Education Versus Motivation

A university professor and his wife, who also has advanced education degrees, have painted a dismal picture of the college campuses throughout the country.

The downhill march in intelligence has alarmed the professor. Once, only the top third of graduating classes was accepted, now the upper portion is welcomed.

He says the half-hearted interest of preoccupied professors who must devote time to outside business to supplement meager incomes is unfair to the college student.

There are some who believe that college days are nothing more than an opportunity to postpone the accepting of responsibilities. If this is true, if maturity comes only from experience in the outside world, then it is unjust to screen the top academic third to put them on campuses where they will waste their time.

The professor and his wife, like hundreds of parents, will not send their daughter to college, and perhaps one day she will agree that her parents' decision was to her advantage. Too, she may regard herself a victim of unwise parental influence.

Without doubt there are many students gathered on campuses today whose interest in the curriculum is at a minimum. Many of these students are also victims of parental influence. The prestige of a college degree fascinates many parents who did not have the opportunities which they can give their children.

The current stress on education also influences many students to go to college, not because they really have the burning desire, but because if they want to take their place in the atomic age, they must submit evidence of advanced education. These students who are bouncing through school, living only from party to party, are not the first to permit golden opportunities to pass them by.

But anyone who, once his child is at the portals of adulthood, feels that he must make the decision about his future, his schooling, or his refusal of schooling, is doing his child an injustice.

To reap the most from any situation, the motivation must come from within. Our heart is in our work only when we feel that it is right for us, not when someone else tells us this.—E.S.

Grizzlies Win Two at Home

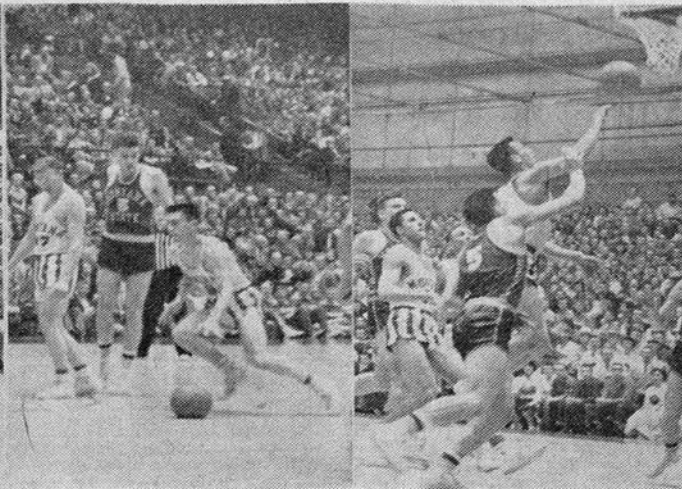

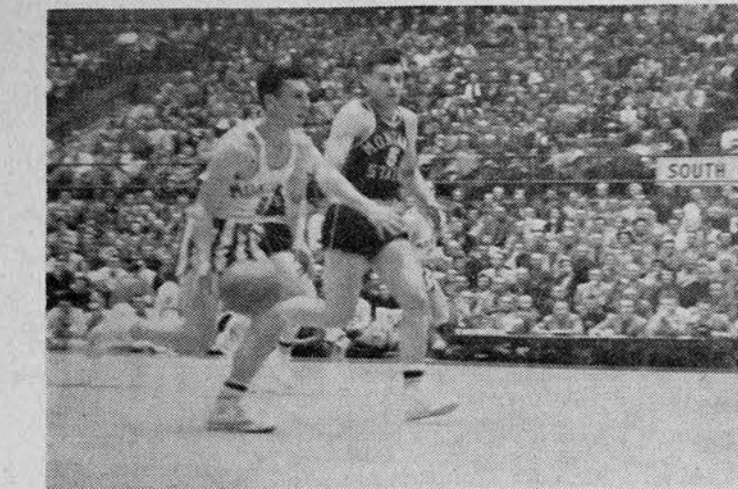

By BILL LARCOMBE
The MSU Grizzlies took a big step toward capturing the mythical state basketball championship by defeating the Montana State College Bobcats, 71-62 and 83-64, in the week end.

Despite the prestige gained, the Grizzlies may have hurt Montana's chances for a first-division Skyline finish. Co-captain Dave Adams is out for the remainder of the season with a collarbone injury sustained in Friday's officiating error, when the Silvertips defeated the Cats 71-62. And scoring Ed Argenbright was held from Saturday's contest by a bruised knee. However, Argenbright should be ready for the Denver game Thursday night.

Friday night the Tips unveiled a new defense, which, according to Coach Jiggs Dahlberg, "broke up the offense that Montana State had set up against a man-to-man defense."

But it was good old-fashioned team and team play that enabled the Grizzlies to down the taller, more experienced Cats and win a four-game losing streak.

Friday, Ray Howard and Ed Argenbright were giants off the boards, grabbing 16 and 14 rebounds respectively; Dave Adams hit three baskets at crucial moments during a 36-24 first half; Argenbright repeatedly zig-zagged through the Bobcats' defense for driving layins; Zip Rhoades flipped the Tips to an opening 4-0 lead and was consistent throughout; and Howard was hot with his hooks when it counted most.

"Smooth and accurate" best describes the Grizzlies' attack in Saturday's contest as the Silvertips hit 51.8 per cent of their shots from the field and 75 per cent of their free throws.

It wasn't as easy as it sounds for the Grizzlies because, in the first half, the lead changed hands several times, with the brunt of the attack carried by Rhoades, Howard, and Argenbright. Hal Winterholler proved very capable filling in for Adams.

With only a two-point lead at halftime, and four fouls on Howard, the outlook wasn't bright for the Grizzlies, but fine clutch playing by the reserves, particularly Dunham, Fine and Samuelson, enabled the Tips to hold a six-point lead with 10 minutes to play.

WCOE Trounces Cubs 72-63, 66-60 In Week-End Play

By DALE BURK

Pat Curran, former MSU student, and his Western Montana College of Education teammates scored a double triumph over the University Cubs here last week-end, defeating them Friday by a 72-63 score and edging them out Saturday 66-60.

Accuracy from the free throw line gave the victories to the Dillon squad. Friday night the Bulldogs connected on 26 of 36 gift throws while the Cubs made 13 of 19. Dillon hit 20 of 31 gift tosses Saturday compared to 10 of 20 for the Cubs. The Grizzly yearlings outscored the Bulldogs from the field both nights, hitting 25 field goals both nights compared to 23 each game for Dillon.

Friday night the Western team presented a smooth passing attack, taking advantage of every break to roll to the victory. Western withheld a Cub rally in the fading minutes to win handily, with McLeod, McGuire, and Curran leading the attack. Norm Kampschror, Grizzly freshman guard, turned in a good game, hitting 17 points while teammates Pete Rhinehart and Hal Erickson tallied 13 and 12 respectively.

The Cubs jumped to an early lead Saturday, but fell behind at the half 28-36. Curran was again outstanding for the Bulldogs, scoring 22 points, mostly on layins under the basket. The Cubs started fast in the second half with Kampschror, Rhinehart and Erickson again leading the attack, but were unable to pull ahead of the Dillon club. Pete Rhinehart looked well on defense and rebounding besides scoring when the baskets were needed while Kampschror and Erickson were effective on outside shooting. Kampschror led the Cubs with 17 points.

MISSOULA POLICE OFFICIALS STUDY CRIMINOLOGY AT MSU

Dr. Gordon Browder is instructing an extension class in criminology this quarter. The class, which meets once a week, has 10 Missoula policemen, the Missoula probation officer, Missoula school teachers, and one university student enrolled.

James J. Munro, visiting instructor in education, has finished an extension course in Remedial Reading in Ronan and has started the same course in Hamilton for school teachers and interested persons in the vicinity.

An extension course is one not offered at the University, but a group of persons wish to study a certain subject. An instructor agrees to meet with them once a week to carry on discussion, according to Mary Margaret Courtney, secretary.

Federal Representative To Interview Seniors

A representative of a federal agency will visit the campus Thursday and Friday, Feb. 4th and 5th, for the purpose of interviewing for employment seniors who will receive the bachelors degree in business administration with majors in accounting or secretarial science.

Appointments for interviews should be made at the placement bureau, Room 206, Main hall, with Mrs. Leona Peterson.

1954 Montana Tourists Exceed 3,000,000

More than three million people visited Montana in 1954 and spent an estimated $87 million to rank the tourist business in Montana third, after agriculture and mining, according to an article in the January issue of Montana Business, published by the Bureau of Business and Economic research at MSU.

The average tourist party during the summer of 1954 numbered three persons and spent 4.3 days in the state, the publication stated. Almost half of Montana's tourists came from Canada and the states of Washington and California, according to counts of cars taken at port of entry and U. S. Customs stations during the summer months.
