FOLK GROUP TO SING AT UM SUNDAY NIGHT

MISSOULA--

One of the most exciting folk singing groups in America today, the New Lost City Ramblers, will open the "Now People" program on the University of Montana campus Sunday (Oct. 1).

The folk trio, as well as events throughout the coming week, will be sponsored by the Associated Students Program Council.

The New Lost City Ramblers present a program aimed at displaying the diversity and depth of American folk music. They focus on the string bands of the 1920's and 30's, but include music from earlier periods plus contemporary Bluegrass or Southern folk style.

Trio members are John Cohen, Tracy Schwarz and Mike Seeger, all of New York City.

Mr. Cohen received his bachelor of arts and master of fine arts from the Yale University School of Fine Arts. He contributes to folk music journals and is co-founder of The Friends of Old Time Music Association. He plays guitar and banjo.

Mr. Schwarz began to play Bluegrass during his college days in Washington, D.C., and during his stay in the Army. He plays fiddle, guitar, banjo and sings high tenor.

Mr. Seeger was raised in a folk music family. He began playing the guitar at age 17, became interested in old time folk music and then Bluegrass. He has produced two solo record albums and plays mandolin, autoharp, banjo and fiddle in addition to the guitar.
