AIR POLLUTION CONFERENCE TO BE AT UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

MISSOULA---

The Rocky Mountain Conference on Air Pollution will be held on the University of Wyoming Campus at Laramie on November 16 & 17.

The conference is sponsored by the Wyoming Technical Assistance Program in cooperation with the Technical Services Council and the Federation of Rocky Mountain States, Inc.

The program is open to anyone interested in pollution problems in the Rocky Mountain area. The two day conference will be devoted exclusively to the causes, effects and control of air pollution. Experts from the fields will present and discuss the problems and the measures which can be and are taken to reduce or eliminate air pollution.

Further information and brochures can be obtained by contacting Patricia P. Bragg, Bureau of Business and Economic Research, University of Montana, Missoula, Montana.
