Masquers to Stage O'Neill's Play 'Great God Brown'

"The Great God Brown," by Pulitzer prize winner Eugene O'Neill, will be presented by the University Masquers Thursday through Sunday in the University Theater at 8:15 p.m., according to Dr. Firman H. Brown, chairman of the drama department and director of the play.

The use of masks was a startling innovation, used in the manner of ancient Greek drama by which O'Neill was able to show the false faces men present to the world to illuminate the doubts and gulfs which obsess the minds of men.

Joe Ferrell, graduate assistant in drama, and Austin Gray Neihart, play the leading roles of Billy Brown and Dion Anthony—business partners, lifelong friends and enemies. They reveal facets of their natures through masks.

Billy is the extrovert, sarcastically named "the great god Brown" by Dion who is envious of his partner's success and who is so sensitive he must hide his fears behind a synical mask. Margaret, his wife, portrayed by Patsy Maxson, loves him with his mask of self assurance but rejects him when he bares his loneliness.

Cybel, played by Esther England, is the only person with whom each man can remove his mask without fear.

Al Holt portrays Brown's father and Roslyn Dunn his mother. The Anthony sons are played by Rick Stokes, Bill Larson and Shelly Thompson.

Others in the cast are Bill Dobson, Mary Ewald, John Hoffman and Teddy Ulmer.

The box office will be open Sunday through Wednesday from noon to 5 p.m. and Thursday through the following Sunday from noon to curtain time.

Protest Rally Slated

By JOE WARD
Kaimin Reporter

Students will march to Main Hall today at 4 p.m. to protest the suspension of six students in connection with Thursday's snowball fracas.

The protesters will demand an explanation from the Dean of Students, Joe Kerkvliet, spokesman for the group organizing the demonstration, said yesterday.

The suspended students are: Edward Saxson, Spokane freshman; Leslie Dusek, Stanford freshman; Michael Minor, Great Falls freshman; Mark Kramer, Highland, Ill., sophomore; Michael Naegele, Helena freshman, and Steven Percival, Cut Bank sophomore. They were informed of the suspension Friday afternoon by Andrew Cogswell, dean of students.

Dean Cogswell said yesterday the six were suspended for "riotous activity" in connection with the snowballing of Brantly Hall by a large number of students Thursday night. He said the action was needed because the incident had potential to grow to the magnitude of "serious other riots" on campus "three or four years ago." The riots he spoke of, he said, were a panty raid and a food-service riot.

The students suspended "were the identifiable ones" of several who contributed to last week's incident, the Dean said. The six were identified by persons connected with the dean's office at the scene Thursday. They were all interviewed by the dean before the action was taken. They will be eligible for readmission next autumn, he said.

Dean Cogswell said there is no way to be sure that his handling of the situation was right. He said he thought the action was "probably better" than that taken in a similar incident the night before. Wednesday night police were called and three students were arrested.

The dean refused to give the names of the suspended students. The Kaimin got that information from the students involved.

Pres. Robert Johns said yesterday he had authorized the suspensions, but, when asked if he had suggested the punishment, refused to comment on the grounds that it was an "administrative matter."

Of the six suspended, three were available for comment yesterday. Mark Kramer said he went to Brantly after his fraternity was informed of the snowball fight by members of another fraternity. He said he "threw a few snowballs at Brantly." He was called into the dean's office Friday morning for an interview and was told of the suspension Friday afternoon.

Kramer said his father called Dean Cogswell and was told "he didn't want what happened in the Dominican Republic to happen on this campus." The reference was apparently to student riots in that Latin American nation in the past few weeks.

Saxson said he was in the crowd both nights. He admitted no participation in the snowball throwing but said the dean told him he was named as a "trouble maker" by persons at the scene.

Naegele said he "threw some snowballs" at Brantly Hall Thursday night. He was called by the dean's office at 1 a.m. Friday but didn't go because he thought it was a prank. He left for Helena Friday morning and received the notice of his suspension there Friday night. Naegele said he talked to Pres. Johns and was told he could write a letter explaining the circumstances of his participation and possibly be considered for readmission next quarter. Pres. Johns said yesterday that all of the students have that right for reconsideration.

The protest demonstration today is being organized by a group that calls itself the Campus Reform Action Movement (CRAM). According to Kerkvliet, it is an "ad hoc" committee formed specifically for the protest. He said the demonstrators will meet at Brantly Hall at 4 p.m., to march from there to the Lodge and on to Main Hall.

Russia Sends Authors Off

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet writers who smuggled books out to the West were convicted Monday of spreading anti-Soviet propaganda and given heavy sentences.

The Supreme Court of the Russian Republic sentenced Andrei D. Sinyavsky to seven years at hard labor. Sinyavsky published books abroad as Abram Tertz, depicting Soviet life as brutal and corrupt.

Yuli M. Daniel, whose nom de plume was Nikolai Arzhak, got five years, also at hard labor. He had painted an equally unfavorable picture.

Sentence was imposed after a four-day trial closed to Westerners.

The two defendants pleaded innocent and argued that they were entitled to artistic freedom of expression.

Judge Lev N. Smirnov, highest ranking jurist in the Russian Republic, the Soviet Union's largest republic, and his two lay assistants ruled that Sinyavsky and Daniel had done harm to their country by providing material that could be used against it. This constitutes a crime, the Soviet legal code says.

Sinyavsky and Daniel were secretly arrested Sept. 13.

They will demand that Dean Cogswell or Pres. Johns come before the group and explain the action as well as answer questions from the group. They said unless demands are met, the group will take non-violent "symbolic" protest action. He said such action could include the piling of snowballs in front of Main Hall.

Another protest has been made in the form of a petition circulated by members of one of the fraternities. The petition condemns the administration's action on grounds that the offense "did not justify" the action and that there is "no evidence" that those suspended were ringleaders or even active participants.

Dean Cogswell said action by his office against three students arrested Wednesday night will be considered when the "civil authorities are through." He said he is making the delay so no action taken by him will have bearing on the cases in court.

The three who were arrested have been released from jail. James Simpson, a New York freshman, will be tried by Justice J. E. Brodie today at 9:30 a.m. He is charged with third degree assault and failing to leave the scene when so directed by a police officer.

Harold Knudson, a Los Angeles junior, will appear before Police Judge Ray Fox today at 4. He is charged with creating a disturbance.

A charge against John Clavdetscher, Great Falls freshman, has been dropped, Clavdetscher said. He said the charge, creating a disturbance, was dismissed after witnesses told authorities he had no part in the incident.

To Discuss Honors Plan

The feasibility of an honors program will be discussed at noon today in Territorial Room 1 at an open meeting of the Faculty-Student Council.

Tri Deltas Offer Scholarship

UM undergraduate women may apply for the $150 scholarship offered each year by Delta Delta Delta Sorority.

Women do not have to be sorority members in order to apply. Scholastic record, campus contribution and financial need will be considered in the selection of the winner. Announcement of the winner will be made at the Awards Convocation during Commencement Weekend. The woman chosen will be eligible for one of the $1,000 national scholarships offered by Delta Delta Delta.

Applications may be obtained from the Associate Dean of Students office or Mary Hansen at the Delta Delta Delta House.

UM Art Exhibited On, Off Campus

Sculpture, oil paintings, prints, water colors and silver point drawings by six UM art students will be on exhibit through the end of February.

According to Dean Charles W. Bolen, School of Fine Arts, the music lobby will feature prints and water colors by Tom Sternal, graduate student from Minneapolis, and silver point drawings and oil paintings by Dana Bussard, senior from Choteau.

The University Congregational Church lobby will present an exhibit of paintings, prints and sculpture. UM artists are Larry Fredrick, Jackie McElroy, Helen Kampfe, Ivan Morrison and Tom Sternal.

EVALUATIONS DUE

Students who have completed evaluation forms are asked to return them to the Lodge before next Monday.

Mock Trials Begin Monday

Mock trials, using actual Missoula area cases, will begin Monday, Feb. 21, for senior law students.

Student attorneys, for the defendant and the plaintiff side, will deal with the cases. Sherman Lohn, Missoula attorney, will act as instructor and judge. There will be a jury of 12 University undergraduates at each trial, two of which will be criminal and the rest mainly personal injury suits.

The trials will continue every Monday evening in Law 202 until April 25. Any University undergraduate may be a juror on any of the 10 evenings. The Clerks of Court, Richard Beatty and Donald Hamilton, may be called at 4642 or 2023 for further information.

Movie Critic To Rate Films

"What's Wrong with American Cinema" will be discussed by Ernest Callenbach, current editor of Film Review, the University of California, Berkeley film quarterly, tonight at 8 p.m. in the Music Recital Hall.

"Anyone who is interested in modern films will not want to miss this free speech which will contrast past film development in Europe and the United States and give possibilities for future development," David Smith, instructor of English, said.

Mr. Callenbach spent the winter of 1964 in Europe visiting film production centers and meeting film critics, film makers and others associated with films.

Various periodicals, including Fortnight, The Nation, Printer's Ink and Design have published his articles. He has produced three short films and has written a guide book for film study courses entitled, "Our Modern Art: The Movies."

Mr. Callenbach will meet with "The Film" class this afternoon.

Mardi-Gras Dance Friday

The Newman Foundation Mardi Gras dance will be Friday night from 9 to 12 in the Newman Center with music by the Opus IV.

Tickets are $2 per couple and will be on sale tomorrow through Friday in the Lodge.

Performance By Quartet Set Friday

The Stockholm Kyndel String Quartet will present a concert Friday in the Music Recital Hall.

General admission tickets for the 8:15 p.m. concert are $2 and student tickets are $1.50.

Another winter quarter event sponsored by the ASUM Program Council is Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, a 70 member company with its own orchestra. The performance, is scheduled for March 7 at 8:15 p.m. in the University Theater.

Glenn Yarborough, popular singer, will give two performances April 14 and 15 in the University Theater. Mr. Yarborough's concerts are the only performances definitely set for spring quarter, Ray Chapman, Student Union director and Council secretary said. Other programs are being planned.

Two more foreign films will be shown this quarter. Feb. 25 a movie from India, Pather Panchali, will be presented in the University Theater. March 4 a French movie, Beauty and the Beast, will be shown.

Library to Get New Books

Two hundred and fifty fiction and non-fiction books will be added to the library within two months.

Earle C. Thompson, dean of library science, recommended the addition because he said requests for research and specialized materials from the various departments leaves too little money for general interest books.

The collection will have 250 volumes of recreational rather than instructional content. Each month 25 new books will be exchanged for new ones. The library may buy any of these books at a reduced price after six months.

The Student Store board will subsidize the plan for at least one year with the hope it can be absorbed into the regular library budget or into a browsing room in the new Student Union.

UM Delegation Elected to MUN Security Force

New Zealand, the country the Montana delegation to the Model United Nations will represent, was recently elected to the MUN Security Council.

According to the MUN charter, New Zealand is supposed to be a member of the Security Council but when the committees were drawn up in November, New Zealand was not included on the Council.

The Montana delegation will protest if there is any controversy over this addition to the Security Council, Louise Snyder, MUN delegation member, said.

The Montana delegation has been placed on the Committee of 33, a special committee to handle the question of future financing of UN peace-keeping forces.

'They Were the Identifiable Ones'

—Andrew Cogswell
(Alias Robert Johns)

We wish to assert, unequivocally, today, our complete and utter abhorrence for a University administration capable of the sort of stupid and indiscriminate disciplinary action that resulted here Friday in the expulsion of six men for their participation in last week's snowball "riots."

We have thoroughly discussed the issue with student and administrative representatives involved and are convinced that an unconscionable injustice has been dealt six or more students suspended by the University.

Surpassed only by the campus administration for precipitate heavy-handedness in the dispatch of authority, the City Police must share part of the blame. The extent of their panic, expressed in the arrest of two students guilty of no more than hurling a few snowballs and in one officer's threat to call out the National Guard, leads us to question their competence—let alone their perspective. (What ludicrous performance among them what we expect in the face of a real crisis!)

One of the students arrested has been released, following a night in jail. Police couldn't make disturbance charges stick and had to admit it.

The University doesn't need charges—and those, essentially, are the words of Andrew Cogswell, dean of men. He told the Kaimin quite frankly yesterday—as if the Administration's action were not only justified but de rigueur, as well—that the six students singled out for suspension were accorded that distinction for the sole reason that, among the participants, they were easiest to identify. Pot luck, one might conclude—except that suspension is a pretty exotic dish for a picnic.

"They were the identifiable ones," Dean Cogswell said of the six, admitting that the Administration hopes to make examples of them in order to deter further "riots."

The results may prove to be something quite different. Arbitrary, excessive punishments of this sort are all that is required for the total combustion of an obviously volatile situation on campus, a situation born of asinine, archaic social regulations, stringent disciplinary codes and immature, incompetent administration.

We urge all students with any self-respect, with any guts, with any convictions, with any sense of justice to join this afternoon in a demonstration to demand that Pres. Robert Johns (whose past authoritarianism has been documented by such journals as the Saturday Evening Post and who, in his present career, can hide only so long behind Dean Cogswell) talk to us instead of at us, to demand that Pres. Robert Johns proffer some quick, intelligent explanations, if not apologies. rorvik

Students Urged to Fight Back

To the Kaimin:

Boys and girls of the U of M, doesn't it make you feel good to know that your lives are being watched over by "friendly Uncle Andy" and "loveable Aunt Maurine" while you mature into adulthood?

Did you know that after the vicious riot last Thursday, "He asked some of the participants to report to his office today. No disciplinary action is planned." (Kaimin, Feb. 11) But in all his benevolence he decided that they would not make proper playmates for you and so he had to let them go. After all an example must be set. The ruffraff musn't be allowed to mix mud in the sandbox.

Has it occurred to you that, if you had been standing a little too close to an R.A. or a Dean, you too might be packing your bags and on the way home? Doesn't it seem a little ludicrous that a person should be kicked out of school for throwing a snowball? Can't a University have a better code of conduct than the opinions of a handful of Deans and housemothers? And, finally, rovik, Behan Fribbish and the rest, are you all outspoken editorials and nothing else, or God (rovik's dead one) forbid are you on their side?

The situation is a serious one. Suspension from a college, especially for being "ringleaders in a riot," can ruin a person's record for life. But beyond this, there is a deeper issue: How much longer can we go on being treated like adolescents by self appointed Dads and Moms? If the students are convinced that this action is wrong, then let's do something about it. We must either fight this or be content to play in the overcrowded sandbox at Kindergarten Tech.

No Justice, Says 'Former Student'

To the Kaimin:

Recently I, along with about a thousand other students, was involved in a supposed incident. As a result a number of students were expelled. I was one of them. I was summoned before the Dean of Men and suspended; no concise reasons were given for this action, only generalities, (e.g., "You were there. You were seen.") In my case, I feel that I have been treated unfairly, but even if I had been guilty the matter at hand is still the same; what happens to this ideal system, the American way, when the chips are down? I was here to become an asset to myself and my country. This can be difficult in a Police State atmosphere.

In my opinion the Police mishandled this situation; there was no one left to throw snowballs at until they arrived. It looks as if Main Hall is following suit. Other of the suspendees have not been treated fairly, and at least one of them was a superior scholastic asset to the school.

Originally I thought the entire situation was a joke. But, since I'm now on the outside looking in, the humor of it escapes me. I didn't expect a trial before my peers. The outcome of that would have been a foregone conclusion. All I wanted was an impartial listener, and I don't believe I've been given that justice. I told my story and you can see the result. I believe the Administration has more to learn from this incident than do the students.

Snowball 'Fiasco' Called 'Muchest Ado About Nothing'

To the Kaimin:

Apparently the Missoula police are hard up for excitement. Wednesday night's fiasco by Brantly Hall was the muchest ado about nothing that has come along in a long time.

A wild snowball fight that would have worn itself out or, at worst, could have been stopped by the campus police, was treated by the Missoula police as if it were a full-scale riot. In a matter of minutes after the distress call was sent, practically the whole Missoula police force descended on the scene equipped with night sticks and protective helmets, ready to do battle.

Snowballs were flying frantically at everything and everybody. It was later reported that "The house mothers' nerves were completely shattered." It is a pity that such fragile ladies were exposed to such brutality.

Even an hour after the arrested students had been brought into the police station there were about a dozen officers milling around, still in full battle dress. Some were mad at the students, some were still edgy from their harrowing experience, some looked as indignant as hell about being called out that late on their night off and some had obviously enjoyed the whole show.

The arrested students were not only searched, they were relieved of their belts, apparently so that they couldn't hang themselves in their cells. Another student there heard an officer say "Take the sons of bitches down stairs. I hope they want to go the hard way."

The word got to the outside world that a real battle had taken place on campus. About an hour after the fight the Kaimin got a long distance call from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer asking for information on the "riot." It must have been disappointing to find that it was only a snowball fight.

To complete an absurd evening, a fire truck arrived on the scene too late to use its hoses to break up the "riot."

Aside from the numerous ridiculous events, it was stupid of the students to attack a police officer, no matter what the circumstances. Those students involved in the attack certainly deserve punishment. However, according to the police, two of the three arrested were not involved in the assault. The treatment at the police station was hardly appropriate.

Obviously the administration and the police are spooked by any show of group spirit and enthusiasm other than those carefully planned by the University. Apparently they think any such a demonstration is aimed at destroying the University and raping all the women in it (Communist inspired, no doubt).

I find it encouraging that some students decided to say to hell with discipline and had another snowball fight the next night.

JOHN LUMB
Senior, Journalism

'Saw No Riot,' Says Gary Wright

To the Kaimin:

"This can't happen again," said the Dean of Students' Office, referring to the night of February tenth. "This," was the gathering of students in front of Brantly and Elrod Halls, to watch "rioters" throw snowballs at the locked, darkened windows.

Through the fear of university officials at the congregating of so many people, at least four students have been expelled from school. Yet those of us present that night saw no riot; just people standing on the sidewalk. However, "to set an example," the administration has embraced the tenet of punishing students before a crime is committed. This is called "prevention." It is less euphemistically called injustice.

I have talked of these matters with Messrs. Vallach and Cogswell but, due to their peculiar positions, was of course disregarded.

Unable to influence the attitude of this administration, and unwilling to be identified with its restrictive pronouncements, I submit my resignation as Staff Assistant to Craig-Duniway Halls.

GI's Protest Price of Tea, Accouterments in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The teapot in Saigon's tempest of tea leaves boiled merrily despite a GI protest against the rising price of Saigon Tea — the thimbleful of beverage that comes with a pretty bar hostess attached.

It is through such tea that a GI gets the company of a bar hostess. If he wants female companionship, he must buy the girl Saigon Tea.

Some GIs — but not all — think the price for the stuff is too high — from 160 to 180 piasters, about $2 or more. A whiskey and soda costs that much. A bottle of beer is the equivalent of 30 cents.

"Cheap Charlies," the bar hostesses call the protesting GI's.

Saturday night a group of soldiers staged a three-hour drink-in at one cafe to emphasize their protest.

"What do GI's want?" complained pretty Co Hai, hostess at the Paris bar. "Once Saigon Tea 80 piasters. Now Saigon Tea 160. Once rice 5 piasters a kilo. Now rice 10. Not happy this way."

"Saigon Tea not too much cost," said Nguyen Thi Hue of the San Francisco bar. "Maybe five Saigon Teas one day. Maybe 10 next. How we live?"

A quick check showed that hostesses average from 5 to 20 Saigon Teas a day — or night — according to their looks, their charm, their blandishments, and their notions of acquiescence.

"Saigon Tea too high?" said Sgt. James C. Metcalfe of Fayetteville, Tenn. "Not at all. It's just the prices of progress. If you don't want to buy a bar girl a drink, don't buy it."

Metcalfe said he thought bar hostesses provided a boost to a soldier's morale.

"Some are delightful," he smiled as he sipped his beer.

The mama sans in most bars gave no evidence of being disturbed by the unrest among U.S. servicemen here. They smiled in ways that have been described as inscrutable.

One mama san said: "GI like bar girl. Bar girl like GI. No sweat."

Mortar Board To Distribute Eligibility Lists

The names of junior women eligible for Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary, will be distributed today to all junior women.

The lists offer junior women the chance to choose 20 candidates they think fulfill the qualifications for membership: scholarship, leadership, character and service.

"The lists will help the 13 Mortar Board members selected last year choose those women who undoubtedly deserve the honor," Kathy Adolph, president of Mortar Board, said.

Lists must be returned to the Lodge desk by Friday via campus mail or given to present Mortar Board members.

Bell-Bottoms Highlight Men's Styles

DALLAS (AP) — Men are expected to blossom into bell-bottom trousers and splurge with plaids, stripes and madras this spring. At least manufacturers and retailers hope they will.

For those who find even this too sedate, a big hit in a news showing by the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear was a beach outfit that one designed called "a chemistry course in fingerpainting."

The outfit is a cotton twill jacket and drawstring shorts that come in eight basic colors and with a bottle of grapefruit juice.

The wearer creates his own pattern by squirting the juice onto the fabric, bleaching it.

The juice suit is an outgrowth of the West Coast surfing fad, which had given the nation a new look in sportswear.

The bell-bottom revival is in three shapes: a front crease and flaring silhouette, the side-creased, flat front-on look, and the rounded "elephant foot" look with no crease at all.

The blue jean comes into its own, in hop sacking, corduroy, madras, paint splashes and already-faded-blue materials, for newest in the dressed down casual trouser.

A Fine Arts Festival celebrating the genius of the 18th century will be sponsored by the School of Fine Arts May 9-29, Charles W. Bolen, dean of the fine arts schools announced.

This is the first program of its kind ever attempted at the University. Daily performances, lectures and exhibits focusing on 18th century art drama, music, literature, history, science, philosophy and theology will be presented during the three-week program.

Metropolitan Opera basso Nicola Moscona will sing the role of Sarastro in Mozart's "The Magic Flute," which will be presented in the University Theatre May 11-15.

UM Alum Gives Wife a Hand

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A St. Louis surgeon who amputated his right hand and sent it to his estranged wife reportedly once was enrolled at the University of Montana with his wife, formerly of Sidney.

Dr. Khurshed Ansari, 30, was reported in critical condition after authorities found him in his blood-stained apartment.

Authorities said he packaged and sent the amputated hand to the apartment of his wife, the former Margaret Strom, 26. Her father once was high school music teacher in Sidney.

Mrs. Ansari reportedly returned from St. Louis to the home of her parents, who moved about four years ago from Sidney to Cardston, Alta.

A message with the parcel sent to Mrs. Ansari's apartment said: "This is the hand that caused the trouble."

The couple's name was recognized by a newsmen on the staff of the Great Falls Tribune.

Grizzlies Hope to Gobble Bobcat Steaks

HOW'S THE WEATHER UP THERE—Montana's Greg Hanson seems to tower over the other four players under the basket as he goes high in the air to tap in two points for the Montana Grizzlies during their 84-66 conquest of defending Big Sky champion Weber State College Saturday night in the Field House. Hanson did a lot of this sort of thing against the Wildcats, who could find the range on only 34 per cent of their shots. Hanson hit 11 points for the Silvertips, who shot 59 per cent from the field.

The Montana Grizzlies, uplifted by their sixth and seventh straight wins last weekend, will attempt to win their second straight game over cross-state rival Montana State Saturday in the Field House.

The Tips, now 11-8 overall and tied for second in the Big Sky Conference with a 3-2 mark, will be facing a Bobcat team which is smarting from one of its worst basketball seasons in history. The Cats split last weekend to move to a 4-15 record, 2-3 in Big Sky play.

The Grizzlies made things look pretty easy Friday night by whipping the high-scoring Idaho State Bengals, 111-84. Three records were broken during the contest, all by the Tips.

Montana broke the Field House scoring record, erasing the former mark of 101 set by the University of Utah in 1955. Then, with Greg Hanson pouring through three straight free throws, the Tips passed the previous all-time Grizzly single game mark of 103 points set against Gonzaga in 1946.

The third record to fall was the Grizzly scoring record in the new Field House. The old mark was 96, set against the University of Wisconsin (Milwaukee) last season.

Montana held only a 44-40 edge at halftime, but then raced to 67 tallies in the second half to raise the Field House roof.

Seven Grizzlies hit in double figures, but Idaho State's Dave Wagnon, who came into the game as the nation's second leading scorer, topped all players with 32 points before fouling out.

Center John Quist led the Grizzly attack with 20 points and 11 rebounds. Other Tips in double figures were Dennis Biletznikoff with 18, Doc Holliday with 17, Greg Hanson with 15, Gary Peck with 13, and Norm Clark and Tom Schilke with 10 each.

Montana hit 51 of 94 shots from the field for 54 per cent, while Idaho State hit on 32 of 74 for 43 per cent.

It was more of the same Saturday night, with defending champion Weber State becoming the Grizzlies' seventh straight victim in a string which began with an 80-76 win over MSU Jan. 22.

The Grizzlies moved to a 12-point margin at halftime, expanded it to 30 midway through the second half, and then coasted to an 84-66 win over the hapless Wildcats.

Holliday turned out to be the big gun for the Tips Saturday by tallying 27 points before leaving late in the game with a leg injury.

Quist tallied 21, while Peck garnered 18 points and Hanson 11.

Quist had scored only five in the first half, but excellent moves in the key netted the 6-7 jumping jack 16 more in the second stanza.

FLUENT SPORT

Rules for the sport of softball, which is played in every corner of the globe, are printed in more than 15 languages, including Japanese, Hebrew, Italian, French, Spanish and Chinese.

The Wildcats had been averaging more than 90 points a contest before hitting the Field House floor Saturday night, but constant pressure by the fast-moving Grizzly defense held the Cats to their second lowest total of the season.

Texas Western held Weber to only 63 points in the Wildcats' fifth game of the season.

Weber's leading scorer, Gene Visscher, had sported a 19.3 average before Saturday night.

Jerry Trice led the Wildcats with 20 points, followed by reserve forward Ted Bryant with 15. They were the only Weberites to score in double figures.

The Grizzlies, who hit 65 per cent in the first half, wound up with a 59.4 percentage, hitting 29 of 49 shots.

Weber had one of its coldest nights of the year, hitting only 24 per cent in the first stanza and winding up with a game percentage of 34.2, scoring on 26 of 76 attempts.

Coaches Ron Nord and Bob Cope were high in their praise for the Grizzlies.

After the Idaho State game Friday night, Nord commented, "This team practiced better this week than any team I've ever seen, and it really paid off. I'm extremely pleased with the way they are moving the ball."

The wins definitely put the Tips back in conference contention, although they will have to win the remainder of their five games to have a crack at the title.

Gonzaga, now 6-0 in Big Sky action, will have to drop at least two games to give Montana a chance to tie for the crown.

Gonzaga comes to Missoula Feb. 25.

Cubs to Play Grudge Game With Kittens

The freshman basketball team will tangle with the tough Montana State Bobkittens Saturday in the Field House.

The Bobkittens, sporting a 12-1 record, defeated the Cubs, 73-60, earlier this season. The Kittens are a big team but not too fast, according to Jay Jackson, Cub coach.

The Cubs lost their seventh game of the season to the Idaho State frosh, 75-67, last Friday. The Cubs had the same problem that they have had in previous games, being beaten on the boards.

Gary Siegford and Ken Conrad had one of their worst nights as far as shooting goes. Collectively the pair connected on only 9 of 30 shots from the field.

"Idaho State ran a two-three zone defense and we couldn't score from the outside," Jackson stated.

A highlight of the game was the fact that the clock was kept running the last 10 minutes of the second half in order to end the game by 7:30.

"The ISU coach took advantage of this time factor in a way similar to the Notre Dame injury fiasco in football several years ago," Jackson further explained.

"After every foul in those last few minutes they would have players walking around as if they were injured to eat up the time."

Coach Jackson feels that if there hadn't been this waste of time the Cubs would easily have caught up with the ISU frosh.

Montana's busy grapplers will find the competition rough this weekend when they take on Idaho State University Friday and Air Force Academy Saturday in the Field House.

Kentucky Holds Top Ranking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kentucky's unbeaten and virtually untested Wildcats reign all but unchallenged as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in the latest Associated Press rankings.

In one of the strongest showings ever in the weekly poll, Kentucky was placed first on 40 of the 42 ballots yesterday by the nationwide panel, and received one second and one fourth. The two other first-place votes went to St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania, No. 8, and unranked Dayton.

Kentucky took over the top last week from Duke after the Blue Devils had led for eight straight weeks. The Wildcats ran their record to 19-0 during the past week by knocking off Florida, 85-75, and Auburn, 77-64. Outside a 69-65 double overtime victory over Georgia, Kentucky has won by 10 or more points.

Duke, which lost for the second time this season when it was upset last week by West Virginia, held on to second as the ratings remained almost unchanged.

Texas Western, 18-0 and the country's only unbeaten major team other than Kentucky, made another advance, easing into third ahead of Chicago Loyola in the only change from last week. The Miners won twice in overtime struggles, against Arizona and New Mexico, while Loyola lost to Wichita and beat St. John's of Minnesota.

Place Fourth at Qualifying Meet

Skiers Looking Ahead to Big Sky Meet

The University of Montana varsity ski team will go into training for the next two weeks in preparation for the 1966 Big Sky Conference championship at Bozeman's Bridger Bowl Feb. 25-26.

Montana will have at least one individual favorite at the meet as a result of a performance at last weekend's NCAA Qualifying Meet, at McCall, Idaho.

Jens Gran, a transfer from Oslo, Norway, placed second in the cross country event at McCall. His time of one hour, three minutes and five seconds was only 13 seconds behind the winning time of first place finisher Don Gardiner of the University of Alberta at Calgary, who covered the nine miles in one hour, two minutes and 52 seconds.

Gardiner, according to UM Coach Gerald Askevold, would normally be in Europe training with the Canadian Olympic Team, but "he injured a shoulder early in the year and couldn't make the trip."

Gran beat several competitors from his home country in the event.

"It was the first significant placing in a nordic event for a University of Montana skier," Askevold commented.

Another individual who did well at the meet was freshman Rick Gibbon of Kellogg, Idaho, who finished sixth in the slalom event.

"Rick shows a lot of promise, especially in the slalom," Coach Askevold commented. "With his sixth place finish, he was only 0.2 seconds behind MSU's number-one seeded slalom man, Wayne Berg.

Askevold said that the downhill event at McCall was "technically demanding. Two pairs of downhill skis were broken and Terry Onslow sustained a knee injury during his run which will keep him out of action for the remainder of the year.

"We did much better as a team than in previous meets," Askevold said. "For example, Weber State beat us at their own invitational, but we defeated them in team scoring at McCall."

Team scoring saw the University of Washington take first with 381.2 points, Montana State University second with 373.1, University of Idaho third and Montana fourth.

Other teams competing were the University of Alaska, University of Alberta (Calgary), Washington State University and Weber.

"Our team showed tremendous improvement in the downhill, which was our weakest event at the start of the year," Askevold commented further. "I'm really proud of the boys, they really came up."

Wildcats Top Crimson Tide

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Tommy Kron pumped in 23 points in his best performance of the season to lead top-ranked Kentucky to its 20th basketball victory last night, a 90-67 triumph over Alabama.

The unbeaten Wildcats broke the game open late in the first half and were never threatened as they picked up their 11th straight Southeastern Conference victory.

Kron scored 16 of his points in the first half, when Kentucky took help from Pat Riley with 22 points, and Louie Dampier, who added 18.

Alabama, which now is 5-6 in conference play and 12-9 for the season, stayed close for 15 minutes on the shooting of Guy Turner.

The deadly sophomore finished with 22 points, but the Crimson Tide bowed for the second straight time at home after winning the first eight home games.

Wilt Tallies 41

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Towering Wilt Chamberlain added another milestone to his legendary National Basketball Association career last night with a 41-point performance to set an all-time scoring record in Philadelphia's 149-123 victory over Detroit.

The 7-foot-1 pivot man brought his career scoring record to 20,884, four better than the now retired Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks. Chamberlain is now in his seventh year in the NBA.

Utah State University — The Board of Trustees has passed a proposal raising the price of campus parking decals from $1 to $7.50. The increased fees will provide more money to be used for new parking facilities.

University of Colorado — The Board of Publications has refused to censor the editors of student publications. The motion that was passed stated that "the Board both acknowledged its own policy, under which editors have full authority to determine the content of their publications, and that the Board express its backing and confidence in the student editors under its jurisdiction."

University of Idaho—University and city officials are considering several suggestions for improving the housing situation. One suggestion was that the University should sanction more private construction near the campus or lease a section of the Moscow Hotel.

University of Utah—The Bookstore Advisory Board has asked that a 10 per cent discount at the bookstore for students, employees and faculty members. The board also recommended that the bookstore make it a policy to order more books than the instructor thinks he will need for a class, and that a student book exchange be established.

University of New Mexico—The Students for Democratic Society are attempting to put out a booklet next fall evaluating courses and instructors.

San Jose State College—Campus-area householders are complaining about the change in the college's housing policy. The policy now permits any student under 21 to live in unapproved housing with parental permission. These householders say the ruling has caused vacancies in approved housing. College officials say the vacancy problem is caused by fewer freshmen, a smaller percentage of lower division students and a generally older student population.

University of Oregon—The Conduct Committee is debating a motion that the Office of Student Affairs no longer should receive copies of police reports on students who have been arrested. These reports are supposed to be used only for counseling purposes by the associate dean of students.

Montana State University—Student Senate rejected the AWS Constitution after discussion about the compulsory $1.50 dues. Students stated they did not believe the compulsory dues were fair to girls living off-campus. The opposition against passage was summarized: "As it now exists AWS seems to be a somewhat autonomous organization whose only parallel in function is Student Senate. This seems to be a contradiction in the basic structure of student government and deserves greater investigation before Senate could pass the constitution."

Colorado State University—ASCU has recommended a change in AWS hours and regulations. The change would extend hours in approved housing to 12 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 24 hour access to living units for women over the age of 21 living in approved housing units.

Utah State University—Student Senate is discussing a bill which would stop social activities during "Dead Week." Voting on the bill was postponed pending further study.

University of Oregon—Women will be allowed to visit in University related men's living organizations without violating the Student Conduct Code. This includes men's dormitories, fraternities and co-operatives.

Brigham Young University—Provo City is considering passing an ordinance "controlling obscene movies and literature." A petition signed by more than 11,000 persons, 1,238 of them BYU students, was presented to city officials. Materials considered unsuitable will include "pictures and literature whose dominant theme tends to incite shameful or morbid interest in nudity or sex and is without redeeming social importance."

CAIRO (AP) — Facing a food shortage, U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser seems to have found nowhere to turn but to the United States.

Both the Soviet Union and Red China are themselves importing wheat. West Germany and Britain might help, but Egypt no longer has diplomatic relations with Bonn and has antagonized Britain by supporting rebels in South Arabia. Some French wheat apparently is available but only on commercial terms.

Nasser has liberally criticized the United States in the past, but U. S. officials here say that Egypt recently has been trying to improve relations. These officials are urging Washington to act favorably on an approach for help.

The Egyptian approach did not request any specific amount of aid but made known total requirements and sought to learn the prospects for some kind of assistance. It was more a feeler than an outright request. The final decision will be up to President Johnson.

Americans in Egypt have been encouraged by Nasser's decision to halt direct aid to the Congolese rebels. Restrictions on U. S. firms operating in Egypt also have been eased and the new Cabinet appears to be trying energetically to put Egypt's economic house in order.

Last fall Nasser contributed 1,000 volumes from his personal library to a new John F. Kennedy Memorial Library housed in quarters donated by the government for a nominal dollar-a-year rental.

The old Kennedy library was destroyed last November by rioting African students protesting the U. S. role in the rescue of refugees from the Congolese rebels.

The United States has already provided a new $11.6-million food grant under Title III of Public Law 480.

Under this program, food is supplied through such U. S. voluntary agencies as CARE, Catholic Relief and World Church services. Most of the food is directed to children and all of it is a gift. U.S. authorities report that five million Egyptian children are receiving food under this plan.

Public Law 480 is the basic legislation in the U. S. Food for Peace program. The greatest help for Egypt would come under Title I. This provides for the sale of surplus U. S. food—mainly wheat and corn—for Egyptian pounds.

Since the 1952 inauguration of the Nasser regime, the United States has supplied $1.23 billion worth of aid to Egypt under Title I, U. S. aid mission figures show.

MSU Couple Seeks Status Of Residents

BOZEMAN (AP) — A married couple attending Montana State University in Bozeman filed suit yesterday seeking resident status at the University at a $607 lower fee.

Terry Lee Albrecht and his wife, Peggy, asked that Registrar Helen Fechter be ordered to admit them as residents of Montana and return non-resident fees.

The annual fee for residents is $1,110.40. The annual fee for non-residents is $1,717.40.

The suit names as defendants the registrar and the State Board of Regents. A hearing on the suit was scheduled Thursday.

Both Albrecht and his wife contend they are Montana residents, Albrecht since May 1962 and his wife since 1950.

Mrs. Albrecht contends she lost her resident status when she married Albrecht. Her parents live in Butte. Albrecht's parents are out-of-state residents.

Albrecht said he first moved to Great Falls with his parents and attended grade and high schools there. He has been a non-resident student at Montana State University for three years.

Albrecht said he is a registered voter, has paid state income taxes since 1962 and holds state hunting, fishing and driver's licenses.

Mrs. Albrecht said she attended Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology until 1963 as a resident and then transferred to MSU.

Dean Clow, Coed Battle Verbally on AWS Rules

By JANE STAHL
Kaimin Reporter

A petition for change in the rules for women being circulated in residence halls has led to what may be the biggest verbal battle of the year between a coed and Laurine Clow, associate dean of students.

Kathleen Caddell, a pre-med sophomore, yesterday told the Kaimin of a conversation she had with Dean Clow last Thursday. When called by the Kaimin, she denied almost all the statements attributed to her by Miss Caddell. They agreed that Dean Clow said "At a Fraternity party attended recently, some of the boys told me they wished they had hours." Aside from that, there was chaos as to what was said during the interview and what was not.

Miss Caddell, Birmingham, Ala., a transfer student from the University of Florida where she had 4.0 overall last semester.

"Miss Clow called my room last Thursday afternoon," said Miss Caddell. "My roommate said it was something urgent in regard to a letter my mother had sent Miss Clow, asking that I be let out of school for a couple days to be in my sister's wedding. So an appointment was made, and I went to Miss Clow's office at 10 a.m. on Friday."

"We talked only three minutes about my mother's letter but 45 minutes about my letters to the Kaimin," said Miss Caddell. "Miss Clow said I was uninformed. She said I had no right to write letters or involve myself in AWS affairs because I am only a part-time student. The reason I am only a part-time student is because the University didn't inform me of the fee change before I came here, and, because of financial reasons, I can only afford a part-time load of five zoology credits instead of a regular load."

"Miss Clow told me I could move out of the dorm if I didn't like the rules," said Miss Caddell, who lives in Elrod. "Miss Clow said students carrying under seven credits needed special permission to live in the dorms. The housing department hasn't said anything to me about part-time students living in dorms; the catalogue only says that girls are required to live there."

"Miss Clow said to me, 'You're mad at the entire State of Montana because you weren't informed of the fee change.'" According to Miss Caddell, Miss Clow added that (Miss Caddell) was dissatisfied with the world and that she brought that dissatisfaction with her.

"So I told her, 'I've talked to more than 400 girls, and they aren't as satisfied as you might think. The results of the AWS poll showed girls would like a change.' And Miss Clow told me, 'I haven't read the poll yet. Tell me what it said.'"

Miss Caddell continued, "When I mentioned to Miss Clow that one of the issues on the AWS poll was women being allowed to enter men's apartments, Miss Clow said, 'The purpose of the rules is for the girls' physical well-being and protection, and by this I don't mean moral protection.'

"Miss Clow added, 'All girls that get pregnant here get pregnant in the daytime anyway,'" said Miss Caddell. (In regard to this statement, Miss Clow exclaimed, "How silly!" and emphatically denied ever having said anything to that effect.)

Miss Caddell said she suggested to Miss Clow that a night watchman be posted in the women's dorm instead of locking the doors or that a key system might be initiated, such as the one she said works with great success among senior women at the University of Washington.

Miss Caddell quoted Miss Clow as saying there would never be a key system at this university because it was "too dangerous, with keys getting passed around, etc."

Miss Clow said the University gave AWS the authority to make the rules, and the University could withdraw them at any time, reported Miss Caddell.

Miss Clow said, according to Miss Caddell, the only girls complaining about rules are freshmen with low grade points who have no right to complain since they will be out of school next quarter anyway.

Last week, Miss Caddell and several other students circulated a petition, reading in part: "We request that AWS hold a vote on this: As of Spring quarter, March 1966, hours will be abolished for women students having 45 credits or more. Women will sign out when they intend to be away from the residence after 10:30 p.m. designating time out, destination, companion and expected time of return. They will sign in when returning to their residence. Campuses will be given for failure to sign in or out, or for violation of other AWS regulations. . . . AWS will work with the advisor, Dean Clow, and the administration on a system of keeping the dormitories safe. Two suggestions are (1) issuing keys to the women (2) having a night watchman on duty at the front desk to keep unauthorized persons from entering."

The petition, to be presented to AWS tonight, has been signed by 354 women, 134 of them freshmen and 220 of them upperclass women.

"This year's Miss UM, last year's Miss UM, some Senior Residents and several AWS representatives also signed the petition," said Miss Caddell.

"It seems to me that Miss Clow considers anyone who advocates change as one making a personal attack on Miss Clow herself," said Miss Caddell. "The battleground for AWS rule changes should not be a personal fight or name calling between the Associate Dean of Students and those who want change."

To all of this, Miss Clow has been steadfast in denial. Her only official statement: "I do not believe (this) is an accurate statement of the discussion I had with (Miss Caddell). This is obvious from some of the statements attributed to me, surely the one in regard to pregnant women."

U.S. Soldier Slightly Wounded By Santo Domingo Terrorist

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A U. S. sergeant and three Dominican policemen were slightly wounded last night by a terrorist's grenade. At the same time, sporadic shooting continued in the central part of the city despite reinforced patrols by U.S. 82nd Airborne paratroopers. Violence was generally subsiding, however, from the peaks it reached during the weekend.

The death toll after five days of disorders stood at 19.

Six Paraguayan troops of the Inter-American Peace Force were slightly wounded early yesterday in a hit-run grenade attack in downtown Santo Domingo.

Snipers also opened up in pre-dawn darkness with a 50-calibre machine gun at a U.S. jeep patrol. There were no casualties.

Viet Debates Still Rage At Forum

Instead of just seeking stability, the United States should seek instability and support revolutions, Joe Kerkvliet, sophomore, said Friday at Montana Forum.

The plausibility of the United Nations' Security Council debating the Viet Nam issue and the Johnson administration's management of the news were also discussed.

Most of the discussion was in the form of questions which were tossed back and forth between members of the audience, Kerkvliet, an economics major and Steve Carroll, a senior in history and political science.

A coalition government is the best thing that could happen if the United States withdrew from Viet Nam, Kerkvliet said.

"I am advocating that the United States not equate revolution with communism," he said.

A member of the audience asked what the United States should do to prevent Red Chinese imperialism. Kerkvliet replied that if Red China is able to achieve status as a world power, providing the United States lets this happen, then there is a good possibility that Red Chinese imperialism will be stopped.

Greg Osborn, junior, asked if anyone thought the United States really wanted the UN to debate Viet Nam or if President Johnson were using it for political reasons. Barclay Kuhn, political science professor, said President Johnson is "an experimental man who will try anything."

News in Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON—The machinery for dismantling the British Empire slipped smoothly into gear again yesterday to prepare the way for independence of Bechuanaland. The protectorate will become the Independent Republic of Botswana.

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain—An American Air Force Globemaster on a mission connected with the hunt for a U. S. nuclear bomb lost in Spain was found wrecked Monday. All eight crewmen were killed.

The search for the missing nuclear bomb went on. Two deep-diving U. S. submarines have been operating two miles off shore.

WASHINGTON—Militant young foes of U. S. policy in Viet Nam are working to shape a national political organization out of their protest and peace forces. Immediate withdrawal from Viet Nam is the new rallying cry, but its goals go far beyond the war issue.

The new political operation will be called the National Conference for New Politics.
