Two film shows of music and images were presented by professional photographer William Grand last night in the University Theater as part of Program Council's "Project America '67—The Now People" series.

Mr. Grand, who works in the medium of colored slides, said the camera speaks in sign language. "If I could say it better, I would have said it," he added before presenting the shows.

Each of the two shows was accompanied by music, some of it electronic, from a tape recorder. During the shows, Mr. Grand made constant adjustments on the slide projector and music volume.

"The City of Glass" is an experience of feeling made up of different shades and shadows. The show was filmed on a tabletop, according to Mr. Grand. Mr. Grand used blocks, geometric forms and simple lines to express his city of glass. The colors faded from bright and clear to dark and fuzzy. The shapes formed city buildings and then would melt into a brown wind.

Mr. Grand said he wanted his viewers to form their own ideas when they saw his images. "I don't spell them out," he said. "They are different for each one of my viewers." Sometimes it was easy to put the meaning into form; at other times Mr. Grand's images were completely abstract.

"Inner Space" is a story with a coherent plot. It begins gently with pastel colors and bell music. These cobwebby forms suddenly merge into a sun, which blends into leaves and twigs. Then there is a tree and then a forest. Mr. Grand's images keep blending together, spelling out a different experience to each viewer.

In a question and answer session following the shows, Mr. Grand said that he had used many different techniques, such as polaroid light shining through stretched plastic, to film his shows.

His original purpose, he said, was to get the two stimuli of sight and sound locked together as closely as possible. In order to achieve this union, he sometimes mounts two slides together. Mr. Grand prefers to keep the shows on slides rather than film because he changes them continually. "You put it on film and there is no freedom any more," he said.

Mr. Grand said he, as an artist, did not need a drug experience to create his psychedelic-like shows. "It is sufficient to have some kind of fire inside," he said. "I myself leaned heavily on Sanka coffee."

Diplomat-in-Residence Arrives To Kick Off Year-Long Talks

Eddie William Schodt, formerly with the diplomatic mission in Tokyo, Japan, will be the diplomat-in-residence at the University of Montana for the academic year.

Mr. Schodt, 53, will be the first diplomat-in-residence assigned to a Montana school since the State Department inaugurated the program in 1964.

Mr. Schodt, who served as a diplomat in Australia, Norway and Japan for the last 12 years, said the diplomat-in-residence program was instituted to re-orient diplomats with the American way of life in a university atmosphere and discuss United States foreign relations with interested faculty members.

"I can possibly help them," Mr. Schodt said, "because I have been there. They (faculty) are teaching foreign relations from a theoretical standpoint." He also said he will be speaking to groups outside the city and state.

Mr. Schodt worked for the State Department in Washington, D.C., from 1946 to 1955. He was assigned to Oslo, Norway, for five years as an advisor on economic, political and military matters.

He was later stationed in Canberra, Australia, as an economic and trade-relations advisor. He was a commercial counselor in Tokyo for the last two years, responsible for the promotion of trade between the United States and Japan.

Mr. Schodt said diplomats are placed in various universities yearly. A large number of small colleges are selected for the program to avoid concentration in the bigger schools. He said smaller universities have less access to firsthand knowledge of United States foreign relations.

In the past three years, 20 foreign service officers have been assigned to 22 universities and colleges in 17 states.

Mr. Schodt is a graduate of Valley State Teachers' College in Valley City, N.D. He received his Master's and Doctorate degrees from the University of Colorado in Boulder.

He said he will be available to meet with students interested in the foreign service careers.

UM Building Lab At State Prison

A new research laboratory, for the study of effects of drugs on the human body, is being constructed by the UM Foundation at Montana State Prison in Deer Lodge. Oakley E. Coffee, foundation director, said the laboratory is scheduled for completion Jan. 1.

The building is owned and operated by the UM Foundation, but is under contract to an independent research company, Hoffman-La-Roche, Inc., which will conduct the experiments.

"Directly, there will be no involvement of faculty and students in the new experimental laboratory," Mr. Coffee said.

"There is a possibility of graduate students using the equipment, but they will not be participating in the conducting of the experiments. They cannot use the equipment if their work interferes with the experiments."

Voluntary help from the prisoners will be used in testing the different drugs. The drugs must be approved by a board of review before Hoffman-LaRoche, Inc. can use them in the tests.

"There will be a close report between the lab and the faculty since the knowledge gained in the research will be of mutual benefit to the University and Hoffman-La-Roche," Mr. Coffee said.

Plead Guilty to Charge

Pamela Christine Cork and Philippe DeKalb Kay entered guilty pleas here yesterday on a charge of narcotics possession.

They entered their plea before Dist. Judge E. Gardner Brownlee. Their arrest in August occurred when officers allegedly found them in possession of marijuana in a restricted fire area.

Sheriff John G. Murphy is investigating the defendants' claims they had found the marijuana growing wild along the Clark Fork River.

Comedy to Start Theater Season; Cast Announced

Rehearsals began last evening for the Montana Repertory Theater Company's first production, "She Stoops to Conquer," which will be presented in the University Theater, Oct. 26-29.

The comedy, by Oliver Goldsmith, is set in old England. Two young men, portrayed by Duncan Crump and Melvon Ankeny, come to court Miss Hardcastle, portrayed by Barbara Trott Crump. They become confused on their journey and ask directions from a stranger. The rogue directs them to an inn which is in reality the Hardcastle estate.

The confused swain moves into the house and treats his future father-in-law (Glenn Gauer) as an innkeeper.

The company's resident actress, Eileen Gallagher, will portray Mrs. Hardcastle.

Other members of the company for the 1967-68 season are: Suzanne Cook, Kathy Duggins, Patsy Maxson, Frances Morrow, Paul Anderson, Linus Carleton, James Carney, Jerry Charlson, Roger Debourg, David Hunt, Lester Hankinson, William Shryock, Rick Stokes, Teddy Ulmer, Don Volk.

Pop Artist to Show Films In University Theater at 8

Pop artist Andy Warhol will show several of his controversial underground movies and talk about his work tonight at 8 in the University Theater.

Richard Reinholdt, chairman of the UM art department, said in an interview that Mr. Warhol "has shattered the status quo of what art is or was." He added that Warhol's work has formed a whole new direction in the field and offered a challenge for a new look at our society.

Mr. Warhol, 37, is a native of Philadelphia and studied art at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh. In 1957 he won the Art Directors Club Medal as a commercial artist.

Mr. Warhol made four films. The first, titled Sleep, was a six-hour film showing a sleeping man. Other films are Eat, a study in chewing behavior; Kiss, a close look at non-stop kissing, and an eight hour film of the Empire State Building.

Mr. Warhol also formed a rock and roll group called The Velvet Underground. They are part of a show called The Exploding Plastic Inevitable. The group plays and Mr. Warhol shows films on different screens at the same time.

Mr. Warhol lives in a three-story house in New York crammed with such things as old carousel horses, a carnival punching-bag machine, a giant wooden Coke bottle and a crushed car sculpture.

Mr. Warhol's lecture will be the third in the "Project '67—The Now People" series presented by the ASUM program council.

Kennedy Leads LBJ in Poll

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy now is preferred by Democrats over President Johnson as the party's 1968 presidential candidate, the Gallup Poll reported Monday.

Kennedy, the New York Democrat who has sharply criticized some aspects of administration Vietnam policy, was picked by 39 percent of the Democrats polled by Gallup as their choice to run for president next year. Johnson drew support from 37 per cent.

It was the first time since last January that Kennedy had out-pollled the President in the Gallup sampling.

Synod for Drastic Change

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops synod plunged into its first debate Monday and emerged with a groundswell of opinion in favor of a drastically modernized code of canon law.

Prelates asked for an end to secret trials, automatic and harsh punishments for violations and complicated appeals rules.

They called for an emphasis on spiritually rather than on strict law.

INITIATION TO GREEK LIFE—This sorority pledge got a close-up of the UM sod when fraternity men claimed her for their own by painting Greek letters on her posterior as part of Greek Week Saturday morning.

Nun Burns Self to Death

SAIGON (AP)—A 27-year-old Buddhist nun burned herself to death Tuesday in Can Tho in the first such suicide by fire in the current protest movement of the radical Buddhist faction, U. S. officials reported.

U. S. officials said monks at the pagoda expressed surprise at her action.

The immolation was the first since Aug. 30 of last year, when a young girl burned herself to death in Saigon at the Buddhist headquarters in the Vien Hoa Dao pagoda.

'Book' Staff Has Opportunity Veteran FBI Agent Runs Amok

"The Book" is going back into publication.

Work on the small but important volume containing evaluations of UM faculty members will begin today after Publications Commission fills the co-editor post vacated by Judy Syverson this fall.

The first edition of "The Book," published fall quarter, 1966, drew much criticism from the faculty because many evaluations were based on small samples.

Many professors argued that what was said about them came from only a small group of "sour grapes" students.

They had a point, but any failings in the first edition were not the fault of its editorial staff, but the many students who failed to return questionnaires.

If the new staff really wants to squelch these charges when the second edition comes out winter quarter, they should take advantage of the suggestion raised last year by ASUM Pres. Loren Haarr and the late Dr. Larry Gale, academic vice-president.

Results from the new faculty evaluation forms should be fed into the University computer.

Dr. Robert Banaugh, director of the computer center, said this would be possible and that the University could donate the center's services to "The Book" staff.

He cautioned that the staff will have to work closely with computer center personnel to insure proper programming and that the ultimate results will not be sacrosanct, but at least they will be closer to objectivity than those obtained by methods used last year.

Earl Lory, acting academic vice-president, has pledged his full support to the idea. Now it is up to the new staff of "The Book" to dig in and take advantage of this opportunity.

The computer and "The Book" staff cannot do all the work. The greatest responsibility still lies with the students who must fill out their questionnaires at the end of this quarter.

A Federal judge has said it may be all right for FBI agents to indulge in "necking and spooning"—as long as they're veterans. And many Americans are understandably alarmed that this may spell the end of our Republic as we know it.

The opinion came in a suit brought by a young, single FBI agent who was fired for unbecoming conduct after he invited a young lady up to his apartment for such purposes.

The Judge, however, noted the young man had just gotten out of the Air Force. And the judge cited several cases in which baseball clubs were required to keep returning servicemen on the team until they got back into "playing condition."

This makes sense. Yet many Americans are gravely concerned that such a decision may prove only the opening wedge. And they envision the day when single FBI agents will be necking and spooning all over the place on their own time. With who knows what results.

As a veteran observer of FBI agents in action, that isn't the way I envision it.

Scene: The pad of FBI Agent Rick McKlean. Walter Keane etchings grace the walls and a Guy Lombardo record provides ambiance. Rick, who has infiltrated the PTA on orders of the Communist cell which he infiltrated on orders of the FBI enters with Matilda Hari, a PTA counter agent posing as the gaily divorced mother of two.

Rick: I cannot help it, ma'am, but ever since that court decision when I look in your eyes I have this overwhelming urge to . . .

Matilda: Don't fight it, you fool. Kiss me.

Rick: What's a kiss?

Matilda: Take off your snap-brimmed fedora, big boy, and I'll show you.

Rick (hesitantly): Remove my hat? Well, I guess it would be all right. But wait until I turn Mr. Hoover's picture to the wall.

Matilda (sliding closer): And now, honey, if you'll just unbutton the top button of your tan gabardine suit. . .

Rick (shocked): Oh, I couldn't do that. For one thing, it's sewn shut. That's so we'll never accidentally appear in mufti in front of civilians.

Matilda (cleverly): Well, why don't you just forget me, honey, and get ready for bed.

Rick: I'm ready.

Matilda: You mean you sleep in that suit, white shirt and conservative tie? Don't you even take it off for your twice-daily shower?

Rick (proudly): It's drip dry.

(closing his eyes) Now, please, ma'am, teach me how to kiss.

(At this moment, the door smashes in and Mr. Hoover and a posse of agents enter, all averting their eyes from the disgusting, orgiastic spectacle.)

Mr. Hoover (grimly tipping his hat to Matilda): Sorry, ma'am but this young man isn't what he seems and we're placing him under arrest.

Matilda: For impersonating an FBI agent?

Mr. Hoover: No, ma'am, for impersonating an ex-serviceman.

Gale Set Example—Oakley E. Coffee

To the Kaimin:

May I take this opportunity to compliment you on your editorial relative to Dr. Larry Gale. His loss is a grievous blow to the University, but I am sure you will agree that in his short tenure of office he set an example that will be a guide to whoever is selected to take his place. It should be pointed out, I believe, that Dr. Gale was given unstinting support by President Pantzer and the administrative officials of the University in carrying out his programs.

Sincerely yours,

OAKLEY E. COFFEE

Grizzlies Nip Weber 13-12

The University of Montana Grizzlies opened the 1967 Big Sky Conference season clipping the Weber State Wildcats 13-12 in Ogden, Utah. "I think that we did a good job of hustling and just stayed in the ball game," said Grizzly coach Jack Swarthout. "All the boys played well."

The Grizzlies scored first on a 77-yard run by quarterback Ed Steiner in the first period. Swarthout said that the play was a "belly option" on which Steiner did a good job of running, with blocking from Lon Howard, Herb White and Roy Robinson. The conversion attempt by Brian Magnuson failed.

Weber scored in the second period on a pass from quarterback Paul Waite to wingback Phil Tuckett. The conversion attempt failed.

Halfback Gartha Morgan put the Grizzlies in the lead with a five-yard touchdown run in the third period. Swarthout said that Morgan got a good block on the play from left tackle Howard. Mick O'Neill kicked the point after touchdown.

The Wildcats came back to score their second touchdown with less than three minutes to play. They elected to go for the two-point conversion, but failed. Montana defensive halfback Gary Smith knocked Weber's Henry Owens out of bounds on the one-yard line to spoil the two-point attempt.

Weber had 17 first downs, Montana 15. The Grizzlies gained 298 yards rushing to the Wildcats' 209. Weber passed for 113 yards while the Grizzlies failed to complete any of five pass attempts.

Total offensive yardage for Weber was 342 yards, while Montana collected 298 yards. Montana punted six times for an average of 34.3 yards, while Weber averaged 48.2 yards on four punts.

Swarthout praised his defense with special mention for halfback Smith along with tackle Bob Graham, linebacker Bob Beers and end Larry Huggins.

Swarthout said, "Smith is playing very well for us."

He said that all of the backs on the offense are playing well. He had praise for halfbacks Gartha Morgan and Roy Robinson and fullback Brian Magnuson. The Grizzly mentor said, "Sophomore Robinson is getting game experience and improving all the time."

The Grizzlies now turn to preparing for the University of the Pacific Tigers on Saturday at Dornblaser Field. UOP resemble the Weber team in that they have a strong fullback and pass often.

Jacobsen Takes Weber Dual Meet

Wade Jacobsen, UM freshman, was the individual winner in Saturday's cross country meet between the Grizzlies and the Weber State Wildcats. He finished in a time of 10:59, 14 seconds ahead of Weber's Bob Wallace, in the two-mile run. Montana runners took six of the top seven places.

All-America Fred Friez finished third in a time of 11:27. Fourth was Ray Velez in 11:30, fifth was Ray Ballew in 11:37, sixth was Steve Linse in 11:54 and seventh was Mickey Harrington in 12:08. Tim Potter, the seventh member of the Montana team, finished 11th in a time of 12:50.

Sox Take Title

Carl Yastremski got four straight hits Sunday to lead the Boston Red Sox to a come-from-behind 5-3 victory over Minnesota, giving the Red Sox their first American League pennant since 1918.

The Red Sox scored all their runs in the sixth inning after being down 2-0.

Detroit Tigers split a double-header with California Angels which ruined their chances of forcing a playoff with the Red Sox.
