U Activists Forsake SDS

Former members of the SDS met last night and decided to become known as Ed. They also decided not to picket the CIA placement interviews today because that was a plan of the SDS, which no longer exists on campus.

Sixty-five persons attended the meeting in the LA building. To comply with University regulations that an organization have a name the group chose the name Ed after a general agreement that a name didn't mean anything.

The members voted against the title SDS, Students for a Democratic Society, after Mike Hennessy spoke about the meaning of the national organization. Hennessy had attended the national convention of SDS in Denver.

The group decided it did not want to be saddled with the goals, the name, and potential prejudice the title SDS might represent.

Also, to comply with University regulations, the group elected officers Mike Hennessy, Jerry Wagner, and Skip Davidsen.

The meeting was conducted by John Anderson. In reviewing the decision not to picket the CIA, Anderson said, "The SDS was going to picket and now there's no SDS so no one is going to picket."

The name for the organization Ed was chosen over other suggestions of "Ed and Frank," "Ed, Frank, & Joe" and the "Jolly-stompers."

A committee to register the organization and develop a statement of policy includes Paul Melvin, Shelia Scott and Doug Brown.

Although there was a long discussion about the purpose of the organization, no conclusions were reached. Several members expressing their opinion said they wanted to do something, but others, as eloquent, argued that more education is needed of themselves and others about anarchy and revolution.

The members reached no decision about what to do with 1,500 copies of a statement opposing the presence of the CIA on campus. It was agreed that they could not be handed out by the newly named group because the opening sentence of the statement said, "The Students for a Democratic Society. . ."

The group agreed that the common goal of the members present was a revolution against the present political and cultural society but they disagreed on what tactics would accomplish this aim. This was voiced in discussion about the proposed CIA demonstration. Many agreed it was "not worth getting our heads bashed in over." It was acknowledged that they are in Missoula, Montana and what the organization can accomplish here is not the same as in Newark or Berkeley.

A Program committee and a study committee were chosen and will report at the next meeting, Monday.

'Chief Push' Claunch Reports Plans for 52nd Foresters' Ball

Forest fire management will be the theme of UM's 52nd annual Foresters' Ball, which will be held Nov. 15 and 16 at the Harry Adams Field House.

Foresters' Week will be celebrated from Nov. 12 to Nov. 16 on the UM campus, and Gov. Tim Babcock is expected to declare a Montana Foresters' Day for some day that week, "Chief Push" Richard Claunch said.

Festivities will begin Nov. 12 with the crowning of the queen at a convocation in the University Theater at 7:30 p.m. Forestry students will provide skits and entertainment during the gathering.

Boondockers' Day will be celebrated Nov. 13, and all foresters will dress in logging clothes. At noon, a pole climbing contest and judging for the beard contest will be held in the Baby Oval.

Students who want to compete in the beard contest may register in the forestry school office between Oct. 14 and Oct. 18. Beards started before Oct. 14 may not be entered, Claunch said.

Volunteer labor will begin preparing the Field House for the dance at 8 p.m. on Nov. 13, Claunch said.

They probably will be working right up until dance time Friday evening. He said between 6,000 and 7,000 man-hours of volunteer labor will be needed for the week's activities.

From 3,000 to 4,000 trees, donated by the Anaconda Company and cut by foresters, will be set up in the Field House.

An old western town consisting of a bar, jail and chowhall will be built inside the Field House. Two photo booths will also be built. Rustic slab lumber will be used in the construction of all buildings.

The theme, forest fire management, is intended to inform people about forestry, Claunch said. Two aspects of forest fire management will be stressed in the exhibit rooms. They are methods of fighting wildfire and how foresters use fire as a tool. He said automatic slide projectors will be used to help explain the theme.

"As a way of announcing songs this year," Claunch said, "a smoke jumper will slide down a cable into a tree—eventually climbing down the tree and ending up on the floor."

The Ray Thrailkill Orchestra from Hamilton will provide the music. Costume contests will be held each night during intermission.

Admission to the dance, which will last from 8 p.m. to midnight, is $4.00 per couple and proceeds go to a loan and scholarship fund. Anyone who has volunteered more than 10 hours of time toward the dance is eligible for a loan or scholarship.

The week's activities are open to the entire student body, Claunch said.

"Some drinking problems have occurred in past years," Claunch said, "and we're keeping the same policies on drinking that we had last year." There will be no frisking, he said, but anyone who is misbehaving will be thrown out.

Dick Shimer, in charge of pre-construction, David Griggs, in charge of construction, and Bob Thomas, in charge of public relations, have assisted Claunch in planning the Foresters' Ball.

Ghosts' Sound Off In Apollo

SPACE CENTER, Houston — While the astronauts sailed over the Red Sea, the spacecraft's warning suddenly flashed on and warning signal clanged in their ears.

This resulted from a momentary loss of power. It was quickly corrected when the crew turned a reset switch.

The crew speculated the problem may have been a "ghost," or false alarm, triggered by a passing electrical overload caused by too many heaters and fans coming on at once.

Walter M. Schirra, Apollo 7 commander, and his crew seemed a good mood entering the fourth day of their 11-day, 4½-million-mile flight.

They left valves in the environmental control system set in a manner they preferred instead of the mode suggested by mission controllers. Mission control hinted this out, but no readjustments were made.

The crew reported they felt in good condition. Schirra's cold symptoms were apparently gone and his voice had none of the hoarseness that was apparent Sunday. Schirra and Cunningham got to sleep late because of the electrical system outage and awoke only five hours later. The loss of sleep, however, did not seem to affect them.

Over the New Mexico desert, the Apollo 7 crew ran a successful test of the radar system an American space crew will use someday to return from the moon to an orbiting "mother ship."

Schirra greeted America from space with a joke by television, a sign reading "Hello from the lovely Apollo room, high atop everything."

Second Assignment in Vietnam Coming for 24,000 Troops

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON—Second involuntary tours in Vietnam are coming up this year for about 18,000 soldiers and 6,000 Marines.

The reason for the second tours is because the war has stretched out so long. The turnover of the usual one-year tour in Vietnam now reaches many who have been away from the war zone the planned two-year interval.

Negro Students Boycott Schools

CHICAGO—More than 20 high schools were depleted by absenteeism yesterday as a citywide boycott by Negro students picked up some momentum.

A group of 300 students left Crane High School on the West Side and began a march toward

Up to now the number of non-volunteers ordered a second time to Vietnam has amounted to a trickle. The exceptions have been those with skills in short supply, such as helicopter pilots.

The new turnabout will affect career servicemen for the most part, rather than draftees and one-term enlistees. Draftees serving two year hitches may not necessarily be returned to the war zone.

Guards Wound 24 Convicts

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark.—Prison guards wounded 24 convicts yesterday by firing shotgun blasts into a crowd of penned-up prisoners who had refused to work until the prison system complied with several demands they submitted to prison personnel.

the downtown offices of the board of education to protest against "rats, bad food, peeling paint" and other conditions at Crane.

The protest began last week and resulted in the closing of several schools after minor fights, walk-outs and rock-throwing took place.

During the morning, about 22 of the prisoners changed their minds and went to work. The remaining 75 or so were in a fenced enclosure when the shots were fired.

Following the shooting, the prisoners who had refused to work but escaped being wounded went into the fields to work.

London Students Protest War

LONDON—A secret student organization claimed Monday it planted two incendiary bombs that destroyed part of London's Imperial War Museum. The group threatened to attack other public buildings in its protest of the Vietnam war.

A mystery telephone call to the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, claimed the fire had been set by a rebel group of "Socialist students" to dramatize an anti-Vietnam war rally set for Oct. 27.

F---

In a famous quote relating to unclean words, novelist D. H. Lawrence once said he wished for the courage to say s— in front of a lady.

Now, forty years later, the ladies say it themselves, and pungent expressions are much in vogue in sorority houses, and wherever else young women congregate.

However, faithful readers of the Kaimin lately have noted that there is one certain word the Kaimin insists on spelling f—.

It is not that we object to printing The Word in all its Anglo-Saxon glory, but certain elements, our printers, refuse to set it in type, and threaten to walk off the job should we insist.

Under duress, we are forced to do a second-rate job of communicating with our readers. Sometimes adequate communication is impossible when any word is taboo. Our latest problem with The Word came last week when we decided to use a syndicated College Press Service story containing it. According to that story, a printing firm refused to print f— (spelled out) in The Envoy, student newspaper of all-girl Hunter College in Manhattan, but agreed to print f— (f blank blank blank).

Our printers would not set what the New York printers would not set, which was what the story was about. The story came out saying the New York printers would set f— (their printer's censorship) but not f— (our printers' censorship).

So the story made no sense at all, illustrating what happens to a legitimate news story when it is censored. (See the Kaimin, "Alert Company Is Alert to the 'Word,'" October 11.)

It is about time the older generation, whence cometh the preponderance of censors, woke up to what is happening in the world. For openers, it might note that The Word is accepted if not necessarily respected by numerous publications aimed at adults.

Playboy uses it, the underground press overuses it, and some very cerebral national literary journals occasionally exhibit it with the proper scholarly aloofness.

The Word is gaining wider usage on every front, and no one faints when it is used in a classroom. Nevertheless, most of our elders go along with the New York printers in not wanting to print the word, in order not to offend "nice people who still cringe when they see the word in print."

Even so, as The Word gains popularity, some of the more strait-laced publications are finding it necessary to refer to it. Columnist Stewart Alsop refers in the October 14 Newsweek to "a scabrous four-letter transitive verb," and mentions a sign used by a demonstrator, reading "(VERB) COMMUNISM."

Somehow the patriotism is lost in translation. Which is our point: some of the most important speeches and writings of our time are couched in controversial terms, and no one can write about them if the terms are censored.

On another front, we find ourselves being forced to edit certain words out of letters to the editor, which sometimes not only alters what the writer said, but makes him seem more or less credible than he otherwise would have been through the removal of injudicious or ridiculous expressions in his letter.

The Kaimin thus has the choice of not printing certain letters at all, or of meddling with their content and perhaps allowing a babbling idiot to go unrecognized.

Even educational material must be cut to satisfy the tastes of printers. We have received many requests that we reprint The Student as Nigger, but of course the printers would never stand for that. (We would not have printed it anyway, as we respect the author's copyright, and we are realistic enough to know that although it is all right for ROTC and the Montanans for Constitutional Action to send "obscenity" through the mail, it might be something else for the Kaimin.)

So when it comes to f—, you can do it, you can say it, but thanks to your printers, you may never never read it in the Kaimin.

Bookstore Savings Generate 'Thanks'

To the Kaimin:

In reference to Kaimin Article of Thursday, October 10 entitled, "UM Bookstore Save Students $9,000 Through Profit Cut," we thank you, Mr. Morris McCollum.

Giving the bookstore the benefit of the doubt in saying the average student enrollment at UM was a conservative 6,000 last year, the savings per student comes to approximately $1.50 or $.50 per quarter.

How nice.

Pornography Gains Ground With Post Office Authorities

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Post Office has abandoned censorship as a weapon in the war against smut and is training its guns only on dealers who mail pornography to people who complain.

Main goal of this new strategy, says Chief Postal Inspector Harry B. Montague, is to keep advertisements for smut out of the hands of children and young people.

Montague indicates the heat is off consenting individuals who use the mails to exchange obscene photographs and reading matter.

Montague said in an interview that since 1957, the courts and the Justice Department have hindered the Post Office in its fight against pornography, and battle lines had to be redrawn.

Montague, chief inspector since 1961, now largely relies on individual protests from the public.

He and 1,080 "Post Office policemen" across the nation have been helped by a six-month old federal antipandering law.

Acting under this statute, the Post Office has received since April nearly 75,000 complaints about material which recipients said they'd received through the mails and which was "erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

The new law makes it possible for individuals to demand that pornography peddlers be ordered to remove their name from any mailing list the peddler owns or controls.

Violations are referred to the Justice Department which can apply to federal courts to force compliance with the law.

Pornography dealers, on the other hand, aren't completely displeased with the measure. It has a reverse effect—weeding out from their mailing lists those who object to pornography and leaving on them the names of persons who may have an interest in ordering from dealer catalogues.

Freedom Needed For Col. Angwin

To the Kaimin:

You and certain members of the faculty talk about "Academic Freedom." BUT, I am beginning to wonder — because it seems you and the faculty want "academic freedom" to be a one-way street.

It is ridiculous to harp on that theme and then try to cut Colonel Angwin down. Isn't he entitled to the same academic freedom? There seems to be a little discrimination going on or better yet, it smells "pinko" to many of us.

An Open Letter to Boone Arledge

Oct. 15, 1968

Mr. Boone Arledge
Executive Producer of ABC Sports
New York, N.Y.

Roone, baby;

Look Roone, I realize you had to send your best announcers, cameramen and equipment to Mexico City for the Olympics, but couldn't you have spared at least one competent announcer and cameraman for the Montana-Idaho game Saturday?

I realize the game certainly doesn't transcend the Olympics in importance; in fact, you may regard it as the low point of your football schedule, but still there is no excuse for the wretched job the ABC crew did in Idaho on Saturday.

For the first time in the history of football telecasting, viewers could actually see all 22 players on every play, thanks to the cameraman's insistence on shooting the game from miles away. This is fine, Roone, we all like to see what the right safety does on a dive play, but sometimes, just sometimes Roone, it's nice to show a close-up shot of the backfield.

On these rare plays when we did see the backfield, the cameraman would follow the wrong man into the line. Don't get me wrong Roone, I know that no one is perfect. I've seen great cameramen get faked out in the Rose Bowl too, but blowing every other play is ridiculous. While the quarterbacks' execution was good, it would hardly pass for legerdemain.

Now Roone, we've been hearing a great deal lately about ABC's creative photography in sports productions, and how you have pioneered the use of the instant replay, isolated and slow motion cameras. I know you had an instant replay camera in Moscow, Roone, but why didn't you teach the guy how to use it? After Doug Bain scored the Grizzlies' third touchdown (which, incidentally, the cameraman missed) a few of us expected to see the play again. No such luck.

I must compliment your photographer, however, Roone, for taking the funniest shot of the season. When the officials were measuring for a crucial first down, your cameraman, bless him, was right there and got a great shot of the chain—the wrong chain.

And those announcers, what great personalities they were. They were so poor they made a certain Missoula sportscaster sound like Frank Gifford. I can excuse them for calling Montana anything from Minnesota to the Bobcats, but when they kept showing Wally Brown and identifying him as Jack Swarouth, that was too much.

To add to the chaos, the game was interrupted by little reports from another show, network or something.

"This is not very sophisticated," a strange voice said, seemingly referring to the ABC coverage, and it certainly was not.

Were you so desperate, Roone, that you had to send a couple of correspondence school announcers and cameramen to broadcast the game?

I was really disappointed, Roone, because ABC Sports productions have been outstanding in the past. But after Saturday's debacle, it appears that ABC Sports is returning to the same level of mediocrity as the rest of ABC's productions.

I can hardly wait to see what kind of job you do on the 1968 Summer Olympics.

Peace,
C. Horses

UM Grizzlies Will Play ISU In Conference Tilt Saturday

Montana's up-and-down Grizzlies can expect more passing Saturday when they meet Idaho State in Pocatello. The Bengals completed 23 of 44 passes for 259 yards in a losing effort against Montana State Saturday.

The Grizzlies were defeated by the Idaho Vandals 56-45 in a scoring marathon in Moscow, Idaho, on Saturday.

The Vandals took the opening kickoff and marched to their first touchdown. Quarterback Steve Olson sprinted around right end for the touchdown.

After Vandal kicker Dwight Bennett booted a 30-yard field goal, the Grizzlies scored on a 16-yard pass from Ray Brum to Ron Baines. The Grizzlies tied the score 10-10 early in the second period when Dan Worrell kicked a 29-yard field goal.

Then the second quarter really got underway. Idaho made it 17-10 with a 44-yard pass from Olson to Jerry Hendren. The Grizzlies came back with a 28-yard scoring play on a pass from Brum to Al Luis. Olson then connected with Jim Wickboldt for a 20-yard scoring pass.

The Grizzlies countered with another touchdown when fullback Doug Bain went 21 yards on a draw play for the score to give Montana a 24-23 lead.

Behind for the first time, Idaho's Olson-Wickboldt combination went to work. On the first play following the kickoff, Olson hit Wickboldt for a 54-yard scoring play.

But the half wasn't over yet as UM was forced to punt. Three plays later, Olson hit Hendren in the end zone, and the halftime score was Idaho 37, Montana 24.

The third quarter was scoreless, but each team scored three times in the fourth period.
