Panel Says of Test-Tube Man

Exact Copy Impossible

By MARGARET GARDNER
and DON WRIGHT

Man will never duplicate an exact likeness of himself by artificial means, agreed the members of a panel discussion last night on "Artificial Creation of Life."

A specimen of life on the human model can be artificially created but moral consciousness and creative ability can never be synthesized, said Mitsuru Nakamura, microbiology department chairman.

Mr. Nakamura said the question of whether man could create life artificially has been asked for many years and scientists are working on the problem.

Dr. James Law, a Missoula pediatrician, said sheep embryos have reached complete maturation in an artificial environment. Artificial maturation makes genetic selection, the ability to control gene structure, possible.

Through genetic selection, mutant and diseased genes can be removed from the gene structure. Therefore, it may be possible to

Petula Clark To Sing at U This Spring

Program Council voted to contract vocalist Petula Clark for one performance April 12, 13 or 14. Miss Clark's performance will include a full show with 18-piece orchestra.

Friday night the "Wild Things," a five-piece combo from Havre, will play for a dance in the Cascade Room of the Lodge. Admission is 75 cents for singles and $1 for couples.

Acting-president Robert Pantzer will participate in a discussion with the student body this Friday at Four. Tom Behan, ASUM president, will conduct the discussion.

Program Council is planning for the performance of Chad and Jeremy Oct. 29 in the Field House. Tickets go on sale Monday morning at 8:30 in the Lodge. Carlos Montoya is scheduled for a concert in the University Theater Nov. 22.

A list of new members to program council will be presented for approval to Central Board.

HELENA — Members of the Board of Education changed position yesterday and designated Missoula as the location for an area vocational-technical school.

The designation allows the school to obtain some federal construction money.

However, the board made it clear that the area for the school is to be designated later after a board study of the entire vocational-technical school field.

NEW YORK — The sodden, acrid debris of a burned-out 19th century building at Broadway and 23rd Street yielded the bodies of 12 firemen yesterday, after the worst departmental disaster in the history of New York fire-fighting.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — President Johnson landed Wednesday in New Zealand for the first foreign stop of his 29,000-mile Far Eastern tour.

MOSCOW — Soviet bloc leaders yesterday began secret discussions of Vietnamese prospects in light of the U.S. military effort and Chinese obstruction to bloc aid to Hanoi.

remove diseased and mutant species from the human race, said Dr. Law.

Through gene selection it is also possible, said Mr. Nakamura, for everyone in future generations to look exactly alike.

Meyer Chessin, professor of botany, commented on the difficulty of defining what constitutes life.

Rev. Claude Boydston, Episcopal Church minister, raised the questions: "Should we create life and what happens after life is created?" Rev. Boydston said he felt we ought to use our minds to the greatest of our ability for the greatest good of mankind.

He said we have the privilege to create but at the same time we must be responsible to our fellow man after the creation. Panel members discussed the elimination of human procreation and said artificial insemination and selective genetics could be used to delete moral consciousness from future generations.

The panel discussion, attended by about 75 students and professors, was another in a series called "Issues of Life and Death."

Next week's discussion will be on abortion.

Pity Poor Fritz, Nothing Is Safe

Money is safe in the bookstore safe. Even the bookstore can't get it out.

An estimated $750 in merchandise was stolen from the UM bookstore at approximately 5 a.m. yesterday according to Nelson Fritz, store supply manager. Burglars gained entrance by breaking a window in a rear door of the adjoining accounting office. They sacked the accounting office and damaged a small safe to the extent that it will not open.

Mr. Fritz said the estimated two or three persons took pens, pencils, cigarettes, cigarette lighters and a sample case of class rings. The cash register was not touched.

Campus security police said they could not prove the burglary was connected to other campus thefts but felt certain the same group stole cigarettes from a machine in Miller Hall earlier in the night.

The thieves' identities were apparently undetermined as of 5 p.m. yesterday. Local police and campus security officials were working on the case but refused

Flatheads Recall 66 Mile Trek At 75th Anniversary Banquet

Three Indians who accompanied Chief Charlo on the forced trek from the Bitterroot Valley were honored guests at a buffet dinner last night.

The diamond anniversary of the expulsion of the Flathead Indians from the Bitterroot Valley was commemorated by the UM Foundation Division of Indian Services.

Lucy Charlot Finley, Marian Coombs and Louis Nine Pipes gave a personal account of the journey from their home in the Bitterroot to the reservation in the Jocko Valley.

Albert J. Partoll, Montana historian, related the history of the famous trek. Mr. Partoll told how the Flatheads lived peacefully on their land until 1880. Then the U.S. government negotiations began to move the Indians to their reservation.

A U.S. Senate subcommittee told Chief Charlo and his followers they could be compelled to leave the valley either at bayonet point or loaded on horses like bags of grain, Mr. Partoll explained.

Having no choice, Chief Charlo gave the tribe's ancestral land to the U.S. government, Mr. Partoll said.

Seventy-five years ago on Oct. 15, 1891, 34 Flathead families traveled 66 miles to the Jocko Valley.

At the dinner a group of Indians from St. Ignace sang Salish songs, and Bert Hansen, professor emeritus of speech, read a speech Chief Charlo made condemning whites.

The history and anthropology departments assisted with the commemoration arrangements.

Successful Frosh Politicians To Get CB Review Tonight

Freshman winners of the Central Board election are scheduled to be approved by CB tonight.

In yesterday's voting at Brantly Hall, Craig Hall and the Lodge, William Schaffer received 369 votes, Mark Penland 326, Mary Jo Hudson 285, Joel Broudy 263, Joseph Mazurek 241, J. Cody Montalban 233, Dennis Flagen 212 and Ron Wendte 195.

Schaffer, a business administration major from Deer Lodge; Penland, a Missoula political science and economics major; Miss Hudson from Stillwater, Minn., majoring in social welfare; Broudy, in secondary education from Butte; Mazurek from Billings, and Billings pre-law student Montalban will run in the general election Tuesday.

Polls at the general election will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Freshman will choose three of the six candidates as delegates to Central Board. The candidates will speak to the living groups Monday.

Ballots from the primary election were tabulated by the ASUM elections committee, Ed Leary, chairman, Robert L. Peterson of the economics department, and Cynthia Schuster, associate professor of philosophy.

Besides accepting the results of the primary election, Central Board is scheduled to approve members of all ASUM boards and commissions.

Delegates to the Montana Student Presidents Association convention Oct. 28 and 29 will be selected.

Austerity Education for U; Regents Nix Special Tools

UM will be in "fairly good shape" despite a $5 million cut in the Montana University System's biennial budget, acting UM Pres. Robert Pantzer said.

The State Board of Regents, meeting in Helena yesterday, approved a $65 million budget after the reduction.

"UM lost about $1.25 million in operating funds, plus about $125,000 in special programs and equipment," said Mr. Pantzer.

Special programs, totaling about $1.18 million, for all six university system units were cut from the budget, Mr. Pantzer said.

An electron microscope and an ultra centrifuge were among the special items requested for UM.

He made the following statements about the budget:

• "The budget is now based on a 17 to 1 student-faculty ratio. When we submitted the original budget, we had hoped for a 16.5 to 1 ratio. What we wound up with is still better than what we have now. The present UM student-faculty ratio is about 17.5 or 18 to 1."

• When the budget was worked out between the six presidents of the university system units last spring, UM was listed for a 15.5 to 1 ratio.

• "We decided among ourselves in July to raise the UM ratio to 16.5 to 1. This is the ratio we put before the Regents. The July decision accounted for about a $5 million reduction.

• "The present budget will keep our faculty salaries on a competitive level for the next two years, but we can't go any lower without running into trouble."

• If the proposed budget is approved by the 1967 legislature, it will provide 40 per cent more funds than the last biennial budget.

• "This is still just a request, but we have a good chance of getting most of what we're asking for. The Board has said it will support the passage of this budget.

• "I think most of the Board's decisions were very reasonable. They have studied and questioned this budget more closely than any of the others submitted during my eight years in the system."

All six university system unit presidents are in favor of Referendum 64, which would divert three cents of the current cigarette tax into a university system building fund, according to Mr. Pantzer.

"Although the Board has not expressed its view as a body, I'm sure all individuals on it are for Referendum 64."

"Definitely not," was Mr. Pantzer's answer when asked if he thought the budget cut was in any way connected with a statement last year by Gov. Tim Babcock saying former Kaimin editor Dave Rorvik's controversial editorial policies would affect university appropriations.

The issue of a permanent UM president was not raised at the meeting.

"Informally, Maurice Richard told me the Board is still looking for a man, but he didn't mention any names," Pantzer said. Mr. Richard is chairman of the Regents' University committee.

'Book' Sale Ends

"The Book" is on sale for the last time in the Lodge today.

The remaining 500 copies will continue to be sold in the bookstore and at Rudy's News.

Any corrections or suggestions concerning "The Book" should be sent to the Forum Committee on Faculty Evaluation in care of the Lodge.

Students interested in working on next year's "Book" may call Gregory Osborn at 549-7048.

Regents Cowboy Belongs Back on the Range

The actions of the newly elected chairman of the university committee of the Board of Regents ring with an echo of familiarity.

Maurice Richard, a Republican Miles City rancher, and his proposal to cut the Montana University System budget make us wish our good friend, Gordon Doering, were back in the saddle again.

Fortunately, most of the board is concerned enough with education in Montana to refuse helping Mr. Richard destroy it.

The Associated Press quoted Richard as asking the unit presidents if they could "get along with less than the approved five per cent salary raises for (their) staffs."

"We're in an inflationary area in the nation," Richard explained.

In our hearts, we know he is right. All this overspending and inflation in the United States caused by Democratic idiots in Washington has got to stop before the nation goes so broke it has to sell out to General Motors. Certainly, cutting the budget for education in Montana is the place to start. Let's hear it for rational thinking!

We realize a state the size of Montana is terribly burdened by financing six university units. Rather than cutting the budget and have six sick schools, however, it makes more sense to eliminate about three and have three superior institutions.

A university is only as good as its faculty and the proposed budget increase is necessary to keep what good professors we do have. This university, for one, has already lost too many good faculty members to universities offering more attractive wages.

The majority of the board should be commended for its action on this proposal and Mr. Richard should return to punching cows instead of education. webber

Oh! That Explains It

It was because of "outside pressure . . . or the promise of a favor," according to Gov. Tim Babcock, that the New York Times endorsed Lee Metcalf for re-election to the U.S. Senate.

The New York Times is hardly the Two Dot Tribune, Governor. It isn't noted for its spinelessness and fear of public officials.

But then, what could you say? webber

Senior Questions Validity of Sports Poll

To the Kaimin:

Your student poll article by Susan Lawrenz in Friday's Kaimin leaves a lot of questions unanswered. The reporter makes no mention of how many students she interviewed or what percentage of these students were football players.

Don't get me wrong—football is an important sport on this campus and should have a lot of support during the fall season, but why knock minor sports?

The suggestion in the last paragraph that major sports should be improved before including minor sports in the budget is pretty narrow. There are at least as many student participants in minor sports as there are in football, and they should not be forgotten just because they are not one of the major sports.

What kind of a poll was this?

Why did reporter Lawrenz choose not to include basketball in her article which supposedly dealt with major sports? We have a basketball team, too, and there are a lot of people involved in that area of UM athletics. What kind of a poll is it that enables a reporter to say, "all those polled agree" in reference to any subject? This does not serve to indicate much variety in people who were interviewed.

A poll on sports emphasis would be good if done correctly, so I suggest Susan Lawrenz carry out such a poll, but instead of selecting such one-sided sources, she should make sure her poll includes a real cross-section of the UM student body. If she were to do this, I'm sure she would find many other opinions and she'd be able to write a much less biased article.

Program Council Director Explains Ticket Sales Policy

To the Kaimin:

In the past two weeks since the performance of Dave Brubeck, there has been considerable controversy and perhaps even criticism leveled at the ASUM Program Council's policy of selling tickets. As ASUM Program Council Director I feel obligated to set forth the principles and policy pertaining to the sale of tickets for performances sponsored by the ASUM Program Council that have been adhered to in the past and will continue to be followed in the future.

(1) Since the ASUM Program Council is subsidized by student money it is the general policy that a substantial yet economically feasible reduction will be given to students who pay the ASUM student activity fee.

(2) The sale of block tickets to any living group, whether they be Greek, independent, living groups, clubs, or any organization, will be made only on a first come, first serve, wait in line, C.O.D. basis. To try to prevent the selling is not only discriminatory but also bad business.

(3) As nice as it would be to stop the exploiting of students by various "enterprising" individuals it would be quite difficult and still maintain the above policies. If the supply and demand are such that people are willing to pay double and triple prices for a given performance then why interfere with the market system?

(4) Finally, the fairest yet most economical way of stopping these price hikes is by the refusal of the general student body to buy these tickets from those individuals who are asking more than the face value of the ticket. It then becomes a very risky investment to purchase these tickets in anticipation of ending up "holding the bag."

Minor Sports Backed

To the Kaimin:

The "Montana Review" stated on Friday that: "The Major Sports must be improved before the already tight budget can be stretched to include the minor sports." It was also stated that all the people polled agreed with this statement. The majority of the people polled must have been either athletes in those major sports or people who just didn't know a thing about any sports other than the "Old Traditionals," namely football and basketball.

It would be a pretty safe bet that this school will never attain national recognition in any of the major sports, but it could in some of the minor sports. The soccer and rifle teams speak for themselves, and with the large number of Canadians here, there is great potential for a hockey team. Some people are either not aware that hockey is big in many parts of the United States, or maybe they're afraid that it would take away too many fans from basketball.

Many years ago CB bought 15 complete hockey uniforms with equipment which have since been collecting dust in Rupert's store-room. But they say repairing the ice rink is not foreseeable in the near future.

We may wait 10 years for a winning football team, but this year we will have a winning soccer team, which was allotted a whole $400 for eight games and equipment last year and were 6-1-1.

The potential is here now, but either CB or the athletic commission is just too blind to see it.

Soccer Team Ties Gonzaga

The UM soccer team played Gonzaga to a 0-0 tie in Spokane Saturday.

In the defensive battle between the two teams, Gonzaga pressed Montana's goal often throughout the first half. UM goalie Tony Sidique made some spectacular saves and was injured on one of them. He was able to continue, however, and played the entire game.

Montana opened up their offensive game in the second half, keeping Gonzaga on the defensive. The UM team had some good chances to score on fast breaks but were unable to capitalize on them. The ball missed the goal by a couple of feet on each shot.

Montana has a 1-0-2 record with Gonzaga in the series. The Zags will play a return match in Missoula Saturday, Oct. 29.

WES APPELT, junior tackle from Missoula, gives the Grizzlies offensive punch in the interior line. Appelt was a Missoula County High School All-American in 1964.

Irish Take Lead In AP Standings

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame climbed into first place in the Associated Press major-college football poll yesterday, and Irish coach Ara Parseghian said:

Wildcats, Bobcats Dominate Big Sky Statistics Again

Big Sky football teams completed a week of light league action Saturday.

Montana State, led by hard-running Don Hass, rolled to a 49-0 win over Idaho State despite 10 fumbles in the only conference game slated.

The Idaho Vandals dropped a close contest to Oregon State 14-7 and Montana lost to Pacific 28-0. Weber State took the week off to prepare for the big game against the Bobcats in Bozeman Saturday.

Weber remained the league's biggest offensive threat, even with its week of rest. The Wildcats have gained 1,907 yards, 1,032 passing and 875 rushing. Their pass offense, statistically the best in the Big Sky, has been the key to their success. Under the strong arm of quarterback Tim Jones, Weber has completed 78 of 128 passes for eight touchdowns.

Montana State dominates the league in defense and offensive rushing statistics. The Bobcat offense has netted 1,643 yards in six games for an average of 274 yards per game. Their opponents have gained 203 yards per game, 34 rushing and 143 passing.

Idaho's pass defense continues to be the strongest in the league. It has allowed 110 yards per game.

MSU halfback, Don Hass, this week's Player of the Week, leads the league in rushing, scoring and total offense. He has rushed 960 yards in 146 plays and has a 6.5 average. He has scored 10 touchdowns in six games. Hass' rushing yardage makes him the nation's leading ground gainer.

Weber end, Phil Tuckett, leads in pass receptions with 24 for 287 yards and four touchdowns. Grizzly punter, Dewey Allen, leads the league with a 38.9 average. UM defensive back, Gary Smith, has the most pass interceptions with five.

Big Game Season Opens in Montana Areas on Sunday

UM students will once again be donning their hunting duds and heading for the high country as the general season for deer and elk opens Sunday.

Everyone is expecting a bang-up season although the weather will be a prime factor.

The bag limits for most of the Missoula areas are one deer and one elk of either sex.

Keith Seaberg, Missoula game manager, said the degree of success on opening day will depend on snow in the mountains. Elk population in the area is up from last year. The herd has not been properly hunted since 1961, he reports.

Junior Tackle Is Key Lineman For Grizzly Offensive Squad

Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles on Grizzly linemen. These men deserve credit in the gridiron battle of the giants for giving the offensive drive momentum or stopping the opponent.

One of the key linemen in Hugh Davidson's forward wall is Wes Appelt, junior tackle from Missoula.

Appelt, an All-American prep choice in 1964, packs 205 pounds of offensive punch. He saw considerable action last season as offensive tackle, and is relied on heavily in holding back opposition defensive units.

Appelt is a business administration major. He entered UM in 1964 and played on the Cub team. He has received one varsity football letter, and is expected to return next season with experience and confidence.

Although Appelt didn't travel to Stockton, Calif., this past weekend, he is expected to return to the lineup when the Grizzlies meet Idaho State University Saturday. Appelt was injured in a football game against Portland State two weeks ago when he was spiked on the hand and forearm.
