ARCHAEOLOGIST TO SPEAK AT UM MONDAY NIGHT

MISSOULA---

One of the top five archaeologists in America today will speak at the University of Montana Monday (Nov. 25) at 7:30 p.m. in Journalism 304.

Dr. James D. Griffin, Director of the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, will speak on the early Indians of the eastern United States Monday night after meeting with UM anthropology classes and students during the day.

Griffin is best known for his research in the Hopewell Horizon project of the Mississippi Valley, according to Dr. Carling I. Malouf, chairman of the UM anthropology department.

Griffin received his doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1936. He was born in Kansas in 1905.
