Liberal Arts Degree for EMCE?

By JERRY HOLLORON
Kaimin Managing Editor

Will Eastern Montana College of Education remain EMCE, or will it drop the "of Education" and perhaps eventually become Montana State University II?

Battle lines were drawn last week on the feasibility of establishing a liberal arts program at Eastern. If the program is approved, the "of Education" would, in effect, be dropped from Eastern's name because the school would be allowed to grant degrees to students who had not taken any education credits.

Opponents say the program is a long step toward setting up another university in the state and toward making EMCE Montana State University II.

Four of the six-member committee who studied the proposal agreed that a liberal arts degree program for EMCE is feasible. They were John E. Tenge, Billings; Burton Boyd, Glendive; Leon Johnson, Bozeman, acting president of Montana State College, and Herbert L. Steele, Billings, president of EMCE.

The committee minority—Frank C. Abbott, Missoula, academic vice president and former acting president of MSU, and Dr. Frank L. McPhail, Great Falls—strongly opposed the granting of the liberal arts program.

Both the minority and majority reports and the information on which they are based are included in a 63-page mimeographed booklet. The committee's findings are expected to be a major topic at the Regents meeting in Helena next month.

Eastern asked that it be allowed to offer bachelor of arts degrees in English and social science and bachelor of science degrees in biological science, mathematics and physical science. This request was turned down by a 4-1 vote with Chairman Tenge not voting.

In the final vote, however, the committee, by a 4-2 vote, approved bachelor of arts degrees in history, English and mathematics "providing that this program is in no way to be construed as a recommendation for another multipurpose university type institution in Montana and that this program should not be instituted at EMCE until similar programs have been considered for Montana State College at Bozeman."

Eastern's present program is limited to offering a bachelor of science degree in education. The liberal arts degree program would allow students to substitute work in the content fields (history, mathematics or English) for the 33-credit requirement of professional courses in the present program.

"Specifically," the committee reported, "a student working for this proposed baccalaureate degree would be able to take 42 credits in 'electives' in place of the nine elective and 33 'professional' credits available to the student presently."

Most obvious change in the program, however, would be that Eastern would offer a degree which did not require education credits for completion. In other words, Eastern no longer would be just a teachers college.

NASA Chief to Speak At MSU Next Week

The director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will visit MSU next week to help celebrate NASA's fifth anniversary.

James E. Webb, NASA Chief, who has directed the successful completion of Project Mercury and has pressed for man-in-space programs, will speak at MSU, Wednesday.

His lecture, which is fourth in a series sponsored by the Public Exercises and Visiting Lecturers Committee, will be at 7:30 p.m. in the University Theater.

In connection with Mr. Webb's lecture, a full-scale model of the Project Mercury space capsule and a model of the Mercury space suit will be on display in the Yellowstone Room of the Lodge Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

One section of the display shows communication satellite techniques now being tested and operation of active repeater satellites.

The display will also include Tiros experiments, which demonstrated that a weather observation system could be developed around satellites with television cameras and infrared detectors, use of satellites for global weather forecasting and components of a weather satellite.

The third portion of the display deals with the solar physics program and the Orbiting Solar Observatory, radiation belts, ionosphere satellites, exploration of the moon, interplanetary explorations and galactic astronomy.

Also included will be panels on the orbital flights of astronauts John Glenn and Walter Schirra.

Gov. Tim Babcock, who wants to establish a research center in Montana, said that he will discuss the possibility with Mr. Webb next week.

"NASA's recent decision to reconsider the site for the proposed $50 million electronics research center leaves the door open for Montana to make a bid for the location," Gov. Babcock said.

The governor, an opponent of

Fiedler Enters Innocent Plea

A plea of not guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter was entered yesterday morning in district court at Ryegate by MSU student Eric Fiedler.

Fiedler is charged in connection with the deaths of Kathryn McMillan, Billings and Norman L. Boyce, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., both MSU students, who died in a car wreck early this month. Fiedler was driver of the car.

Richard Benedict, Golden Valley County attorney, told the Kaimin in a telephone interview that Fiedler, 21, was released on $1,000 bail.

No trial date has been set, Mr. Benedict said.

Fiedler was arraigned in the court of District Judge Nat Allen. He was represented by William Mather, Roundup.

Prompt Action?

Building Replacement Eyed

A faculty committee is studying the possibilities of prompt replacement of the Geology and Math-Physics Buildings, MSU Pres. Robert Johns said yesterday.

"I hope we can get them replaced before they fall down," he added. The Geology Building was condemned in 1938, Pres. Johns said.

New lighting fixtures were added last year, he said, because the old ones were so bad that "geology students started wearing miner's lamps" to see what they were doing.

"We won't have to worry about them (the buildings) very long,"

WHAT AN OMELET!—It's not that John Ross, left, is a perpetual complainer, it's just that nobody could be satisfied with a standard-sized egg when there are bigger and better eggs in sight. The man with the lean and hungry look—and the huge egg—is Marshall Dennis. The 14-inch-long egg was laid by an Aepyornis, a gigantic bird that once lived in Madagascar. The egg, Dennis and Ross all can be seen at the University Museum in the Fine Arts Building; the egg as an exhibit and Dennis and Ross as employees. (Kaimin Photo by Jim Oset)

he said. "Newton's first law is going to take care of them."

Referring to a report that showed that enrollment has passed that of MSC, Pres. Johns said he didn't think this was indicative of a trend toward more interest in liberal arts education.

"Perhaps," he said, "people are becoming more aware of the high quality instruction they get here."

Radio Station Funds

Appropriations from the state to operate the proposed student radio station might be hard to get, Pres. Johns said.

"It's awfully hard to justify appropriated funds for radio and television," he said.

Funds for operation of the station probably could be obtained from various foundations, Pres. Johns said. The Ford Foundation gives grants for instructional radio, he added.

No Site for SUB

No definite location for the proposed Student Union Building has been chosen, Pres. Johns said.

He indicated by pointing his thumbs to the north and south and his fingers toward the sky that the campus is going to expand in these directions.

Many-storied dormitories like the one being built in Bozeman are being studied, Pres. Johns said.

More playing fields for intramurals and other sports activities are needed here, he said. There are only three playing fields on the Clover Bowl.

A student body of 4,500 should have about nine of these fields, he said.

Store May Require Expansion

Within the next year, the Student Store may need more room, Morris McCollum, store manager said at the meeting of the Associated Students Store Board of Directors.

During the summer the store was rearranged to provide for a "great book corner."

The corner is designed to "raise the intellectual and cultural level of students by enlarging the offerings of books and magazines,"

E.W. Briggs, professor of law and board chairman, said.

Storage space available in other buildings on campus is being utilized to provide more selling space.

Elected by acclamation at the meeting were Mr. Briggs as chairman of the board and C.L. Murphy as secretary-treasurer.

Mr. McCollum reported that the volume of books in the store has increased 100 per cent since spring quarter. Twenty new magazines have been ordered.

Mr. McCollum also noted that arrangements have been made with John Wiley and Sons Book Co. to add 50 new titles to the store.

Jacob Vinocur, associate professor of English, proposed that students and faculty be invited to suggest three titles of books or magazines which they would like the store to offer. A motion to that effect was carried.

Mrs. H.D. Ephron and Dan Bierl were re-elected Store Board representatives on the Board of Trustees for the Student Reserve Fund.

EMCE and the Pork Barrel

Guest Editorial
From The Missoulian

A restricted bachelor of arts program is feasible for Eastern Montana College of Education. A similar program might even be feasible at Montana State College, according to the special committee set up by the Board of Regents to study the problem. (See Kaimin editorials Oct. 11 and 16.)

Perhaps the Regents might consider setting up another committee to study how feasible this fundamental change at EMCE and MSC might be for Montana taxpayers during the next decade.

We were under the impression the state's master plan "for the orderly development of the university system" was commissioned to answer such a question. The ink had hardly dried on the master plan report before regional political pressures motivated the Regents to set up the committee composed of some members whose opinions could hardly be considered "objective."

The master plan flatly states "during the decade 1960-70, only two multipurpose or complex institutions will be maintained within the Montana System of Higher Education, namely, Montana State University and Montana State College."

Proponents of making EMCE a "restricted" liberal arts school argue that such a program would not change it into a multipurpose unit.

Those interested in doling out "pork" and those interested in receiving it should be reminded that "from small acorns tall oaks grow."

Last Fall 'No' Vote On SUB Is Enough

To the Kaimin:

It seems that the SUB is getting more discussion and thought than I think it is worth. It was voted down last year, so why bring it up again this year? What will probably happen is that it will continue to be put to a vote each year until it is passed.

It seems evident that the students of this institution are against it, and being a member of the student body, I feel the same way.

The article in yesterday's Kaimin (Thursday, Oct. 24) stated that the Central Board Committee feels that the reason it was not passed last year hinges on the fact that the students were not informed enough about the reasons behind the construction of the building, and that they did not show enough interest in the proposal.

First, I have to disagree with them in the former statement. I personally think that the students were well enough informed to realize that they did not want the new building.

Secondly, the reason that they did not show interest was that they did not want the SUB. I know that I did not vote at all when the election came up, and I now realize that I made a dreadful mistake. I think that many other students did the same thing, and were misunderstood.

Rick Jones, ASMSU president, was quoted in Thursday's paper as follows: "An eight-member committee last year went to all of the living groups on campus with every piece of available information on the SUB plans." He also said that all questions were answered at the time. If this is true, how can it be said by the Student Union Committee and the Central Board that the students were not well informed on the subject?

They didn't show interest in the SUB because they didn't want it and if they are like me, they still don't.

Harold Taylor Explains Purpose Of Committee on Peace Research

The goal of the Committee on Peace Research is to provide informed judgment on issues before Congress, Harold Taylor, chairman of the group, said yesterday. He spoke to members of the Missoula Peace Group and other interested persons at the home of Meyer Chessin, professor of botany. Mr. Taylor outlined the history and purposes of his organization.

The peace research movement began four years ago, he said, when a "group of dedicated people" responded to the idea that they could "use the brain to stop war."

The committee won a "triumph in the test ban treaty," he said. "Ratification through the Senate was a really tough struggle," he added.

The next step in the battle for peace, Mr. Taylor said, is to lift travel restrictions in the U.S. and Russia.

Mr. Taylor also spoke Wednesday night on the visiting lecturer program.

Free Swimming Attracts Only 339 MSU Students

Only 339 students have taken advantage of the free swimming offered at the University pool, according to Fred Stetson, pool manager.

Last spring quarter ASMSU gave the pool $2,000 to provide for free student swimming this year, Mr. Stetson said.

Because not enough students are taking advantage of the free swimming, ASMSU is paying the equivalent of 65 cents per student swim, he said.

Pool hours are 7-9 Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7-9:30 Friday and Saturday evenings and 2-4:30 Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Grizzly Hoop Squad Prepares for Opener

The Grizzly basketball team began preparations for the 1963 Big Sky Conference season Monday night with their first practice. The team will open the season Dec. 3 in a non-conference game against the University of Nevada at the Field House.

"The boys came out with a great desire to play," Coach Ron Nord said yesterday. "They've got lots of spirit and are ready to go to work. This is a big asset for any team," Nord added.

All of the members of the team have completed the six-minute mile, except Francis Ricci who has had trouble with a knee he injured in one of the Bobcat games last year. He had an operation on it last spring.

Letterman Jay Sumner will not play with the team this year because of a heavy study load.

All other members are out except Rocky Greenfield, who will begin practice as soon as football is over.

Nord said the team will work on conditioning until the first part of November. "We expect to go onto the floor in better condition than we did last year, and we were in good condition then," Nord said.

Nord has 19 men working out now and expects to carry a squad of about 15. "We won't cut anyone who wants to play ball and will be of some help to us," he said.

Frosh Football Season Opens As Cubs Meet MSC Bobkittens

The 1963 frosh football season will open on Dornblaser Field this Saturday when the Cubs meet the Montana State College Bobkittens at 1:30.

"It will be a tough game—they have a line which averages about 200 pounds," coach Terry Leeper said this week. "It is too early to make any predictions on the outcome," he said.

The Cubs have several injuries and lack depth in the line, according to Leeper. Three tackles will not see action in the game. They are Erik Ogren, Ted Bigos and Forest Wetzel. Their positions have been filled by linemen from other positions leaving the Cubs short on depth.

Burns Injured

The only backfield man who will be out because of injury is quarterback Jerry Burns.

The starting lineup for the Cubs

The only change in the team on defense will be Greg Slusser for Rebish at the right guard position.

The Cubs will probably be at a disadvantage against the Kittens because they haven't played this season. The Bobkittens played the Idaho State freshmen last weekend, losing 19-18. This will undoubtedly help the Kittens as far as experience in running their plays in competition is concerned.

MSC won the game last year 27-15 at Bozeman.

Army, Air Force to Battle In Touch Football Contest

The first annual Army-Air Force touch football game will be played on the Clover Bowl Nov. 18, according to Colonel M. F. "Bull" Moucha, head coach of the Black Knights of the Clark Fork.

Drill will be cut short that day so that all cadets can cheer their team forward. The nucleus of both teams will be ROTC cadets who have participated in the intramural touch football league on fraternity and living group teams.

First practice for the Army's Knights will be Tuesday, Nov. 12. All ROTC cadets who are interested in playing in this event are encouraged to contact Capt. Stone, assistant coach.

The join Army-Air Force band will play and K-Dettes and Angel Flight will march.

Tourneys End

The intramural tennis and golf tournaments will conclude this weekend.

Tennis doubles will be played Sunday starting at 9:30 a.m. Golf may be played either Saturday or Sunday, whichever is most convenient for each team.

Tennis singles were won by the Rams. Delta Sigma Phi was second and Sigma Nu third. Individual winner was Herb Sparadling of the Rams, who beat John Alexander, SN, 6-1, 2-6, 7-5.

The game promises to be a tough one and the spirit of both sides can be summed up in the succinct statement of Coach Moucha, "There can be no substitute for victory."

MSU Runners Compete With Bengal Tigers

The MSU cross country team travels to Pocatello Saturday for a meet with the Idaho State Bengals.

Montana State College will compete against the Bengals, but not against Montana at the meet, Harry Adams, track coach said.

He said that two of his men are in good shape—Doug Brown and Martin Euland. Euland ran the three-mile course this week in 15:27.5, his best time so far. Brown ran the course in 14:19 earlier this quarter.

Idaho State is undefeated in the past two years, said Adams. The Bengals are led by Art Scott, who has run the mile in less than 4:10. He ran the three-mile course at Utah State in 15:07. The course at Pocatello should be a little tougher, Adams noted.

Tips, Lobos to Battle in Attempt To Snap Their Losing Streaks

The Grizzly football team left this morning for Albuquerque to play the New Mexico Lobos in a game which should see one of the teams snap a losing streak.

The Grizzlies are hoping to end a five-game losing streak while the Lobos have lost their last three starts.

Leading the Grizzlies attack will be Tom Huffer who keeps piling up yardage through the air and at this time leads the Big Sky Conference in pass completions. He completed 7 of 17 last weekend against Utah State to make his season total 37 completions for 509 yards. He has thrown 70 passes. He has completed 52.8 per cent of his passes.

Ahead of Record

If Huffer continues this pace, his name will go into the MSU record book as having the highest percentage of pass completions in a season. Since passing records have been kept, beginning in 1948, the highest percentage by a Grizzly was 52.7 in 1949 by John Holding.

Huffer's aerial attack wouldn't be any good if it were not for the pass snagging of his receivers. Leading the Grizzlies and the Big Sky Conference in pass receiving is Wayne Bell with 13 snags. Larry Petty and Crist Pomajevich have eight receptions each.

"This will be a tough game, but with the right breaks we can win," coach Ray Jenkins said yesterday. "If we can play ball like we played the first half last weekend, we will win," he said.

Still missing from the Grizzly lineup will be Frank Bain and Steve Wood. Bain is still having trouble with his back, but may see action against the Weber Wildcats next week. Wood had his cast removed Tuesday and probably will be ready for the Weber game also.

"It is a matter of getting back into condition for Wood," Jenkins said.

End Crist Pomajevich and half-back Bill Martin are both nursing hand injuries suffered in last week's Utah State game.

New Mexico is in much the same condition as the Grizzlies, with several injuries to key men.

Leading the Grizzly rushing attack is Pete Gotay with 181 yards in 56 carries for a 3.2 average. Roger Seeley has the best rushing average with 86 yards in 18 carries—an average of 4.8 yards per carry. Dan Smelko has carried the ball 26 times for 114 yards and an average of 4.3 yards.

Athletic Fund Boost Must Come From 'Outside' Says President

If the MSU athletic fund is to receive a boost, it must come from the alumni and other outside sources rather than student fees or state money, Pres. Robert Johns told the Kaimin yesterday.

The answer was in response to a question of whether a lack of money for athletic grants could be responsible for MSU's poor showing in varsity sports in the last several years.

Other schools of comparable size receive greater aid from alumni and other sources than does MSU, Pres. Johns said. "We are doing well with the Century Club, but it isn't enough," he explained.

The Grizzlies should not play the smaller Montana schools, such as Eastern Montana College of Education, Pres. Johns said. Eastern officials have frequently sought games with MSU in recent years.

"If we win it's no victory, and if we lose it's a huge defeat," Pres. Johns said.

As to the possibility of a new football stadium as has been rumored recently, Pres. Johns said there are many things the University needs before this should be considered.

Misfits Breeze To Triumph

Misfits 19, Raiders 0

The Misfits, led by the pinpoint passing of Dale Schwanke, took the lead in the first quarter and breezed to a 19-0 win over the Raiders.

Schwanke pitched two TD aeri-als to Ron Plummer, and one to Mike Thompson.

Chodda Choppers 2, Falcons 0
In a California playoff, the Chodda Chopper nine chopped out enough yardage in offensive drives to take a 2-0 decision from Craig's Falcons.

Eskimos 2, Marauders 0
The Eskimos munched through to a 2-0 win over the Marauders in another California playoff.

The following games were declared 1-0 forfeit decisions:

Rams over FPFA
Wesleyans over Craig 1st SW
Craig Rangers over Craig Hall

Gals, Don't Slack Off!
Justify Your Jeans!

by oedipus II

Dear Oed,

We are three sophomore girls who are being punished for wearing slacks to class. We think we should be allowed to wear slacks if we want. What do you say?

Like Slacks

Dear Like,

If you're sure your ends justify your jeans, go ahead and wear them.

Dear Oed,

I am a girl who has pledged a sorority that scored quite highly in the various Derby Days' skirmishes. My problem is, my mother reads the Kaimin and because of the Monday article concerning Derby Days, she is threatening to make me quit my sorority and join one that doesn't condone cigar smoking. How can I convince her

I don't smoke cigars, I just wrestle greased pigs?

Slippery Situation

Dear Slip Sit,

I am with your mother. I think you should either change sororities or convince the members of your present sorority to switch to Tiparillos. If you do join a new sorority that does not go in for cigar smoking, however, you may find it advantageous to your popularity. If the girls in the new sorority don't smoke cigars, chances are they don't know much about greased pig wrestling, either. If this is the case, and with your background, you can probably give them a few pointers on the fine art of wrestling with slippery animals for which they will be forever indebted to you.

* * *

Dear Oed,

Isn't there anything that can be done to get rid of this Pink Elephant mess? It's getting kind of tiresome.

Tired of Pink Elephants

Dear TPE,

I think that if everyone would give this pink elephant thing a few hours of sober thought, it would disappear completely.

* * *

Dear Oed,

With the increased political organizations on campus, why does there seem to be so much antipathy stirred up by the Kaimin? All day yesterday, the SOL and the YAF were blasted by political opportunists who belong to no organization at all. How can they be so mean?

Sincerely yours,
Somewhat Out of Luck and Concerned about Yams And Fruits

Dear SOL and YAF,

I am afraid I must admit to being one of those persons who belongs to no organized political party. I'm a Democrat. However, I certainly do not intend to stir up any antipathy concerning some of the political groups on campus—a little out and out hatred, perhaps, but no antipathy. Also, as for political opportunists who belong to no organization at all, you fail to comprehend the vast number of organizations on campus. Virtually everyone belongs to some organization or another. Mean? Come on now. Certainly you don't consider a little good old American mud-slinging mean. Dirty, perhaps, but not mean.

This was the count of dead fish found in park garbage cans, the National Park Service said.

Taylor Receives Grant to Study Fungus Plague of Men and Dogs

Man and his friend the dog have more in common than friendship. Both are plagued by a pathogenic fungus, Blastomyces dermatitis.

John J. Taylor, assistant professor of microbiology, who has spent five years investigating this fungus, recently received a $14,200 grant for the continuation of his research from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

"It is not known how this disease is transmitted," Mr. Taylor said, "but it is probably through the soil. The disease is somewhat like tuberculosis, and occurs most frequently in Eastern and big river valley populations.

"My particular interest is investigation of the changes in shape which this fungus takes. It enters the human body in a spherical form, but will take only a long filament shape when grown in a laboratory," he said.

A second honor accorded the MSU microbiologist is an invitation to participate in an international science meeting. He has been asked to summarize the findings in his investigation of certain chemical changes associated with morphological variation of a diphasic pathogenic fungus and the means by which the expected growth phase may be altered at a colloquium at the Congress International d'Histochemie in Frankfurt, Germany, in the summer of 1964.

Aquamaid Select Ten New Members

Ten MSU women have been chosen as member of Aquamaids, swimming honorary.

New members are: Carol Boetcher, North Corbin; Alice Cameron, Brantly; Jan Conley, Corbin; Peg Elich, Corbin; Jessie Jaycox, Brantly; Barbara Knoll, North Corbin; Mary Lee Lyman, Corbin; Pamela Price, Knowles; Joy Tweten, Corbin and Lucia Marchese, Delta Gamma.

Aquamaid meet every Tuesday night from 7-8:30 p.m. in the new pool. A winter tryout is planned for girls interested in joining Aquamaids next quarter. Girls who are interested may practice with regular members Tuesday nights.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FIRST

The MSU football team is tentatively scheduled to open the 1964 campaign against the University of British Columbia in Missoula. The Grizzlies defeated UBC 16-0 in the opening game this year.

Ball Will Climax Foresters' Week

"No nice duds are allowed" at the 47th annual Foresters' Ball next weekend, according to the sponsors.

The ball will climax Missoula's "Montana State University Foresters' Week," proclaimed by Edward L. Shults, acting mayor of Missoula.

The foresters will present the ball Nov. 1 and 2 in the Field House. As in the past there will be free food, music, a beard contest, the Delta Gamma Can Can Girls and dancing.

Monday the woodsier group will show their hairy faces and announce the official coming of the Foresters' Ball. Paul Bunyan and his blue ox, Babe, will make their appearance Sunday night to boot off the week.

Tuesday everyone may join in the spirit and dress in mungies with guns on their hips and axes in their hands to celebrate Boondockers' Day. At noon the foresters will rally at the oval with boots, brands, sawdust and noise. That night is the Foresters' Convocation, where the woodsmen show the drama and music majors how to do it. They will take pokes at different campus factions, especially the "fancy duded lawyers."

The rest of the week the foresters will withdraw to the Field House and prepare for Friday and Saturday night.

A few changes have been planned for the ball this year. The band will be located in the center of the floor instead of the side. A heel-boom will announce each dance by dragging, picking up and placing a log on a logging truck. To allow more room for dancing, the exhibits of the forestry industry will be displayed outside.

The tickets will be on sale Monday for $3.50 a couple in a special cabin that the foresters have constructed in front of the Lodge.

U Teacher's Kin May Be Selected As Moon Traveler

The first man to set foot on the moon might be Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon, cousin of Assistant Prof. Clarence C. Gordon of the botany department.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has chosen Cmdr. Gordon as one of 14 candidates for the first moon shot. Cmdr. Gordon, 34, formerly of Seattle, Wash., attended the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif. He received national fame by breaking the Continental Speed Record and was selected as the first alternate during the first "astronauts into space" selection.

He lives in Monterey, Calif., with his wife and six children. Next stop, the moon?

Campus Language Institute Proposed

A French teachers' language institute may be here next summer, according to Douglas C. Sheppard, foreign language department chairman.

Mr. Sheppard said that he submitted a proposal for the institute to the U.S. Office of Education last week while he was in Washington, D.C., serving as a consultant to the Language Institute section of the Office of Education.

The institute, if approved, will be attended by 52 high school and elementary teachers of French, Mr. Sheppard said.

Similar programs were held in 1960, 1961 and 1962, but this would be the first time elementary teachers have participated, Mr. Sheppard said.

Women's Center Open Afternoons

WRA is opening the Women's Center to all women every afternoon from 4-6 p.m. for recreational purposes.

Volleyball and bowling intramurals are being played with independents bowling on Monday and playing volleyball on Tuesday. Greeks are bowling on Wednesday and playing volleyball on Thursday. The top two teams from each league will play in a double elimination tournament at the end of the quarter.

On days that the gym is not being used, women will be able to use it for badminton, ping pong, tennis, basketball and other sports.

Brantly, N. Corbin Select New Dormitory Officials

Cee Cee Cole and Jean Talbot have been elected president of Brantly and North Corbin Halls, respectively.

Other officers of the freshman women's dormitories are Brantly: Kris Harrington, social chairman; Kitty Quigley, WRA representative; and Mary Ann Casgrove, AWS representative. North Corbin: Gail Stromme, social chairman; Carol Jean Matthew, WRA representative and Mary Olson, AWS representative.

Kennedy Takes Personal Hand In Passage of Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has taken a personal hand in an attempt to win passage this year of a civil rights bill.

But the best the President could get out of a White House conference with House leaders Wednesday night, informed sources said, was a decision to delay until next Tuesday a crucial committee vote on a bill which the administration feels is too strong to get through Congress.

Later it was learned that a House Judiciary Committee meeting scheduled for yesterday was postponed until next Tuesday, giving administration forces another chance to swing more committee votes behind a compromise civil rights bill more in line with the President's midsummer proposals to Congress.

Administration sources said Tuesday that they had convinced some Northern and Western Democrats on the committee to vote against the stronger bill on grounds that such a measure would be defeated in the House and might cripple any hope for civil rights legislation this year.

But McCulloch found that he could muster only three of the 14

Hurricane Whirls Toward Carolinas

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Ginny lashed north Florida and Georgia coasts with gales yesterday but took a northern tack that threatened the Carolinas with the brunt of her rising fury.

Ginny's peak winds built up to 95 miles per hour as she churned over Atlantic Ocean waters.

Ginny left behind along Florida's eastern coast considerable beach erosion as the only evidence of its visit.

Republican votes on the committee for the weaker compromise measure.

In August a subcommittee dominated by Northern liberal Democrats approved Kennedy's proposals. But they also tacked on other provisions, such as a fair employment practices commission and power for the attorney general to file suits on behalf of alleged victims of civil rights violations.

The program outlined by the President earlier this year—which is included in the bill now before the committee—would, among other things, give the attorney general more power to insure Negro voting rights and prohibit racially segregated schools. It also would ban discrimination in public accommodations.

Operation Big Lift Ahead of Schedule

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —Exercise Big Lift moved swiftly and efficiently ahead yesterday with all indications pointing to completion ahead of schedule for the historic airlift of more than 15,000 American troops from Texas almost to the iron curtain.

One hundred fifty of the big four - engine transports brought 9,436 men of the 2nd Armored Division to bases in West Germany and France. Military spokesman thought the bulk of the transatlantic ferry job would be completed some 63 hours after the first C135 jet took off from Bergstrom Air Force Base near Austin.

The Army and Air Force had set a 72-hour deadline for completion of the biggest airlift in U.S. history.

Sen. Groff Urges 'Greater' U Plan

MISSOULA (AP)—The state senator who failed in a bid to consolidate administration of Montana's university units has joined the controversy over the latest move which apparently could lead the university system in the opposite direction.

Sen. William A. Groff, D-Ravalli, is opposed to any liberal arts degree being authorized for eastern Montana College of Education at Billings.

"It's about time we look at our colleges and the university as a part of a greater university system rather than as community colleges," Groff said.

The Victor banker and Senate majority leader in the 38th legislature was the author of Senate Bill 17 which would have made EMCE and WMCE at Dillon divisions of the unit at Missoula.

"It is difficult for me to believe that there has been sufficient change in our educational needs since the adoption of the master plan to warrant a reversal of the conclusion that there should be only two multi-purpose institutions in this decade."

Greek Poet Wins '63 Nobel Citation

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Giorgos Seferiades, 63, a Greek diplomat, won the 1963 Nobel Prize for literature yesterday for his lyrical, timeless poetry about his native Greece.

Seferiades, whose pen name is Seferis, was the first Greek ever to receive a Nobel Prize.

The Nobel citation said Seferis' poetry, "because of its unique thought and style and its beauty of language, has become a lasting symbol of all that is indestructible in the Hellenic acceptance of life."

First Quarter

Former University Janitor, 46, Gets 3.44 Grade-Point Average

By L. T. STIDMON
Kaimin Reporter

What does it take for a 46-year-old man without a high school diploma to get a 3.44 grade average his first quarter in college?

It takes a lot of hard work and a real desire for knowledge. And these are the qualities of Milburn (Will) Oberlander.

"Obie" was a janitor for the journalism school for five and one-half years. On June 14, he worked his last shift and became a full-time college student the following Monday.

In order to enter college without a high school diploma "Obie" had to take general education development tests to satisfy his high school requirements. Last February he went to the counseling service and found out what subjects would be covered by the tests and began studying.

During the last two weeks of April, "Obie" took the tests. Early in May he received a letter telling him he had passed the tests.

"I knew I had passed them, but it sure felt good to see it in writing," he said.

In July he received a formal letter, signed by Gov. Tim Babcock and the superintendent of schools, making it official.

Prior to registration, "Obie" took the university entrance exams and passed them. "I wasn't sure how I had done on these exams," he said.

"Obie" was born in Eureka, S.D., Dec. 19, 1916. His first three years of schooling were at a country school near his home where all eight grades were taught in one room.

Getting to school was no problem, he said. They just took a horse and buggy in the nice weather and a horse and sled when there was snow.

Before his fourth grade year of school, his family moved to Mound City, S.D., where he attended another country school.

After the sixth grade his parents moved to Bucyrus, N.D., where he attended a town school where the grades were separated.

"The teacher I had for the fifth and sixth grades and the one I had for the seventh and eighth were my best teachers, and both of them were women," he said.

"Obie" had to quit school after he finished the eighth grade because there was too much work to be done on the 640-acre farm.

In 1935 his parents moved to Missoula, and "Obie," at the age of 19, became a farm-laborer. He worked at this until February of 1939 when he joined the Navy.

On the day Pearl Harbor was bombed, he was between Midway Island and Pearl Harbor. Two days later, aboard the U.S.S. Cluster, after cruising around to try and keep the Japanese planes away from them, they entered the harbor.

"It looked like the war was over with ships turned upside down in the harbor," he said.

He spent five and one-half years in the Navy, most of which was aboard ship and out to sea. He took part in the battle of the Coral Sea, shelling of the Gilbert Islands and was in the Philippines.

After his discharge in 1945 he returned to Missoula and went to work at the Northern Pacific roundhouse.

For a year during 1946-47 he was a full-time janitor at the library on campus. He quit and went to Bozeman to farm. In the spring of 1950 he moved to Arlee and farmed for a year, then he moved back to Missoula and worked for Eddy's Bakery until 1956.

In the spring of 1956 he went to Hot Springs and farmed until October, 1957 when he returned to Missoula and the campus and went to work for the labor crew. On Nov. 1 he became janitor of the journalism school.

During last summer session, "Obie" carried 16 credits and got a 3.44 GPA. He majors in German and wants to get a degree in Russian also.

Former Student Studying in Japan

Louise Snyder, who will return here as a junior next year, is attending classes for a 14 nation 'round-the-world college term in Tokyo, Japan.

Enrolled in the International School of America's fifth annual study-as-you-go school, Miss Snyder is among 15 students from eight states and Japan.

As guests of English-speaking families in the cities, the group will visit Tokyo, Calcutta, Bombay, New Delhi, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Baghdad, Cairo, Istanbul, Athens, Rome, West Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow, Paris and London. They will meet government officials and other prominent people in those cities.

"My background in German helped me a lot," he said.

He spoke nothing but German until he was 6 and started to school, when he had to learn to speak English.

He is carrying 18 credits this quarter. One class in German and a class in Russian along with psychology and microbiology keep him pretty busy.

"I spend many hours in the library," he said.

"Obie" gives a lot of credit to the counseling service and to A. P. Madison, a 1962 MSU graduate, for helping him get started in school and arranging his schedules.

Review of Committee Report

Liberal Arts Degree for EMCE?

Much of the majority report deals with the benefits that a liberal arts degree would offer prospective teachers. The report notes a trend toward emphasis upon liberal arts courses in teacher preparation programs and another, although less apparent, trend toward the establishment of liberal arts degrees in teacher colleges.

The trend toward liberal arts training for teachers is "desirable for Montana," agrees the minority, but "it is perfectly possible . . . to bring about the necessary emphasis on liberal arts within the present framework of purposes and degrees at EMCE"—that is, by strengthening present course offerings.

A strong point made in the majority report is that a liberal arts program at Eastern would allow Eastern Montana students to get a liberal arts education close to home. Presently, the only state school to offer a liberal arts degree is Montana State University, Missoula, which is as far from the eastern part of the state as is the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Students should be enabled, the majority argued, to attend college within reasonable commuting distance of their homes whenever possible.

"This area of the state with one-fourth of the state's population should not be overlooked in the education plans of the state," the majority claimed.

But, the minority argued, the students who could live at home and attend Eastern already have a liberal arts degree program available at Rocky Mountain College, a private school in Billings.

"If the Billings community desires to broaden the opportunities available in the public college located there, it should do so at community, not at state, expense," Mr. Abbott and Dr. McPhail said.

Would a liberal arts program at Eastern be contrary to the Master Plan report?

The Master Plan report, a study of the future of Montana's University System, was accepted by the Regents in October, 1962. Basic to the plan was the idea that the "high degree of differentiation must continue to exist in the six units of the University System."

According to the report, an institution should ask for additional responsibilities "only when services can be added without affecting adversely the qualitative level of the existing program in the University System."

"EMCE is and will continue to be under the compromise proposal primarily a teacher training institution," the majority claimed.

The minority, however, saying the liberal arts proposal would be "exactly counter" to the policy expressed in the Master Plan, refers to another portion of the committee report which states that "It was known with certainty that the proposed degree program would duplicate others available in other units of the University."

What would be the effects of an EMCE liberal arts degree on other higher education units in Montana?

Losses in enrollment were listed as possible consequences in letters to the committee from Sister Rose Irma, acting president of the College of Great Falls, and Father A. M. Brown, president of Carroll College, Helena. Neither official opposed the program, however.

Leon Johnson, acting MSC president and a committee member, said the proposed program would have "very little effect" on MSC if the expansion of facilities at EMCE "will be limited and modest."

Possible duplication between the EMCE mathematics degree and one contemplated at the Montana School of Mines was noted by Mines Pres. Edwin G. Koch, who minimized the possibility of other effects at the Butte school.

"These programs at EMCE would affect Western (Montana College of Education, Dillon) very little, if at all," wrote J. E. Short, WMCE president. But, he continued, as long as a name change might be in the offing for EMCE, Western also would like to drop the "of Education" from its title "merely to shorten our present name."

Many of the preprofessional students who live in northeastern or extreme eastern Montana and now attend Northern Montana College, Havre, might be attracted to EMCE if a liberal arts program were added there, J. R. Crowley, NMC president, wrote.

Most vehemently opposed to the liberal arts program for EMCE was Harry K. Newburn, former president of Montana State University, the only state school now offering a liberal arts degree.

In a letter to the committee, Robert Johns, who followed Newburn as MSU president, said he agreed entirely with his predecessor's statements.

Mr. Newburn said the liberal arts proposal would be "contrary to Board policy and action on the Master Plan" and a program for which Eastern has neither the needed facilities or staff.

"Such a move in Montana at this time," he wrote, "will jeopardize the support base for the present major institutions and risk the dilution of the present programs at units which now have well-defined, more specialized functions."

It seems likely that a good many of the students living close to or east of Billings now attending the University might attend EMCE if the proposed program is authorized, Newburn continued. In fall quarter 1962, there were 751 MSU students who lived in counties to the east of a north-south line about 100 miles west of Billings, he said.

The former president also noted that the proposal, if authorized, "would certainly not encourage transfer" from EMCE to MSU. Twenty-three junior and senior students who transferred from Eastern were studying in liberal arts fields at the University in the 1962-63 school year, he said.

This concept which facilitates transfer among units by permitting the earning of credits toward specialized programs in other units was considered sound by authors of the Master Plan, the special committee report notes.

That a liberal arts degree might—on educational grounds—be appropriate for MSC was one of the few points of agreement in the minority and majority reports.

"It is illogical and educationally inadvisable," the minority wrote, to propose for EMCE a program not yet authorized at MSC, where courses, faculty, and library are better prepared for such a degree.

"If the liberal arts program is to be made available to those students at EMCE who need and desire it, it certainly follows that it should be made available at Montana State College," the majority concluded.

It is in the area of cost, however, that the minority presents its strongest case.

In the body of the committee report is this statement concerning cost:

"After considerable discussion the Committee agreed upon a brief statement which recognized that upper division courses are typically more expensive than those of the lower division. Enrollment changes might be such that an increment in costs in the System as a whole would be negligible. However, as has been noted previously, some loss in the upper division student census at MSU and MSC may result in an increase in upper division costs in these units. Further, a change beyond the concept of the proposed program would doubtless increase the costs."

Despite this statement, the majority, in its conclusion, stated that "the additional cost of the proposed program will be minimal."

They added that improvements in facilities and courses will be necessary at Eastern even if the liberal arts program isn't approved.

In a well-documented statement, the minority argued that only 13.5 per cent of Eastern's faculty have Ph.D.'s and, according to Mr. Newburn, at least 40 per cent should have them for a liberal arts program. Professors meeting the qualifications for a good liberal arts program are in short supply and command high salaries, the minority said.

A liberal arts degree program at EMCE would require more upper division courses, and, as the report notes, these courses are more expensive than lower division classes, Dr. McPhail and Mr. Abbott wrote.

A liberal arts degree program would require additional sections and more frequently taught courses, the minority continued, and there is no available space at EMCE.

Committee members agreed in the report that Eastern's library is inadequate by several standards, and the minority said that a liberal arts program such as that suggested by the majority "is impossible without quality in the library collections." Both time and money would be required to make the library adequate, they said.

If a liberal arts degree program is granted to Eastern, should Western and Northern be far behind in receiving the same program, the minority asks.

Mr. Abbott and Dr. McPhail fear that the granting of the degree to Eastern will be a start from which EMCE will grow into a third multi-purpose unit.

This view seems to be supported, unwittingly by the committee majority who recommends that "in addition to the compromise proposal the Board of Regents give serious consideration to a degree of bachelor of general studies at EMCE with concentrations available in the biological and physical sciences. This should be recognized as a transitory stage to the eventual granting of BA degrees in biology, chemistry and physics."

Tatsuyama Going To Biblical Meet

The director of the MSU religion school, Tosh Tatsuyama, will attend the Rocky Mountain section of the National Association of Biblical instructors annual meeting, at the University of Denver campus this weekend, as vice president and program chairman.

Eight major papers on biblical and theological matters will be presented at the meeting. A panel involving a Roman Catholic scholar and a Protestant scholar will conduct an Ecumenical discussion in keeping with the latest pronouncements of Pope Paul VI.

U Extension Courses Attract 308 Students

Western Montana is experiencing a new and expanding trend in education through University extension courses. Three hundred and eight students are enrolled.

Mary Margaret Courtney, who handles the extension service activities at MSU, explained that when a need arises in a community for a specific course, an instructor is sent once or twice a week to teach the course. There must be enough students in the course to cover the cost of teaching. The standard rate for an extension course is $8 per credit.

In Missoula, Mrs. Emma H. Briscoe of the home economics department teaches Advanced Clothing Construction and Dee C. Taylor lectures on the Indians of North America.

The Theory of Mathematics is being offered in Whitefish, Corvallis and Fairfield. Richard Gustafson, Patrick Magdell and John A. Peterson are instructors. This math course is to be offered in Charlo and Anaconda soon.

Guidance in the Elementary and Secondary Schools is taught at Great Falls and was just completed at Libby. Frank Watson and James Munro were instructing. The Problem Pupil is the topic of a seminar group headed by Herbert Carson in Ronan. Another education course, The Bright and Gifted Pupils started recently in Dixon. Mr. Munro is the instructor.

Robert J. Dwyer teaches a Criminology course in Superior. Merrel D. Clubb Jr. conducts a seminar in Helena on the Problem of English Linguistics.

Robert Johns Is Nominated For Trustees

The president of MSU, Robert Johns, has been nominated to the board of trustees of the Stella Duncan Memorial Institute, according to S. Kendrick Clarke, Missoula, secretary.

H. K. Newburn, Mr. Johns predecessor as president of the University, held the post before he resigned to take a position at Arizona State University.

The board, which met at its annual Homecoming meeting in Missoula, is composed of John J. Burke, Butte, chairman; U.S. District Judge William J. Jameson, Billings; Newell Gough Jr., Helena and Frank C. Abbott, academic vice president of the University.

A research fund for the study of allergy and hypersensitivity is supported by the institute. Money for the fund comes from a bequest to the University from Stella Duncan Johnstone, an alumna who died in 1948.

Three Men Kill Gallons of Scotch

BILLINGS (AP) — Two policemen and a liquor inspector killed 76 bottles of Scotch whiskey.

They may have regrets but none has a hangover. The Scotch was contraband seized in August 1962 as it was being unloaded behind a Billings bar.

The whisky, valued at about $1,000, did not have federal or state tax stamps.

Police Capt. Ed Kilzer, Patrolman Cecil Mocabee and Liquor Inspector Ollie Johnson destroyed the bottles with pistol shots on the police target range. Then they burned the whisky.

"I solemnly swear . . . that I will support . . . by precept and example . . ."

"Support what?" you ask. Plans for a new SUB? The Sons of Liberty? A sidewalk across the Oval? In this case it's none of these. This is, in part, the loyalty oath required of all professors, instructors and teachers employed by the University.

The Montana State Legislative Assembly of 1931 provided for the oath which states that "every professor, instructor or teacher who shall hereafter be employed by any university, normal school or college in this state which is supported in whole or in part by public funds, shall, before entering upon the discharge of his or her duties, subscribe to the . . . oath before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths."

The oath reads, "I solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the constitution of the United States of America, the constitution of the state of Montana and the laws of the United States and the state of Montana, and will, by precept and example, promote respect for the flag and the institutions of the United States and the state of Montana, reverence for law and order and undivided allegiance to the government of the United States of America."

Although none of the professors interviewed opposed taking this oath, many felt that it was unnecessary.

Most of them requested that their names not be used.

Some of the professors said they never gave a thought to signing the oath. In fact, one instructor asked, "The what oath?"

When he recalled the loyalty oath, he asked to have it read because he had "forgotten what it said."

One instructor stated that if he takes a job with the state of Montana it is reasonable to assume he is not planning any unloyal or subversive acts.

Another professor said that a person who was dishonest could sign the oath, continue teaching at the University and still be subversive.

One of the teachers said that the way in which the oath is issued (on plain white paper with the oath mimeographed and a place for a signature below) makes the oath seem insignificant.

One professor said he signed the oath because "it is ordained by the powers who reign."

Differs in Other States

The Loyalty Oath does not read the same in every state.

In some states—Florida, for example—objections have been raised concerning the wording and ambiguity of the oath.

According to School Life (Jan.-Feb., 1962), the United States Supreme Court unanimously declared unconstitutional a loyalty oath required of teachers in Florida.

The ruling in this case (David Cramp vs. the Board of Public Instruction of Orange County, Fl.) did not make all oaths invalid, only the one tested in this case.

Mr. Cramp did not take the oath prescribed for teachers by the state. Nine years later when the school board discovered the oversight and requested Mr. Cramp to take the oath, he refused on the grounds that it violated his constitutional rights.

The issue in the case centered around the meaning of a phrase in the oath which required the declarer to swear that he "has not lent and will not lend aid, support, advice, counsel or influence to the Communist party."

Mr. Cramp claimed that it interfered with the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. He said that it was so vague that the "declarer could not be aware of his legal status."
