Remodeled Registration Set for Winter Quarter Debut

In exactly 24 days Little Brother 1962 will set foot on Mother Earth, with asbestos suit in one arm and geiger counter strapped to his bulging 15-inch waist. He will demand immediate recognition because he is supposed to be one of the most important 365-day units in all of history.

But that's what we're told about every year. Each year is the most important, so that isn't really new.

But hark! Bigger and greater things really will happen in 1962. In exactly 25 days students will be a part of the brand new modified, decentralized, magna-smooth one-day and part-of-a-utumnquarter registration. Is this important? Not to the outsider perhaps, but to the students and especially the freshmen, who are recovering from fall registration, the new process is a breeze.

Faithful Kaimin readers should be at least vaguely aware of the students' part in winter quarter registration. Unfaithful readers only have to look at their class schedules to find the procedure clearly outlined.

There have been many reactions to the new method, most of them favorable. Students who find that their schedule requires modification because one or so of the myriad of "bugs" jumps into their card packet during registration can see their adviser on the spot. This could be done this fall, too, but next year the student will be one or two hours ahead because he filled out his cards and figured his schedule before he went home for Christmas vacation. This will naturally cut down registration time.

Another feature is the streamlined automotive assembly line of the process. The whole second floor of the Lodge will be divided into sections which are spread out enough so as not to cause congestion. Twice as many fee clerks and checkout stations have been installed to further speed up the turnover. Class-card tables which handle heavily enrolled courses will be provided with bulletin boards on which to post closed courses. This method will allow students standing in line to see ahead of time what courses are closed instead of finally reaching the head of the line to find out their section or course has been filled or cancelled.

Yes, it appears that the Registrar's Office, headed by Leo Smith, has worked around to a faster, smoother registration.

One student was overheard saying, however, that Mr. Smith and staff overlooked an important item on the agenda, however seasonal it may be.

"They've done a good job planning and working on this deal," he said, "but they may run into unexpected difficulty. They've failed to realize that registration day (Jan. 2) follows New Years Day (Jan. 1) which is most unfortunate enough to immediately follow New Years Eve.

"They should consider installing an alka-seltzer and tomato juice bar at both doors," the student said.

U.S. Troop Replacements Drive Across East Germany

BERLIN (AP)—A new American battle group began rolling into West Berlin Thursday. Despite Communist threats, there was no interference with its motor march across Red-ruled East Germany.

The unit that arrived was Co. E, 1st Battle Group, 19th Infantry. Its 25 jeeps and trucks took 6 hours and 20 minutes to do the 110 miles from Helmstedt, in West Germany, to West Berlin.

Nearly half the time was spent going through Soviet checkpoints at each end of the highway. This is about normal for the meticulous examination given to official papers by Soviet troops.

Army's Strength May Be Reduced

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., predicts the Army's size may be reduced considerably by spring although the Air Force will continue to expand and the draft quotas will be increased.

Russell, speaking on a videotaped program, said many Reservists will be released and draftees will replace them in some cases.

He said he has received many complaints about calling up large numbers of military Reservists.

MSU Registrar Issues Final Plea

Leo Smith, registrar today made a final request for student cooperation regarding winter quarter registration. He said that in some departments many students have their class schedules approved.

Paul B. Blomgren, dean of the business school, reported to the registrar that only half of the business students had made appointments and worked out schedules with their advisers.

Mr. Smith said that he realizes that all students may not be able to contact their advisers. If this is the case, he said, students should make adviser appointments prior to their actual registration time on Jan. 2. He emphasized that if students did not do their part they would not be able to register without unnecessary delays next quarter.

MSU Christmas Concert Scheduled Sunday at 8:15

MSU's annual Christmas concert, a sure sign that Christmas is drawing near, is scheduled for Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the University Theater, according to Luther A. Richman, dean of the School of Fine Arts.

Featured at the concert are the combined choral organizations of MSU, under the direction of Kenyard E. Smith. Mr. Smith replaced Joseph Mussulman as director of choral music when he left to work toward a doctorate under a Danforth grant, Mr. Richman said.

The program will open with Antonio Vivaldi's "Gloria," a 17th-century work featuring the orchestra, chorus, and soloists Joanna Lester, Missoula; Anne Erickson, Great Falls, and Judy Fisher, Blackfoot, Idaho.

The Madrigal Singers will present "While by Our Sleeping Flocks We Lay," "The Holly and the Ivy," and "Patapan." Soloist is Diane Simon, Butte.

"Hodie Christmas Natus Est" by Palestrina, "O Rejoice Ye Christians, Loudly" by J. S. Bach, "This Little Babe" by Britten, "Go Tell It On the Mountain" arranged by Genuchi, "The Shepherd's Carol" by Billings, and "My Dancing Day," arranged by Shaw and Parker, will be presented by the University Choir.

The Jubileers will close the program with a presentation of Harry Simeone's arrangement of Clement Moore's "Twas The Night Before Christmas." Soloist for the number is Norman Mikelson, Missoula.

Today and Christmas Day

The New York Times
 By Robert J. McCracken

All the world over, people are hungry for peace. In East and West alike, there is a common dread of a third World War and of all that it could mean in terms of catastrophic destruction.

The hunger for peace accounts in large measure for the irresistible appeal for Christmas. The very word suggests everything that is the antithesis of war—a cozy fireside, good cheer, warmth of feeling, openhandedness.

A Gentler, Nobler Life

Christmas is an annual reminder that our natures are not entirely, or even essentially, devoted to competitive struggle. It is a criticism, therefore, of the relations that throughout the rest of the year subsist among men and nations. On the twenty-fifth of December we catch a vision of a gentler, nobler life than we ordinarily live and of a fairer juster world than the world we know.

Tongue in cheek, George Bernard Shaw once proposed a society for the abolition of Christmas. He had in mind the tendency to turn it into a carnival of mendicancy, gluttony and drunkenness. It was a Scroogelike proposal, and nothing ever came of it, yet Shaw had a sound point.

He might have given even more force and substance to it. There is a tendency just as widespread to surround Christmas with an atmosphere of fantasy, everything sweet, sugary, sentimental, sterilized against ugliness, remote from the strains and stress of daily life in a fiercely competitive world. It is what most Christmas cards and many Christmas carols do. So regarded Christmas becomes an escape from reality.

Contemporary Tragedy

There are elements of tragedy here. The contemporary situation, far from making religion irrelevant, emphasizes not only its inner meaning but its imperative necessity. Christmas is a case in point. For, shorn of adventitious trappings and with emphasis placed where it properly belongs—on peace and good will—it meets a deep need of human nature. It stands for the truth of the heart of things: that love is the human soul, the groundwork of human existence and the life principle of society.

And yet, in the general mind, love as the life principle of society often is dismissed on the ground of its idealism.

Its perfectionism is held to be its most damaging feature. Ideally, people say, love is stronger than hate but, practically, in a hectoring, browbeating, contentious world where many believe in nothing higher than the state and have therefore nothing to guide them but their own policies, and nothing to restrain them but the power of other states, it is not so. The race is to the swift, and the battle to the strong, and the defenseless go to the wall.

Ethical Implications

Though they may not put it into so many words, this is what most people think. Not only Christmas but Christianity seem too perfectionist in their ethical implications. They are on a plane so high that their most novel and striking feature—the love of enemies and the nonresistance to evil in the Sermon on the Mount—are rarely taken seriously, or if they are taken seriously their consequence is a divided conscience, if not a be-setting hypocrisy.

In effect, they are regarded as a kind of poetry, a utopian dream, beautiful and desirable but "out of this world," unrelated to the immediate, workaday problems of men and nations.

G. K. Chesterton remarked that the Sermon on the Mount, which has love as its ruling principle, at a first reading turns everything upside down, but that on a second reading, it turns everything right side up. At the first encounter, it is felt to be impossible, at the second, nothing else is recognized as impossible.

Men, instead of seeking refuge in fantasy, come to their senses on the twenty-fifth of December. On that morning the last secret of the universe is seen to be very simple. What the law of gravity is to the stars and the sun, love is to the human race. It is neither a weakness nor a luxury but the profoundest practical need of mankind.

Tanganyika Is New Independent State

Tomorrow, Dec. 9, Tanganyika, a former German territory and later a UNO Trusteeship territory under British administration, emerges as a free nation.

Tanganyika has been very often referred to by many observers as "a model African state." What they mean here is that Tanganyika, unlike her neighboring territories, has had no political turmoil. This is mainly due to our political leader, Mr. Julius Kambarage Nyerere—educated at Edinburgh University.

He has been referred to as "moderate and non-racialist." It is everybody's hope that this peaceful political atmosphere, and moderation of our leaders will continue through post-Independence days.

The independent Tanganyika will be under a human government and not under a superhuman one. We cannot, therefore, be boastful about our political achievements until later in the day. We know that—errare est humane—and therefore we cannot overestimate the capability of our leaders. Only we hope and pray hard that there won't be any errors.

Politically Tanganyika has been slow but sure. The people have for quite sometime learned that unity is strength. They have learned to avoid the pitfalls of imperialism, of divide and rule.

Through the Tanganyika African National Union, the 120 tribes have been unified in the past few years throughout the country the cry has been "uhuru" (uhuru means freedom). Whatever the next cry will be I don't know, but I hope it will be a cry of joy. Long live Tanganyika, long live Nyerere.

Patti Jo Shaw First to Reign

Patti Jo Shaw of Deer Lodge was winner in the first Miss MSU Pageant in 1959. Miss Shaw presented an original skit entitled, "Time for Talulah." In the Miss Montana Pageant, Miss Shaw was first runner-up and received a $500 scholarship. The following year she won the title of "Miss Wool of Montana" and subsequently, was crowned "Miss Wool of America" the same year.

The second annual Miss MSU Pageant brought Marith McGinnis of Missoula into the limelight. She brought glory to the University in the Miss Montana Pageant again when she was named first runner-up. Miss McGinnis also received a $500 scholarship for outstanding singing ability, beauty, poise and personality.

Joanna Lester of Missoula captivated audiences and judges with her singing talent and charm last year in pageants of the local, state and national level.

First she won the Miss MSU title, then Miss Montana and went on to Atlantic City where she was one of the ten finalists in the Miss America contest.

Miss MSU of 1962 will be crowned by Miss Lester.

Grizzlies Pause for Finals Before Eastern Tourney

By DOUG KIENITZ

Studying for final examinations tops the list for the MSU basketball team this weekend, but the Grizzlies swing into action next Friday and Saturday in Billings as Eastern Montana College dedicates its new Field House.

Friday night the Grizzlies tangle with the Montana State College Bobcats led by 6-4 forwards John Bryant and Andy Wyatt, guards Tom Sawyer and Pete Carson, both 6-0, and 6-8 center Gordie Haugen.

The Eastern Montana Yellow-jackets, MSU's opponent Saturday night are led by 6-8 center Bill Drum, and 6-6 forwards Dennis McIner and Harvey Munford.

In other action Wyoming's Cowboys face EMC Friday night and Saturday night to round out the tournament schedule.

Head mentor Frosty Cox said that the team did a good job against Washington considering that the Huskies are a big and experienced aggregation. He added that both the Oregon State Beavers and Washington were good competition for the Grizzlies.

Montana's defense, Cox said, has done an adequate job but still must improve in stopping the pivot man. Rebounding has been one of the stronger points with the Grizzlies out-rebounding the Huskies Tuesday night, 45 to 44.

During the Christmas vacation the Grizzlies will play two games. On Dec. 23 they tangle with Idaho in Moscow and then Dec. 27 in the Field House the Bobcats from MSC will battle the Grizzly hoopsters.

The first game of the 1962 season is Jan. 2, registration day for the MSU student body, when the Grizzlies face a strong Idaho unit led by 6-6 Reg Carolan, a letter winner in football, basketball, and baseball.

The first Skyline Conference game for the Grizzlies is against Brigham Young University in the Field House Jan. 6, with 13 more league games to follow.

The Skyline Conference is in its last year of operation with competition in all sports except football terminating July 1, 1962.

Education ranks third with 20 wins for 27 points. There is a four-way deadlock for the number four position among Bus Ad, Business Office, Chem-Pharmacy, and Journalism.

Physical Plant had the high team series with 2354, followed by Business Office, 2351, and Journalism with a 2345.

High team game honors were captured by Journalism, 895, with Physical Plant in second with 819, and Business Office third with 817.

Volleyball Championship To Be Decided Tomorrow

The top three teams from each volleyball league will vie for the all-intramural championship tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the Men's Gym.

The top three teams in the A League will not be decided until after this afternoon's games, but the first three places in the Fraternity League were settled yesterday at the end of the regular season.

Sigma Nu topped the Fraternity League with a record of eight wins and no losses followed by Sigma Chi with a 7-1 record and Phi Delta Theta with a 5-3 record. Full House is currently leading the A League with eight wins and no losses.

Intramural director Ed Chinske said that a playoff will be played prior to the tournament if a tie should develop in the A League's final standings.

The intramural swimming champion will be decided today at 4 p.m. in the New Pool.

AP All America Selection Boasts Giant Forward Wall

NEW YORK (AP)—A giant line averaging 232½ pounds to the man and one of the most brilliant backfields of recent years feature the 1961 Associated Press All-America football team announced Thursday.

In the backfield are Sandy Stephens, Minnesota; Ernie Davis, Syracuse; James Saxton, Texas; and Bob Ferguson, Ohio State.

Merlin Olsen of Utah State at 265, playing tackle, is the biggest member of the forward wall that includes Jerry Hillebrand, Colorado, and Bill Miller, Miami of Florida, ends; Bill Neighbors, Alabama, tackle; Roy Winston, Louisiana State and Dave Behrman, Michigan State, guards, and Alex Kroll, Rutgers, center.

At least two of the first team are outstanding students—Kroll, a Phi Beta Kappa candidate who led Rutgers to its first unbeaten season since 1869, and Olsen, an honor student in business administration.

Davis, first Negro ever to win the Heisman Trophy, broke the redoubtable Jimmy Brown's career record for total offense at Syracuse with 3,414 yards.

The small man on the forward wall is Miller—192 pounds and 6-2. He makes up in agility and drive for what he lacks in power. This season he caught 43 passes for 63 yards and two touchdowns.

New York Police To Use Nightstick

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City policemen have been advised to use their nightsticks freely when necessary to restrain a prisoner or to avoid injury.
 An illustrated leaflet distributed to members of the force advises concerning the nightstick:
 "Use it. Taking a prisoner into custody is not a personal contest between you and him. Forget the marquis of queensberry rules. Your duty to the department and your family is to restrain your prisoner without injury to yourself."
 A nationwide survey has shown a great increase in mob attacks on policemen, many in New York City.

Shepard, Grissom Get Special Wings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom got his new pilot-astronaut wings ahead of Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard yesterday but it took some doing.
 For a while it had looked as though the Navy would beat out the Air Force in awarding the first such insignia for space age pilots. But the Defense Department stepped in on the programming.
 Grissom and Shepard received their new wings in a double ceremony at the Pentagon. Grissom was first by only a couple of minutes.

Producer: Stanley Kramer; Director: Laslo Benedek; Script: Stanley Roberts. Based on the play by Arthur Miller.

Stars: Frederic March (Willy Loman), Kevin McCarthy (Biff), Cameron Mitchell (Happy), Mildred Dunnock (Linda), Howard Smith (Charlie), Royal Beal, (Ben).

Willy Loman is the little man who wants to be "well-liked"; and spends his life wishing foolish dreams and aspires to the grandeur of middle-class prosperity. His values are mediocre and he is destroyed because of them. His sons also are mediocre. And this he can't wish away.

The play is a fantasy of sorts, moving backward in time, and simultaneously advancing the story. Willy's life is revealed through hallucinations. Benedek's camera roams naturally from actual scenes to the hallucinations, eliminating fancy effects. The hallucinations are punched across. The only cinematic deviation is the suicide sequence. The viewer watches Willy destroy himself. Otherwise, the film is quite a conventionally filmed play. Photographed drama is seldom great. This picture misses also, but falls into the better-than-average category.

With the exception of Frederic March, who turns in one of his best performances, all the players appeared in one of the Broadway productions of "Death of a Salesman." The relationship between Biff and Willy is well done, singling out the similarities and emphasizing the differences. The acting is quite good, although loud and stagey for films. Biff's realization that he is nothing is put forth convincingly. Perhaps, more than any other character, he realizes the futility of the grand masquerade. The disintegration of Willy overshadows all other elements of the picture. He suffers many of the ills of current American society.

Mildred Dunnock, the original Mrs. Loman, understands Willy and tries to help him. Willy's stubbornness and persistence in pursuing the wishful dreams he deems holy block her attempts to revive him. The crucial action is Willy's and Biff's, a pleasant point for critics who want a look at the dark anti-feminine side of American letters. The involved "symbolic significance" of modern literature does not intrude here. The story makes a comment, but more than that, portrays the evolution and destruction of man.

At the request of Denis Adams president of the Associated Students, the Library will be open on Friday and Saturday evenings, Dec. 8 and 9, before final examinations, from 7 to 10.

Direction, Movement—Which Way Would You Turn?

Editor's note: Two weeks ago the Kaimin published an article stating reasons against fallout shelters. Today an article written by Mrs. Theodore H. Shoemaker, faculty wife, states a different side of the issue.

In the Kaimin article of Nov. 21, "Civil Defense Declared 'Fraud by Computers,'" opinions contrary to Mr. Pfeiffer's (Mr. Piel's) were solicited.

I cannot believe that being a publisher, even of Scientific American, makes a man an authority on nuclear warfare. To say that it is "feasible" that Russia could make a 1,000 megaton bomb, explode it over and "set six Western States afire" is misleading. "Feasible" has the following meanings (Webster's New World Dictionary): "Capable of being done or carried out; practicable; possible; likely; reasonable; probable; suitable." It may be possible, or capable of being done, but it certainly is not practicable, likely, reasonable, nor suitable, as I understand the meanings of these words, that Russia would make and use a 1,000 megaton bomb, for she knows that the United States would be of no use to her after a thermonuclear holocaust. Also she knows that we could destroy her utterly before she could finish us off, and this in itself would be a strong deterrent. However, if we allow ourselves to be misled by the dream of unilateral disarmament bringing peace to the world, we will have to face the ghastly alternatives of rule by Communism or death, or even both Communism and death (look at Hungry and East Berlin).

I object to the remark in the article, "It shames our people before the world to prescribe a sawed-off shotgun as equipment for the family fallout shelter." The phrase "sawed-off shotgun" connotes gangsters, and therefore has an unfair implication. Anyone who prescribed a sawed-off shotgun as equipment for the family fallout shelter? The phrase "sawed-off shotgun" connotes gangsters, and therefore has an unfair implication. Anyway, who prescribed a "sawed-off shotgun" for a fallout shelter? Since when has it been a "shame" to have a gun in one's home to protect it and one's family? Those who object should face the fact that a family fallout shelter is just that: big enough for one family, and no bigger. Aside from other considerations, if more than one family tried to live in a shelter only large enough for one family, all those in the shelter might suffocate from lack of air. I certainly cannot understand the reasoning which says, in effect: "I won't build a shelter, because I think we'll all die of suffocation anyway, but shame on you who have a shelter and won't let me come in with you to make sure we all suffocate."

I strongly disapprove of attempts to terrify the populace by telling them there is no escape from death if we have a nuclear war, as if there were any escape from death anyway. No one knows exactly what the effect of a nuclear war will be, nor how many will die, but it is obvious that people who are prepared to meet disaster do not panic when it comes, while those who do panic will cause their own death and the deaths of many more. According to the National Committee on Radiation Protection and Measurements if you were in a "basement, without exposed walls, of a small house, one or two stories," you would get "1/10 to 1/50" of the radiation outside your house. This means that if the radiation were 1,000 roentgens (lethal dose) outside, you would get 20 to 100 roentgens (not lethal) in your basement. If the windows were bricked-in or sandbagged, you would get even less. In a "standard basement fallout shelter of frame or brick-veneer residence," you would get "1/50 to 1/250" less radiation than outside. The greatest radiation is during the first 24 hours after the nuclear explosion, and that's when it would be most important to be taking shelter from radiation instead of running around outside in a panic.

I'm all for negotiation, as long as we negotiate from strength, with honor and justice for everyone concerned. Let us negotiate with Russia for the next 50-100 years, or as long as necessary to keep the world at peace. Let's not forget, however, that while we were negotiating with Japan in 1941, she bombed Pear Harbor; therefore, I believe that all families and individuals who are able to do so should prepare some sort of shelter against radiation, just in case Russia or China do the same thing, or in case fallout from testing gets too heavy.

I agree with Prof. Sidney Hook of New York University (Philosophy Dept.) when he said, "If we surrender, Communism, with all its evils, will take over the world. But if we are prepared to fight, then we may not have to fight, and if the enemy is foolish enough to attack us, then, if we are prepared, the losses may not be as great as some anticipate . . . The man who declares that survival at all costs is the end of existence is morally dead."
