Missoula schools assume a bonded indebtedness that would total six million dollars by 1957.

The educators are Dr. James MacConnell and Dr. William Odell. They have completed a survey of Missoula grade and high schools.

They recommend immediate bonds in the amount of $1,393,000 for the grade schools and three million dollars for Missoula County high school. An extra 630 thousand dollars for grade schools and an extra million dollars for the high school will be issued futrely.

Both educators are from Stanford university. They have been making their survey in the Garden city for the past year.

Upperclassmen who have not had their pictures taken may do so this week.

Persons interested in the position of business manager for the Sentinel should leave their letters of application at the Student Union business office, according to Bob Lindborg, Sentinel editor. Applications will not be accepted after Saturday of this week.

Schedule Changes Need Approval

All University students desiring to change their registration this quarter are reminded that beginning Monday, Feb. 2, the additional approval of the chairman of the board of advisors must be obtained on their change of enrollment card.

For any changes previous to that date, only the customary written approval of the advisor and instructors concerned need be obtained.

Alms for AWS

Unless some manna from somewhere falls on the Miss Montana program in the form of greenbacks, the going looks pretty rough this year. When the state Jaycee organization voted to sponsor Dick Doyle to the Olympics last week end, the possibility of their financial support for Miss Montana grew pretty dim.

Again this year, the Associated Women Students of MSU are faced with the problem of how or if they should sponsor the Miss Montana program. Last week the AWS council presented the alternatives in this manner:

1. Give up the Miss Montana franchise.
2. Continue the program as before, with student-solicited contributions from every possible source to raise the nearly $2,000 in expenses the program incurs.
3. Sponsor the program with the financial aid of the state Jaycees.

Now, with only the first two possibilities left, AWS is faced with a serious decision. If they continue the program, their main drawback will again be the extreme difficulty in obtaining the necessary finances. The whole undertaking is a huge task which always seems to fall on the shoulders of a few. In addition, many students and faculty members have long felt that the program should be scrapped.

Few people deny that Miss Montana is good publicity for both the University and the state. The opportunities and experience gained by the winning coed, as well as by all who work with the program, are very valuable. Montana's method of selection of a candidate is the ideal one, according to the director of the Miss America pageant, for its methods most closely resemble the actual Miss America contest.

Shall Miss Montana stay or shall she go? Bozeman and other members of the greater university system of Montana are definitely interested in it this year, and may be participating in it with or without us. But unless some definite financial aid commitments are found, the justification for holding the Miss Montana franchise here seem very shaky.—J.B.

Tax Struggles Brings Revision Of Famed Gettysburg Address

In view of the mental strain that is being spent on the filing of income tax returns, the Kaimin publishes the following slightly edited copy of the Gettysburg address:

One score and sixteen years ago our fathers brought forth upon this nation a new tax, conceived in desperation and dedicated to the proposition that all men are fair game.

Now we are engaged in a great mass of calculations, testing whether that taxpayer, or any taxpayer, so confused and so impoverished can long endure. We are met on Form 1040. We have come to dedicate a large portion of our income to a final resting place with those men who here spend their lives that they may spend our money.

It is altogether anguish and torture that we should do this. But in the legal sense we cannot evade, we cannot cheat, we cannot underestimate this tax. The collectors, clever and shy, who computed here, have gone far beyond our power to add and subtract.

Our creditors will little note nor long remember what we pay here, but the Bureau of Internal Revenue can never forget what we report here. It is rather for us to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these vanished dollars we take increased devotion to the few remaining, that we here highly resolve that next year will not find us in a higher income tax bracket.—Anonymous

Grizzly Gab

by LEW KEIM

With a Ram's pelt hanging in the lair of the Montana Grizzlies, Coach Jiggs Dahlberg put his hoop charges through a stiff scrimmage session yesterday afternoon, and today he will taper off the drills a little in preparation for the New Mexico Lobos Thursday night.

Chuck Davis had four stitches taken in his elbow for a cut he sustained from a fall at practice Monday. Dahlberg says Davis will be ready to play against New Mexico, however. Jack Luckman, who returned to practice Monday, is still limping from his BYU ankle injury, but he will be back in the starting lineup Thursday.

This will be the second time the skyline newcomers have met on the hardwoods. Last year the Lobos romped over the Grizzlies, 51 to 59, in an invitational tourney at Denver.

Dahlberg will suit up his entire 15-man squad for the New Mexico game, but for the Bobcat games the next two nights, he is undecided as to who will don the Grizzly suits. Dale Johnson is gaining confidence and thus is an improved hoopster.

Phi Delta Theta now shares the intramural point lead with the Sigma Chis, both having 960 points after their skiing points were added to their touchball and volleyball totals. Sigma Nu moved into a more challenging position for the point crown as first place in the ski meet gave them a total of 940 points.

M Club Boxing Tourney Scheduled Friday Night

Fight fans will get their share of thrills Friday night as the 31st annual M club boxing tournament gets underway in the Men's gym at 8 p.m.

Promising to be one of the biggest slug sessions in the history of the tourney, the card will feature ten scrappy bouts. Only three of last year's champions will see action in the boxing show. All other fighters on the card are newcomers to the M club tournament.

Larry "Hoot" Tuttle is the leading scorer for the New Mexico Lobos, who tangle with the Grizzlies here Thursday night. Tuttle is co-captain of the hustling New Mexico squad and a two-year letterman.

The feature and semi-final bout contestants have not been matched as yet because an opponent for Bob Fraser, last year's 145-pound champion, has not been selected. Mike Fleming, bout director, said he was also trying to find an opponent for heavyweight champ Chuck Bradley.

Ring Veterans

Other ring veterans returning from last year's tournament are Jerry Newgard and Frank Norberg. Newgard is 155-pound champion and Norberg is the 135-pound king.

Among the novices this year will be Dan McDonald, Chuck Shelton, Scotty Crumpacker, Dick Hubbard, Jim Johnson, John Stajcar, John Notti, Bob Buchanan, George Paul, Hughie DeMers, Tom Tidball, Dave Crossman, Ken Duffy, and Dale Lott. Jim Bailey, the only fighter who is not a university student, will also see action.

Proceeds Help Activities

Referee for the tournament will be Billy MacFarland, who has officiated at several M club tournaments in the past. Prof. F. G. Clark and Dean Jones will serve as judges.

Proceeds from the annual event are used by the M club to help support many campus activities and fund drives, Fleming said. Advance ticket sales may be obtained in the Student Union and several downtown business places. Reserved ringside seats are $1.50 and general admission is $1.

Sigma Nu moved into a four-way tie for first place in league A by toppling the Angels, 45 to 25, Monday night. Ralph Ripke paced the Nus with 11 points, while Bill Gustafson and Jim Duford hit eight and six, respectively, for the Angels.

In other Monday night games, the SPE's, led by Carl Rhonke's 17 points, got their first win of the season by downing Corbin hall, 42 to 18, and the Strip Houses won their second straight by out-running the Deacons in the last quarter to win, 43-32.

Delmer Cook got 17 points for the Strip Houses, boosting his total to 35 points, and held onto second place in the race for individual scoring honors, behind Jack Scott, PEK, who is leading with 40. Bill Reynolds, Deacon center, hit from every angle to collect 18 of the Deacons' 32 points.

Ski Team to Leave Today For Collegiate Meet at Banff

A five-man Montana University ski team will leave this afternoon for Banff, Alberta, to participate in the fifth annual Intercollegiate ski meet this week end.

Eight American and Canadian university ski teams already have entered the meet and two more, Seattle university and Whitman college, also are expected.

Entered are such outstanding university teams as the University of Washington, heavily loaded with Norwegian ski stars; the University of British Columbia; Montana State college, spear-headed by returning lettermen and exchange students Thor Hauge and Oystein Solheim; Washington State college, who tied the strong Washington Husky team for first place in the recent University of British Columbia fourth annual intercollegiate ski meet; Wenatchee Junior college; and the University of Alberta.

Representing MSU will be five skiers, prominent all winter long in this rugged sport. They are Cliff Wordal and Dick Solberg, Missoula; Lew Penwell of Billings;

Ray Ruana, Bonner; and Jim Faurot, coach. All have shown remarkably well in recent meets.

Four events—downhill, slalom, cross-country, and jumping—are scheduled at the Canadian winter sport site. The meet is organized and sponsored by the physical education department of the University of Alberta and all expenses are paid by the Canadian government. Trophies will be presented to the winning teams.

Indications are that Montana will face a formidable row of opponents at the Mount Norquay meet. Comparisons are hard to make because Montana has not met any of these ski teams.

However, a picture of the relative strength of their opponents can be made. Washington and Washington State finished in a tie in the recent British Columbia invitational, and Montana State college finished third. The University of British Columbia placed fourth and Wenatchee Junior college was fifth in the same meet.

Montana last participated in the annual meet in 1949-50. Cliff Wordal was a member of that team.

Former MSU Professor Relates Conditions in Post-War France

BY DICK URQUHART

The French people have been through a horrible experience," said Mrs. Louise Arnoldson, professor emeritus of French who recently returned from a two-year visit to the continent.

Concern over the Communist threat is considerably greater in this country than in France because of the war's devastation, she said. During the German occupation all of France was sacked and eventually became destitute. Pessimism and resignation has somewhat sapped the morale and traditional Gaulic buoyancy.

American aid was the one and only source of relief and has been instrumental in restoring vitality to the French economy, Professor Arnoldson said.

The packages distributed through the CARE organization were of immeasurable importance in sustaining the French diet. Without the CARE packages, the average Frenchman would have been lucky to sustain a meager potato diet, occasionally spiced with a few vegetables, she said.

American tourists often get a false impression of what seems to be prosperity in France, Professor Arnoldson said. The French government has sacrificed precious funds to support and encourage tourist accommodations and attractions because of the vital role the tourist industry plays in strengthening the national economy.

Actually, the comforts and entertainment which the tourist may enjoy are far superior to the living standards endured by the average French citizen.
