80 UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA GRID PROSPECTS TURN OUT FRIDAY FOR SPRING DRILLS

MISSOULA---

Nearly 80 football hopefuls hit the practice field yesterday for the opening day of spring drills for the University of Montana Grizzlies under head coach Jack Swarthout.

Swarthout, who led the Tips to a 7-3 season in 1967 in his first year at the Missoula school, is anxious to see how newly-recruited transfers and a flock of freshmen will fit into the Grizzly program in 1968.

"We have felt that on paper we are much stronger and deeper than we were last year," Swarthout said Friday. "Now we'll find out if we were right."

Thirty-two of the prospects are returnees from the 1967 squad, while nine are new transfers and the rest are either freshmen or others turning out for the first time. Not included are five veterans who will not be out in the spring for different reasons.

Roy Robinson, sophomore tailback from Glasgow, and Ron Baines, junior split end from Tacoma, Wash., are competing in track this spring and will be out next fall. Tom Lavery, junior guard from Chicago, Ill., Rick Sparks, junior center from Butte, and Karl Fiske, junior defensive back from Laurel, are still recovering from injuries and operations as a result of last season.

The list of turnouts, with one star (*) after returnees, two stars () after transfers, and three stars () after freshmen or others, follows:
