Pub-Travel Offers Career Counsel To High Schools

MSU participation in "College and Career Days" was discussed Tuesday evening by Publicity-Travel committee. Over the period of a month, high school students throughout the state will assemble at various cities for assistance in planning their future.

Student-faculty publicity teams will represent the University at these assemblies. A list of qualified students for these teams was compiled and submitted to the dean's office by the committee.

"Helena Night" will be held in connection with "Naseby Rhinehart Night" at the Field House March 3. The Grizzlies play Colorado A&M in a conference game. Butte has not confirmed a date for its visit.

The group also discussed adapting color brochures consisting of the first 16 pages of the Sentinel for MSU publicity during high school events on the campus.

George Lambros, Missoula, committee chairman, proposed a Missoula high school dance to be held after a future Spartan basketball game. The committee would sponsor the dance providing it could be staged at the Lodge.

"The Lodge is more available for high school students in holding after-game dances," Lambros said. "University students would also be invited to attend."

Personalized letters of invitation for the high school leadership camp are being mailed.

Committee Plans 12 Member Judiciary For Liquor Control

By NORMA BEATTY

A tentative outline for the student Judicial board, which will hear all infractions of the drinking rules and other campus problems was discussed at a Liquor Control meeting yesterday in the President's office.

The outline states that the board, composed of 12 students, shall have jurisdiction over all cases except abnormal ones. All decisions shall be final except for necessary approval or disapproval by the dean and associate dean of students. It is hoped that this board will be the foundation for a social and academic honor system.

Organization

After the ASMSU elections in the spring, the newly elected Central board shall appoint, after interview, the Judicial board which shall consist of six men and six women. The board components are as follows:

1. Six-member Senior board; three senior men and three senior women.
2. Six-member Junior board; three junior men and three junior women.
3. Women's board is composed of the six women.
4. Men's board is composed of the six men.

The student body shall elect the executive chairman of the Judicial board winter quarter. The period between his election and his taking office shall be a training period.

To be considered for either chairmanship or membership a student must have maintained a C plus average and be at least a third-quarter sophomore. Central board members shall not be eligible to serve in either capacity.

Procedure

The procedure for hearing cases, as proposed in the outline, is as follows:

- (1) Cases shall be presented to the executive chairman normally by the deans, or other person or persons if they so desire.
- (2) The executive council, made up of the executive chairman and the chairmen of the Men's and Women's boards, shall decide to which board the case shall be referred.
- (3) Members of the determined board shall be contacted with respect to time and place of hearing.
- (4) The accused may state his guilt or innocence.
- (5) The dean and associate dean of students shall be notified and advised of executive council's decision for

Snow Conditions For Skiing Reported Good

Ski courses in Western Montana report excellent skiing conditions and the weather bureau says there is more snow to come.

Old timers in the area predict a long, cold winter with heavy snow. They base their prediction on the manner in which domestic and wild animals have prepared for the season. Most of the animals observed have a heavier coat of fur or hair than usual. "This, the old timers say, is an honest indication."

The US weather bureau at Missoula county airport reports a 30-day outlook of high precipitation and temperatures ranging between 10 and 40 degrees.

Marshall canyon ski course reports 16 inches of snow base with six inches of new fallen powder. Diamond Mountain ski run reports 24 inches of snow base and six inches of powder snow. Three feet of snow base covers the Big Mountain ski run with four inches of powder. Lost Trail ski course has 46 inches of snow base with 10 to 12 inches of powder. Lookout Pass ski run reports 60 inches of snow base and approximately 12 inches of powder.

TV Mountain near Missoula is not open for business yet. Snow conditions are reported excellent but the new "chair-type" lift has not been installed. The management says that it will be in operation by Feb. 1.

Scholarship Program Set by Dean's Office

For the first time in the history of the University a non-athletic work scholarship program has been set up by the Dean of Students' office.

According to Andrew Cogswell, acting dean of students, the program is still on an experimental basis. He said approximately 40 students were interviewed for the scholarships. Out of this number, 11 were selected.

Cogswell said the scholarships supply the students with jobs that will provide their board and room. It is hoped that they can eventually be set up to help the students meet all their expenses.

Recipients of the scholarships are chosen on the basis of economic need and scholarship.

Cogswell said his office will attempt to locate needy high school seniors this spring and summer who are interested in college. They will be given a number of tests which will be used as a basis for their selection.

Hes aid there has been a certain concern that students who are 25 or 50 per cent self-supporting will lose their jobs because of the program. He said there will be no problem of that kind and that there will still be jobs for these people.

Cogswell added that the work scholarship program evolved from a nation-wide concern for students who are highly qualified to attend college but because of economic reasons are not able to receive higher education.

Mankind Can Be Wiped Out By C-Bombs

"The efficiency of individual power has not diminished with modern technology," according to Ralph Y. McGinnis, chairman of the University Speech department and director of the Montana High School Speech League. This point was brought out in a speech before the national convention of the Speech Association of America last month in Los Angeles.

McGinnis said, "...In the world of today, 1955, intelligent men in at least three countries (Russia, England, and the United States) possess enough scientific and technological knowledge to destroy every trace of biological life on land and in the waters of the earth.

All that these men need to do to turn the earth into a lifeless planet is to manufacture and detonate a few small cobalt bombs.

"Concurrent with the increase in the power which one person may exercise over other people, there has arisen the need for knowing the nature of the power which one person or a group of persons may hold among others, the sources of power, and how power may be used judiciously for the general benefit of mankind," he said.

After giving various definitions of power that have been formulated by Dr. Franklin S. Haiman and other authorities, McGinnis explained briefly the seven sources of power as classified by Dr. Haiman: Personal characteristics,

Dr. Honkala Named To Head Geology Dept.

Dr. Fred Honkala has been named chairman of the Geology department according to an announcement released by the president's office yesterday.

Dr. Honkala received his BS degree at the University of New Hampshire, his M.A. degree at the University of Missouri and his Ph.D. at the University of Michigan.

He has been a member of the Geology staff since 1948.

Tradition, Magical powers, Accident, Prestige, Conditioned needs, and Specific skills.

In discussing general uses of power, McGinnis mentioned three relative positions that may be taken regarding the exercise of power by a person in his personal and group relations. At one extreme is the position of authoritarianism or dictatorship, representing no use of authority or power by anyone. Somewhere about halfway between these extremes McGinnis places democracy.

McGinnis talked about specific functions of power as a factor in communication and contrasted use of power in an organization with a rigid line of command with that in groups of people working together in which the power still resides in members of the group but may pass frequently from one individual to another.

Three Found Safe, 22 Still Missing From Tanker Fire

By United Press

Three men trapped below deck on a flaming tanker for five hours have worked their way to safety at Lake Charles, La. Twenty-two of the tanker's 49 crewmen are missing after the "Salem Maritime" exploded last night just after taking on a cargo. The blast broke windows in Lake Charles and set off flames that spread to three barges tied up forward of the tanker. They also exploded.

Gold Rush is on . . .

Wall street men are the prospectors and they are scrambling for stock. Ten million shares of Ford Motor company stock went on sale this morning. The securities and exchange commission gave the go-ahead at a price of 64 dollars and 50 cents a share and the demand was so great the stock is already up to 70 dollars. Even before the official sale began, most of the stock had been spoken for. Many persons had to be turned away. And those who wanted 50 and 100 shares had to settle for five or 10.

SCA and Faculty Discuss Camp, Student Chapel, Closing Maurice

Members of the Student Christian association last night asked faculty and students to pin point certain campus problems and activities which are pending. The faculty guests were Andrew Cogswell, acting dean of students and Miss Harriet Miller, acting associate dean of students. Student guests were Jim Abbott, interfraternity council, and Darlene Forzley, AWS.

Questions concerning the usefulness of a proposed annual summer camp highlighted the panel discussion in the Religious center. Cogswell explained that the main objectives of the summer camp will be to promote public relations, keep dormitories in operation, and promote the College of Arts and Sciences. He said that several hundred high school students on a high academic level will be chosen from around the state to attend the camp. Activities for the high school students will include classroom work in various schools and departments, and recreation both on and off campus.

Another problem brought up at the session was that of a religious chapel for students. Cogswell explained that the reason there isn't one is because the University could not build it with state funds. The money to build would have to come from private funds. He also added that this has been tried but proved unsuccessful.

Concerning the plans for group buying, and central heating by Greek housing groups, Jim Abbott explained that the idea lacked enthusiasm among the groups and was dropped.

Miss Miller explained that in the near future, alterations in the registration set-up would be necessary unless more money is appropriated for living quarters and class room buildings. She explained that the University is running at capacity now and that steps may have to be taken to eliminate some less qualified students.

Mr. Cogswell was asked what he thought about the closing of Maurice avenue. He said he was in favor of the idea because it would lessen the danger of accidents to students crossing the streets. He also said that if the street is eliminated cars will park in the lots where they belong, instead of crowding into the limited space along the avenue.

We're Losing World War III

This country's classrooms are the battleground of World War III and so far America and the West are losing.

World War III is a battle now being fought for men's minds. It will not be won with military force, or technical accomplishments alone—not even with food, clothing, Point Four's, or drives like WUS, World University Service.

Gladys C. Lawther, regional secretary of the WUS, was here last week to help John Fowler plan the annual WUS drive on this campus. The WUS organization is above criticism. It hopes to raise close to a million dollars this year for books, clothing, shelter, food, health centers, and more, for needy students throughout the world. WUS is the best medium available for entering the East-West struggle.

the Best Available . . .

And that's it. It's the best available, but it isn't enough. It faces the same problems of Point Four. What good can a State department expert do who is trained to increase the productivity of rice—if after he gets to India he finds the people aren't interested in raising more rice. They may only want their share of what is being grown now.

That State department expert is probably not trained to solve those problems, but neither are the rest of us. And we aren't worried about solving them either. That's why we are losing the battle.

. . . Should be Studied on Campus

University deans and departments are looking over their classes these days with the possibility in mind of a change to a semester system. We think they should also take into consideration the free world's number one problem—Communism. It can be studied from almost every angle—economics, psychology, history, sociology, business, education, and even religion.

If we don't know the questions how can we supply the answers?

Dear Sir:

In the Jan. 17 issue of the Kaimin, there was a letter from Mr. Robert T. Panzer, praising the administration and defending it from its critics. From the tone of Mr. Panzer's letter, it is quite obvious he isn't going to school here. There is nothing wrong with criticism, in fact we would soon stagnate without it. To my knowledge, there has been no criticism of the University itself this year printed in the Kaimin. Individualism, no doubt.

I don't wish to criticize, only to ask a few questions. These questions seem to be bothering quite a few people, so now seems like a good time to get them answered.

Question 1. Is it really necessary to connect Craig hall and South with the proposed extension? There will be a sizeable increase in the number of students living in that one area, all using the same entrances and exits. Wouldn't it be just as cheap, indeed, cheaper, to move the whole works a notch or two to the north, thereby leaving the two ends of the wing sticking out, so that more wings could be eventually added? Isn't it just as cheap to build a wall as it is to tear one down and make all the necessary alterations? It looks, even in the architect's drawing, to be pretty ugly. Joining two types of architecture is ticklish business, if one doesn't want to risk ending up with an eyesore. With so many people living in one connected building, we may get our names in the paper, but if that place ever catches fire, we'll make headlines.

Question 2. On the subject of fire, why are there no fire escapes on New hall? I don't believe they even have panic bars on the doors. Fireproof? So were the "Morro Castle" and the Hotel Winecoff. Money for this? How much did it cost to put grass on the oval?

Question 3. Why is it so hard to get a deferment of payments on bills? This might not concern too many, but bills for this quarter fall due on the tenth of the month. There are a number of veterans here who don't get their allowances until the twenty-first. It is a terrible experience to get deferred for that eleven days. Couldn't the University just as well move the due date up to be more practical, or at least grant a deferment to those people without their having to go through Hell for it?

Question 4. According to the liquor laws, it is illegal to possess alcoholic beverages on campus. Just where does the campus begin and end? Someone might innocently park his car with two cans of beer in it, (nothing wrong with that) on what he believes is city or private property. If he should get caught by an individual who doesn't like him, or wants to set an example, he could be ruined. Is the law made to protect people, or was it intended to be a tool to force authority? When restricting laws like that are made up, isn't it customary to closely define the restrictions and limits?

In answer to Mr. Panzer's statement that he doubts that the critics have the best interest of the school at heart, if they didn't have good, sincere interests, would they be criticizing?

Sincerely,
Denton R. VanderPoel.

U. S. Olympic Team on Way to Italy; NFL Starts Pro Collegiate Draft

By United Press

Everyone seems happy in Cortina, Italy, site of the Winter Olympics starting next week.

Cortina looks like a bride on her wedding day, sunny, smiling, and dressed in white. And the one budding international dispute that threatened the serenity has faded away.

American bobsledders charged "unfair" treatment last Sunday when Italian officials refused to let one American team practice on the bobsled run. But the three American teams got in two runs apiece today, and team manager, Francis Tyler, says, "We consider the incident closed."

Daytime sun is softening the snow in Cortina, but cold temperatures at night are freezing it again. Town officials say private homes still have rooms for rent at $4 a day.

Forty members of the American Olympic team arrived in London after fog had held up their plane six hours over the Atlantic. Skaters and skiers in the group are continuing on to Cortina, while the hockey team heads for Frankfurt, Germany, to play three exhibition games.

The National Football League started its draft of collegiate players in Los Angeles last night. The pros held the first three rounds of the draft last November. They figure to run through 12 more rounds last night and the last 15 rounds today.

Club officials spent the afternoon finishing up their work on rules. They've already made one major change, designed to make the game safer. In the future, the ball will be dead as soon as a tackler brings down the ball-carrier. That should prevent piling on.

Whether the rule will prove popular is another question. Halfback Hugh McElhenny of the San Francisco 49'ers says the game will lose box-office appeal.

Bear Facts . . . MSU Sports Get Poor Coverage By State Radio

By JOHN BANSCH

The radio coverage of MSU athletics has reached a low point in this state. Except for coverage in Missoula and Billings areas, Grizzly news is almost non-existent.

Radio broadcasts from Missoula stations are picked up by listeners to the north and south of here. Billings listeners hear Grizzly games over KGHL, but they are carrying only seven Montana home games.

Many of Montana's followers heard the Utah and Brigham Young games over Utah stations. Those fans who don't have strong radios can't get the games from stations out-of-state.

Without the broadcasting of Montana games in the state, fans are losing interest in university athletics. When the interest of the fans is lost, the entire athletic program suffers.

As the supporters of Montana athletics lose their interest they quit encouraging and start discouraging athletes about the university program. This situation has been evidenced recently with many athletes in the eastern portion of the state going to such schools as Minnesota and Nebraska.

Besides coverage of actual contests, radio stations could carry interviews with Grizzly sports personalities. Along with these interviews, stations could have general sports programs concerning university athletics.

Those towns that have television stations could carry the movies of Montana games. If the TV stations didn't want to show the entire game they could concentrate on the highlights.

This deplorable situation should be cleaned up as soon as possible. If nothing else, pressure should be brought to bear by students to get programs of this nature started. The students can comment on the problem to the home town station managers and explain it to them.

The mystery of the three basketball players at Uath seems to be cleared up. Coach Jack Gardner has reinstated two of the three players that were suspended from the squad just prior to the first Montana game.

Ed Gaythwaite was put back on the team after the Redskins returned to Salt Lake City from Missoula, and Monday night Ted Berner rejoined the team.

Jim Frary, the third man in the mystery, has quit school. No one knows where Frary is, but it is rumored that he is on his way back to Kansas State, where he originally came from.

Chinske said that the ski meet, to be held at Diamond mountain at 9:30 a.m. Saturday will be open to teams using players who have not competed in any inter-collegiate meet.

The board voted to limit team eligibility for the IM trophy to teams which compete in a minimum of 10 intramural activities. Teams must compete in the major sports, football, softball, and basketball, plus seven other minor sports.

Chinske reminded team managers to present ski team rosters to his office prior to 5 p.m. today.
