Regents Okay New Loop, Presidents Must Approve

HELENA (AP) — A new six-college athletic conference won the blessing of the Montana Board of Regents Tuesday, subject to final approval by the presidents of MSU and MSC.

Four other proposed members have already approved the new league. They are Idaho, Idaho State, Weber of Ogden, and Gonzaga of Spokane.

The Montana regents said presidents of the six schools still have to adopt formal regulations dealing with athletic scholarships, transfer of junior college students and other details.

It will be the first time in 65 years of competition that the two Montana schools will be in the

Reds Label Indian Flights 'Provocative'

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Red China's charge that Indian planes made "provocative" flights over the Himalayan front raised apprehension in New Delhi yesterday that the Communists are planning new attacks—possibly supported by fighters and bombers.

Peking called the alleged air incidents "extremely grave."

A spokesman for Prime Minister Nehru's government denied the Peking charge of nine Indian violations of Tibetan airspace.

Nehru told Parliament members of his ruling Congress party the Red Chinese might be awaiting the outcome of the Colombo conference before deciding on their next move.

Both Nehru and the Chinese have been trying to enlist support of the six nonaligned nations meeting in Ceylon.

Russians Dampen Hopes For Test Ban Agreement

same conference. Both were orphaned from previous conferences.

Montana State competed in what was known as the Rocky Mountain Conference from the early 1920s until 1956, dropping out from lack of competition as much as any other reason.

Montana joined the old Northwestern Intercollegiate Association in 1902, shifted to the Pacific Coast Conference in 1924 and withdrew in 1950 to join the Skyline Conference, which broke up last spring.

Gonzaga does not play football but will meet the other five in all other sports. The first full league competition will be during the 1963-64 basketball season. Under the new league, the hoop champion will be eligible to compete in NCAA national playoffs.

Although there is a wide gap between the enrollment of Gonzaga at 2,000 and Montana State at 4,600, the six schools have roughly the same amount of funds available for sports.

'Frontier Omnibus' Rolls Off Presses To Accompaniment of High Praises

"Frontier Omnibus," a collection of Northwest historical documents spanning the years from 1805 to 1883, will be issued in book form as a joint publishing project of the University and the Historical Society of Montana.

"The 27 articles in the book cover the era of the trappers and explorers, missionaries, traders, brawling gold seekers, Indian fighters and pioneering housewives, all the way to settlement of the raw land by sturdy stock-raisers and homesteaders. This is not the kind of history that is written by professional historians. It is a series of accounts from the hearts of very human people who were there and saw it all as the Northwest opened up," Jack Ryan,

Venture Editor Asks Pub Board To Broaden 'Errand Girl' Job

Changes in the policy of Venture, the campus literary magazine, which would make the editor rather than Publications Board immediately responsible for printed material, were suggested to Publications Board by MaryLou Cushman, Venture editor, yesterday.

The present policy, amended by Publications Board and approved by Central Board, states that work other than undergraduate student contributions can be accepted only with the approval of Publications Board.

Publications Board passed the amendment after it was told by Dave Browman, chairman of Budget and Finance Committee, which appropriates money for Venture, that his committee feels the magazine should be used for undergraduate work since it is supported by student fees.

In one of the changes suggested by Miss Cushman, literary or art work would be limited to student contributions "except in unusual circumstances, when outside work may be accepted upon the recommendation of the editor."

The present policy, she said, "removes all editorial responsibility" from the editor and makes the editor an "over-sized errand girl."

As well as requiring Publications Board approval for the publishing of graduate or faculty work, the policy requires that the Venture staff, although chosen by the editor, must be approved by Publications Board. The board must also approve the judges of the student writing contest.

Under the policy suggested by Miss Cushman, such decisions would be left to the editor.

Bruce Marsh, a board member, argued that the present policy does give the editor considerable power. Among sections of the policy he cited was one which gives the editor the "final decision on what is to be published."

Another change suggested was that the art editor be made an associate editor in charge of art. In answer to a question, Miss Cushman said that the art editor, Sharon Fredrickson, had not been consulted concerning the proposed policy changes, but that members of the literary staff unanimously approved the changes.

Miss Cushman was supported in her requests by Fred McGlynn and Laulette Hansen.

Miss Hansen said that she thinks students pay to receive Venture, not for the exclusive right to contribute to it. Thus, she said, graduate and faculty work should be allowed in the magazine.

Marjorie Dightman, board chairman, said she was afraid a misunderstanding had developed between the board and the Venture staff.

The board, she said, isn't trying to make Venture "toe the line." Rather, she said, the board is attempting to establish a policy that can be followed in future years.

One question, McGlynn said, is whether the board is trying to take editorial control away from the editor by requiring that no non-undergraduate work be published without the board's approval.

Board members answered that the policy was designed to allow Publications Board to stop a preponderance of non-undergraduate work, and that the board did not intend to read each article before it gave permission for publication.

Action on the policy was postponed until next quarter.

In other business, a committee was appointed to study the possibility of raising the fee charged students who want a Sentinel but have not paid their student activity fees all three quarters.

Currently, a charge of $2 is made for each quarter the student did not pay his fees. However, Cyrille Van Duser, Sentinel adviser, said regular fee-paying students pay about $2.50 per quarter for their books.

director of the Montana State University Press, said.

The diaries, letters and official correspondence that the book contains were originally edited more than a quarter of a century ago under direction of the late Paul C. They were published at that time in the Frontier and Midland, a campus literary publication edited by Mr. Merriam.

"We have had the original series re-edited by John Hoakola, a

What Does Grade Mean?

Selecting students for college requires educators to set up certain criteria. These usually include aptitude tests, a youngster's past grades, his personality, and what amounts to an intuitive judgment of his potential in college.

In recent years, as the number of applicants exceeded the growth of facilities, many private liberal arts colleges have had to become increasingly selective; the number of rejects is steadily mounting. This causes anguish among students, their parents, and some educators.

Now, a distinguished biologist, Dr. John T. Bonner of Princeton, asks a jarring question: Are the criteria for selecting students sufficient to make intelligent judgments? He doubts it, and persuasively argues his point by saying that the system of testing and quickie interviews provides no recognition of those who seem to be "average" but flower later in life.

Selecting the best applicants for college training is important and complex, and Dr. Bonner has no pat solution. He notes, however, that it would be more logical to choose students by looking into their heredity. If the achievements of his parents and grandparents are notable, then the applicant would be accepted.

Obviously, there are practical drawbacks to the heredity idea. No one yet knows the varying effects of heredity and environment on an individual. And it clashes with the democratic view that each individual should be judged on his own merits. Still, giving weight to a youngster's family background in the college selection process is no more outrageous than the commonly accepted notion that a student's potential can be neatly gauged by a few grades and a half-hour interview. —The National Observer.

Committee Allots $173,000 in Student Fees

By JERRY HOLLORON

Distribution of more than $173,000 in student fees is the task of Chairman Dave Browman and other members of the ASMSU Budget and Finance Committee.

This year the Associated Students' budget is based on a student activity fee of $51 per student per year and an estimated activity-fee-paying enrollment of 3,400 students.

Although the number of fee-paying students may be more, the committee must budget on the conservative estimate of 3,400, Browman said. If there are more students, organizations will get more money than budgeted originally; if there should be fewer students than expected, the amounts budgeted will be cut.

Of the total fees collected annually from each student, $30 is used for intercollegiate athletics. However, this will be decreased to $27 in 1963-64, $24 in 1964-65 and $21 in 1965-66 as a result of a referendum passed by the students last spring. This will mean a corresponding decrease in the student fees.

The second biggest benefactor from student fees is the Sentinel, the MSU yearbook, which receives about 27 per cent of what is left after the intercollegiate athletics share is subtracted.

Estimated expenditures for the 1962-63 school year include accounting, $4,498.20; Activities Committee, $571.20; AWS, $1,213.80; Auxiliary Sports Board (intramural and intercollegiate sports, rifle team and Women's Recreational Association), $5,355; band, $1,071; debate and oratory, $3,213; dramatics, $3,570; homecoming and alumni relations, $285.60; Leadership Camp, $571.20; Model UN, $1,213.80; Montana Kaimin, $13,351.80; public relations travel (Jubilees, band, opera workshop, strings, Masquers, debate and oratory, choir tours), $2,213.40; Sentinel, $19,849.20; Traditions Board, $285.60; Venture, $1,999.20, and Visiting Lecturers, $1,856.40.

These organizations are allocated funds on a percentage basis, Browman explained, but the amounts they receive are reviewed each year and the percentages may be changed.

A general fund, this year estimated at $10,281.60, is used for special allocations not included in the above-mentioned funds. About 20 to 25 requests for money from the general fund are made annually, and range from $3,000 for an FM radio station on campus to $5 for the entry fee in a baby alligator race, Browman said.

All ASMSU directed and approved committees, coordinators for special events or projects approved by Central Board, and clubs and organizations recognized by the administration and with open membership that provide services to students or further the aims of ASMSU are eligible to request funds from Budget and Finance Committee.

Organizations seeking appropriations should contact Browman and submit a written request one week prior to their personal appearance before the committee. Requests should be in "itemized budget style," Browman said, and 20 copies should be made available to the committee.

Attempts have been made recently to cut the student fee, but no satisfactory method has been found, Browman said, explaining that, if a cut were to be made, no less than $1 per quarter would be dropped. And a drop of $1 would mean a loss of about $10,200 per year.

A more realistic proposal, Browman said, is that a "free usage" fee be instituted, which would allow complete or partially free usage of the ice skating rink, golf course, swimming pool and bowling alleys.

Bootblack Shouts 'Shoeshine' In 30 Languages to Delegates

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —A whimsical bootblack with a passion for geography and a sales pitch in many languages is one of the best-known figures at the United Nations.

For 16 years Jimmy Rinaldi has been shouting "shoeshine" in a dazzling variety of tongues as delegates pass his one-man concession.

"I can say it 30 ways now, including Burmese, Indonesian, Arabic and Swedish," said the gray-haired bootblack, pausing briefly at his stand on the fourth floor of the secretariat building.

"Every time I get a customer from a new country, I ask him how to say 'shoeshine' in his language," he added. "In the past couple of years I've picked up half a dozen African dialects."

Jimmy can name the capitals of all 110 U.N. member states plus major cities and rivers. He likes to hash over world affairs with diplomats who patronize his stand.

"I try to find out about the economy of each country and the amount of money it is getting from the U.N.," he said. "I used to have a pretty good picture of it, but so many new nations have been starting up that I've kind of lost track."

Jimmy averages 60 shines a day at 25 cents each plus tips. He has found his trade volume a barometer on the state of the world.

"When everything is peaceful, I get plenty of shines," he said.

"If things get bad, business falls off."

The sharpest drop came during the early days of the Cuban crisis.

"It seemed like no one cared about a shine because there might not be any tomorrow," he observed.

Jimmy thinks the United Nations has done a good job keeping the missile crisis from exploding into war.

"As long as they keep talking here, there is hope," he said. "All that name-calling doesn't mean anything. But if they stop talking, look out."

Frederick Boland, former General Assembly president, stops by frequently for a shine and a chat. So does U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche, who likes to swap notes on fishing, Jimmy's favorite off-duty pastime.

Jimmy, a bachelor in his late 40s, lives with his mother in the Ridgewood section of Brooklyn. He likes to spend his days off boning up on world geography or fishing when the weather is right.

He also keeps close tabs on trends in footwear.

British diplomats wear the best-made shoes, but the Americans and Italians have more of a flair for style.

Dillon Among Greats

By DAN FOLEY

The selection of Grizzly halfback Terry Dillon for participation in the East-West Shrine Game shows that the All-America candidate, though a rare bird at a school handicapped by small size and lack of finances such as Montana, is indeed not extinct.

Dillon joins a group of six Grizzlies who have previously been selected for the Shrine Game.

The first annual game in San Francisco in 1926—when MSU was in the Pacific Coast Conference—not only found a pair of Grizzlies participating, but the two, quarterback Bill Kelly and halfback Russ Sweet, starred in the West's win. Kelly and Sweet combined talents for a long touchdown pass play which brought the West its 7-3 victory. Sweet also kicked the extra point.

Kelly, or "Wild Bill" as he was known, is considered by many to be the greatest football player in MSU history. He was also chosen as a third team All-American in 1926.

In 1928, halfback Tom Davis represented the Grizzlies at the Shrine classic. In 1937 another halfback, Milt Popovich, played in San Francisco. Popovich captained one of the outstanding gridiron teams in MSU history. The team received prominent national ranking and was mentioned as a possible Cotton Bowl contestant until a 6-0 defeat by Idaho in the next-to-last game of the season ruined its chances. The team did, however, receive a Sun Bowl bid which it turned down for lack of money to make the trip.

Fullback Eso Naranche climaxed a brilliant Grizzly career in 1942 with an appearance in the East-West game.

The only Montana lineman to be selected for the Shrine game was guard Stan Renning, who also won honors as a third team All-American in 1958. Renning, however, was unable to play in the East-West game because of a knee injury.

The fact that six of the seven Grizzlies selected for the game have been backfield men illustrates the advantage that backs have over linemen. Because backs do most of the running and scoring in football, they naturally receive most of the publicity. The linemen for the Shrine game are therefore largely selected from among those whom the sportswriters and the Shrine Committee members actually have seen in action. Because Montana plays few big schools such as members of the Big Ten, an outstanding lineman has little chance for recognition.

Dillon, a product of Hopkins, Minn., is the first out-of-state member of the Grizzlies selected for East-West competition. Three of the Montana boys, Davis, Popovich, and Naranche are from Butte. The other three and their hometowns are: Kelly, Missoula; Sweet, Miles City, and Renning, Great Falls.

Grizzly Cagers to Open Home Season Friday Against North Dakota Sioux

The Grizzlies will open their home basketball season when they play the University of North Dakota Friday night and Washington State University Saturday night in the Field House.

Montana will be looking for its first win of the season. They lost their first three games to Big Eight teams on a 3,500-mile Midwest tour. The Tips were defeated 68-56 by Kansas, 86-66 by Missouri and 65-47 by Oklahoma State.

Coach Ron Nord said he believed that the Grizzlies should have won one or two of the games on the trip—especially the Missouri contest. But he said that the Grizzlies faced three tough teams and were under pressure all the time.

Height Disadvantage

He also said that the Grizzlies had a height disadvantage when playing the Big Eight teams. The other teams had 6-7 and 6-6 forwards while the Grizzlies had forwards about 6-4 and 6-1.

Phi Deltas Take Volleyball Title

Phi Delta Theta continued its winning ways in all-intramural action by defeating Full House for the volleyball championship last night, 15-12 and 15-5.

It was the fourth all-intramural title for the Phi Deltas this fall. They have won also football, golf and swimming and placed second in tennis.

PDT advanced to the finals by defeating Neanderthal No. 1 in three games, 15-0, 11-15 and 15-3, and the Loggers, 15-5 and 15-5. Full House earned its way by skimming past Sigma Nu in three games, 5-15, 15-8 and 15-9. SN topped Nocturnal Six, 15-12 and 15-5, in first round action. SN was last year's champion.

"But," he said, "we'll just have to be tougher because we are going to face it all year."

He said the Grizzlies played up to expectations at times but made many personal mistakes that hurt. "I can see that we have a lot of work to do," Nord said, in commenting upon the losses.

Nord said, however, that he is confident that the team will do better in future games, particularly in the shooting department. The Tips were ice cold on the trip.

Pramenko 'Helps Himself'

"Jim Pramenko played good ball some of the time and helped himself a lot," Nord said. He also said Harold Fullerton performed well and Keith Law played a steady, dependable game.

Nord was also pleased with the efforts of Bruce Denison, Bill Rice and Rocky Greenfield.

The last time the University met North Dakota was in 1960 when the Grizzlies won, 86-53, in Missoula. Washington State University, a rival in past years, has not met the Grizzlies since the 1960 season. WSU won both contests, 84-60 and 74-60.

The tentative starters and their scoring averages for the North Dakota game are Ray Lucien, 8.0 points per game and Pramenko 6.3, guards; Fullerton 2.7 and Tim Aldrich 6.3, forwards, and Steve Lowry 12.3, center.

Other players who played on the trip and their scoring averages are Denison 4.7, Law 4.0, Harold Peterson 4.0, Greenfield 4.0, Jay Sumner 1.7, Rice 1.0, Dave Hilger 0.66, Francis Ricci 0.66, and Don Morrison 0.0.

Sketches Donated to Library Depict Sioux Uprising of 1891

The Library has acquired a series of 18 original Indian sketches done during the Sioux Uprising in 1891. This donation was reported Monday evening at a meeting of the Friends of the Library.

According to Lucille Speer, librarian, the collection consists of sketches done in color crayon. They were presented to Captain Parke of the 21st Infantry by the Sioux, and remained in his family until the donation was made.

Edward Pope, vice-chairman of the group, donated $225 for the purchase of a set of books entitled "Index to Grass Species," compiled by Agnes Chase.

Plans were discussed for giving greater recognition to those who make donations to the library. The group is planning a social function during National Library Week in April for these donors.

The club decided to continue under the same officers. Summer Gerard is chairman of the group.

Seventy-eight housing vacancies were listed at the Off-Campus Housing and Student Employment Office as of last week, according to Jesse K. Dove, director.

There were 54 apartments or rooms available, 26 for men, 23 for couples or men or women and 5 for women. Twenty-four houses were available.

There were 397 listings at the beginning of the quarter, Mr. Dove said.

Information concerning available housing is posted on a bulletin board just outside Mr. Dove's office in Turner Hall. Mr. Dove will be on duty during the Christmas vacation.

Krieger Reports Lost Now Found

How many students are aware of the fact that MSU, among its other distinctions, boasts a collection of lost and found items that would do any college proud?

Frederick W. Krieger, superintendent of buildings and grounds, reports the collection of articles runs the gamut from scholastic supplies to very fine clothing.

"And we also have quite a stock of bicycles—some of them expensive," Krieger said.

Any student on the missing end of any personal belonging is asked to go to the Physical Plant office before 2 in the afternoon to identify and retrieve it.
